TAFT MEN VICTORS IN FIRST SKIRMISH

Committee, Naming Chicago, June 18, for Convention, Defeats Primary Plan.

STILL TALK OF ROOSEVELT

Will Be Nominated If He Only Keeps Still, Friends Say—Indiana Against Taft, Lee Says.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—The Republican National Convention of 1912 will meet in the Auditorium in Chicago at noon on Tuesday, June 18. Harry S. New of Indianapolis is Chairman of the Sub-Committee of the National Committee appointed to make the arrangements for that convention, which includes the selection of the men who shall serve as temporary and permanent Chairmen and deliver the keynote speeches. The convention will consist of four delegates at large from each State, two delegates at large for each Representative at large in Congress, two delegates for each Congressional district, six delegates from each Territory, and two each from Alaska, the District of Columbia, Porto Rico, and the Philippines, in all 1,076. It will take 539 votes to nominate a candidate for the Presidency.

Having determined these facts and adopted, after a brief and mild contest, the formal call for the convention, which prescribes the terms for the election of delegates, the meeting of the Republican National Committee adjourned early this afternoon. Its next meeting will be in Chicago a few days before the assembling of the convention, when the temporary roll will be made up and the real battle for the nomination will be fought.

Under the terms of the call as adopted delegates are to be elected by "popular convention," State and district, except that in States where there is provision by law for other methods of electing delegates, it is left to the State or district committees to determine whether such laws shall be followed or not. It is assumed that such laws will be followed, and special provision was made to cover South Dakota and New Jersey, where the Presidential preference primaries, at which the delegates will be chosen, do not take place until after the time limit of delegates set by the call.

As to Choosing Delegates.

The call provides that no delegates shall be elected for thirty days after its issuance, and none within thirty days of the date for the assembling of the convention. That makes May 18 the last day for the general election of delegates. But the South Dakota primaries are set for June 4 and the New Jersey primaries for May 28. As originally reported to the committee by the sub-committee appointed to prepare the call, there was no provision by which the New Jersey and South Dakota delegations could get into the convention. So the call was amended to cover those cases.

The question of the Chairmanship of the Committee on Arrangements was practically settled yesterday, when the Southern opposition to Col. New was overcome. That opposition was based chiefly upon his support of previous efforts to reduce the Southern representation in National Conventions. It was this opposition which led to the circulation of unfounded reports that there had been a row between Postmaster General Hitchcock and Charles D. Hilles, Secretary to the President, who has been managing the Taft campaign for renomination. The new slate went through with a rush when the National Committee met this morning, and that cleared the way of all prospect of trouble, except the contest over the wording of the call.

The resignation of Mr. Hitchcock as Chairman of the National Committee, which was submitted on the day on which he was confirmed as Postmaster General, was accepted and ex-Gov. John F. Hill of Maine was elected in his place. Votes of thanks were given to the various officials of the National Committee, and then the real business of adopting the call was taken up.

Borah for Direct Primaries.

At the morning session a subcommittee consisting of Senator Borah of Idaho, as Chairman; Representative Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, William L. Ward of New York, John C. Capers of South Carolina, and Victor Rosewater of Nebraska, were appointed to draft the call. As soon as this committee met it developed that there was a difference of opinion regarding the language to be used concerning the election of delegates by primaries. The majority of the subcommittee were in favor of employing practically the same language as that of the call of four years ago. This is that "delegates and alternates, both from the States at large and from each Congressional district, may be elected in conformity with the laws of the State in which the election occurs if the State Committee or any such Congressional district committee so direct."

That is purely permissive and not mandatory. Senator Borah favored making it mandatory, so that in States where there are primary laws the delegates would have to be chosen by that method. He was alone on that position, and when the matter came before the full committee he withdrew his recommendation.

The real contest was over the proposition to permit State Committees to arrange primaries if they so desired in States where there are no primary laws.

Senator Borah favored adding to the proposition favored by the majority of the subcommittee this further proviso:

> And provided further that the Republican, State, Congressional, or Territorial Committee in any State or Territory not having laws providing for the manner of electing delegates may, if it chooses so to do, provide for the holding of popular primaries at which delegates at large and their alternates or Congressional district delegates and their alternates may be chosen by direct vote of the Republican electors of such State or territory or Congressional district.

Taft Forces Against Plan.

Senator Borah first presented to the full committee the report of the majority of the sub-committee, which was signed by all the majority, but with the reservation by Victor Rosewater of the right to vote for the Borah proposition. The Senator then moved his minority report as a substitute. He explained its terms briefly, and showed that it was purely permissive and not mandatory.

Opposition was manifested at once. It came first from Congressman Knowland, who represented California, where the Legislature is about to adopt a Presidential preference primary law. Arthur I. Vorys, who is the President's chief of staff for Ohio, also opposed it. This was the very question over which Vorys and Walter Brown, Chairman of the State Central Committee of Ohio, who recently came out for Col. Roosevelt, had been struggling for two days. If the Borah amendment were to be adopted by the committee it meant a defeat for the Taft forces, and that was clearly recognized. That was why it was said in these dispatches last night that the proposition would not go through to-day. The Taft forces were solidly against it, and they were supported by some men who are not for the renomination of the President—notably William L. Ward, the National Committeeman from New York.

Mr. Vorys's argument was chiefly that

COMMANDMENTS FOR WIVES.

Brockton Pastor Prepares Ten for Women of His Congregation.

Special to The New York Times.

BROCKTON, Mass., Dec. 12.—The Rev. Albert Marion Hyde, pastor of the Porter Congregational Church, has created a sensation by circulating among the women of his parish ten commandments for wives, which he calls "Commandments for Convenience." They are as follows:

"Thou shall not marry for a bank account, or even to escape being an old maid. It is better to remain single all thy life than to enter into the matrimonial state for revenue only.

"After the marriage thou shalt not put on an old wrapper and leave thy hair on the bureau, and wear slippers run down at the heels.

"Thou shalt not be a slave of fashions, making thyself a spectacle for the bystanders on the streets, furnishing jokes for the funny papers, and causing thy husband, father, and son to blush for you. It is better to be out of fashion than out of sense.

"Thou shalt not be a gossip.

"Thou shalt not be out of sorts when thy neighbor, in a limousine, smiles on thee in a trolley car. It is better to ride in a car than an automobile with a mortgage on thy house. Some women who have ridden in cars have been happy wives.

"Thou shalt not break down the no-license laws by serving liquor at parties, even if thou callest it punch and it gives thee entrance into the best set.

"Thou shalt not forget the age of thy children in the street car or in the steam car or the steamboat or in any other public conveyance, or even to the school teacher and truant officer.

"Thou shalt not let loose on thy husband, or on thy sons or thy daughters, or on thy father or thy mother on ironing day, or wash day, or baking day, or even in housecleaning time. If thy tongue is hung in the middle and wags at both ends thy husband will remember it is lodge night, and have a great desire to help initiate some new member. Thy sons and daughters will linger long on street corners, and thy advertisement for hired help will be in the papers all the time.

"Thou shalt not spell home as 'club,' or 'matinée,' or 'moving pictures,' or even 'church socials.'

"Thou shalt not forget where thy Bible is and be unable to find it when the minister calls. Thou shalt not make thy attendance at worship a matter of thermometer and barometer. Fair weather Christians are poor mothers and poorer church members."

DROVE JUDGE FROM COURT.

O'Hara and His Daughter Attack Judge Swann for a Lenient Sentence.

Judge Swann in General Sessions sentenced Julio Botello to the Elmira Reformatory yesterday on his plea of guilty to assault in the second degree, although he had been indicted for a more serious crime. The complainant was Florence O'Hara of Scranton, Penn.

Botello is a Mexican. He pleaded guilty to assault after Miss O'Hara and her father, Vincent O'Hara, had testified. Mr. O'Hara is a consulting engineer at Scranton, and when Judge Swann allowed Botello to plead to the assault charge, he exclaimed angrily:

"Your Honor, I see through this plea. You are allowing him to take it because he will go to Elmira, where he will be kept but a very short time, and then allowed to go free to prey upon the community once more. You know he is guilty of a crime blacker than murder, and I certainly protest against any clemency in this scoundrel's case."

Judge Swann then made some remarks about the girl, and said that she was not wholly blameless. At that O'Hara openly charged that Judge Swann was not doing his duty, while Miss O'Hara became hysterical and made a rush at the Judge, who retreated from the court room.

Botello is the nephew of a Mexican Government official who is stationed at Chihuahua.

WANTED PAPA, FIRED GARAGE.

Four-Year-Old Brought Father Home All Right, but Now He's Sorry.

Special to The New York Times.

LYNBROOK, L. I., Dec. 12.—"I want my papa to come home," said 4-year-old Leonard Haff yesterday to his mother, Mrs. William P. W. Haff, whose husband, a coal dealer, is also ex-Chief of the Lynbrook Volunteer Fire Department.

"But papa is busy now, dear, he'll be home this evening," said the mother.

"I know how to get him now," said Leonard, as he ran from the house.

Soon there was a cloud of smoke from the garage in the rear, and Leonard came rushing back.

"Quick, mamma, the barn is burning; call papa," shouted the youngster.

Mary Vines, a maid in the Haff home, rushed into the garage and found some loose hay afire on the floor. She threw a blanket over the hay, and then pitched it into the street with a hayfork. The firemen didn't come, after all, and Leonard was much disappointed. Papa, however, was summoned by telephone, and after Leonard had admitted kindling the hay he was sorry papa had come home.

NEW YORK TRAIN ROBBED.

Bandits Loot It of Registered Mail in South Carolina.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Dec. 12.—An Atlantic Coast Line train which left Savannah for New York this morning at 12:45 o'clock was stopped by robbers near Hardeeville, S. C., just before daybreak. Several sacks of registered mail were taken.

The train was running in two sections. The express cars, at which it is believed the robbers aimed, were carried on the second section and escaped them.

P. H. McRoy, the night telegrapher at Hardeeville, cleared the train from that station. Soon after it left, but before it was out of sight, the train stopped. A few minutes later the second section arrived from Savannah. The crew ran ahead to find out what had happened to the first section, but by this time the robbers had escaped.

The hold-up men, who had been passengers on the train, forced the engineer to stop, and covering the flagman and conductor with revolvers, made the flagman open the mail car after it had been detached and run forward some distance. Here the two mail clerks were compelled to give up the registered mail. The robbers then disappeared.

A posse was sent from Savannah to follow their trail. The Post Office Inspector at Atlanta says that fifty-five registered packages had been stolen.

The Government has a standing reward of $1,000 for the capture of any one who robs a mail car.

Woman Killed by an Auto.

Mrs. Matilda Tanturn, 50 years old, of 276 Fifth Avenue, Brooklyn, died in the Brooklyn Hospital last night of injuries received by being knocked down by an automobile at Fifth and Flatbush Avenues earlier in the evening. She was crossing the street with her daughter Matilda, 18 years old, when the machine struck her. She sustained a fracture of both thighs and several ribs. The machine was owned and operated by Morris Magensen of 951 Union Street. He gave what assistance he could.

RUSSIAN TREATY MAY STAND UNTIL 1914

Sulzer Resolution Likely to Pass House To-day, but May Be Delayed in Senate.

DISCUSS CHINESE LOOPHOLE

Interpretation of Word "Inhabitant" to be Brought to Attention of Secretary Knox.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—The House Committee on Foreign Affairs made quick work this morning with the Sulzer resolution to denounce the Russian treaty of 1832, and Chairman Sulzer was unanimously authorized to report the resolution with a favorable recommendation. It is his intention to take it up in the House to-morrow, and there is every indication that it will be adopted without prolonged debate.

Mr. Sulzer in calling up the resolution will make a brief speech setting forth the reasons for the action proposed, and recite the long series of violations and aggravations that have been visited upon American citizens by the Russian Government.

Several other friends of the measure will speak, among them Representative Harrison of New York, Representative Goldfogle, and Representative Levy. There is no visible opposition to the proposition that has received the approval of the committee, and it will go to the Senate with a unanimous vote of the House.

The friends of the Sulzer resolution in the House have already begun their fight in the Senate, where there is a disposition to stifle it in the Committee on Foreign Relations. Senator O'Gorman expresses confidence, however, that action may be had within a reasonable time, but apparently a vote before the holidays is practically out of the question.

This means that the period within which the actual abrogation of the treaty becomes a fact will be extended to Jan. 1, 1914. With prompt action in the Senate, the time within which the treaty would die would be one year from Jan. 1, 1912.

This is a sore disappointment to many who support the Sulzer resolution, but they express the hope that the State Department, when the House acts, will redouble its effort to secure the negotiation of a new treaty within a short time, as it is believed that Russia will not deliberately choose to isolate herself from American intercourse and trade.

Members of the Foreign Affairs Committee to-day said that they should take pains to impress on Secretary Knox the grave importance of caution in the phrasing of a new treaty with reference to the serious defect discovered during the hearing yesterday before the House committee whereby it would be entirely possible for Chinese inhabitants of Asiatic Russia to enter the United States in spite of our exclusion law. Care will be insisted upon that the word "inhabitant" now in the treaty shall not be used, and that the guarantee of equal rights in intercourse and travel within the boundaries of each of the contracting powers be secured to the citizens of each.

The discovery of the loophole through which Chinese immigration to the United States could be taken up by enterprising steamship lines has caused a sensation among those who have made a study of the question. There is little danger that any similar defect in any other treaty exists, but the danger in the Russian treaty lies in the fact that Russia has a large dominion inhabited by Mongolians and that Chinese generally could by going to Asiatic Russia come to the United States under Russian protection in spite of any protest on the part of this Government.

The friends of the Sulzer resolution were congratulating themselves to-day that they had gained a new and very strong argument for the abrogation of the present treaty.

If Congress passes the Sulzer resolution, reported to-day from the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, and thereby abrogates the commercial treaty of 1832 with Russia, it will be the first time such a course has been followed by Congress since 1798. On July 7 of that year Congress for the first and only time abrogated treaties.

The treaties, of which there were four, were all between the United States and France, and all but one of them were contracted before the adoption of the American Constitution, and only one of them received the constitutional consent and advice of the Senate.

These treaties were the alliance with France of 1778, the treaty of Amity and Commerce with France of 1778, the Act Separate and Secret with France of 1778, and the Consular Convention with France of 1788. They were all abrogated by the act of 1798 on account of the impossible promises made in the treaties by the United States, and all efforts of the French Governments since to have them revived have failed.

In 1800 a treaty was negotiated in which the obsolete treaties were stated to be still in discussion, but the Senate eliminated that section. Napoleon accepted this elimination with the proviso that all claims under the old treaties should be renounced by both parties, and that ended the matter for good.

A number of treaties, of course, have been allowed to lapse by limitation, and many others have been abrogated by the Executive of one power or the other upon due notice as prescribed in the treaty. Most of these abrogations, however, have been simply with a view to negotiating new treaties—just as the abrogation of the Russian treaty now, while it might be largely a punitive measure, would also contemplate a new and fairer convention from the American viewpoint.

Thus Mexico terminated a commercial treaty in 1853, and others have since been negotiated. Turkey also, after years of fruitless negotiation, abrogated the treaty of commerce and navigation, largely because of disputes arising under our claims of extra territoriality. In the case of Italy and many other States, treaties have come to a natural end by the merging of two or more States into one. New treaties gradually followed the formation of the Kingdom of Italy, and Italy has since abrogated, by notice, our Consular convention with her, another, of course, being subsequently negotiated.

A moot point in our present negotiations with Russia is as to the meaning of the word "inhabitant" in Article I. of the treaty of 1832. The article reads:

> There shall be between the territories of the high contracting parties a reciprocal liberty of commerce and navigation. The inhabitants of their respective States shall mutually have liberty to enter the ports, places, and rivers of the territories of each party wherever foreign commerce is permitted. They shall be at liberty to sojourn and reside in parts whatsoever of said territories in order to attend to their affairs, &c.

The dispute—aside from the principal point as to the rights of American-born Jews to go to Russia—hinges around the rights of naturalized American-born Russians who wish to return to Russia for

HIS $10,000 PRIZE WAS ONLY A BRICK

Col. Clark of Brooklyn Fell In with Two Engaging Civil War Veterans.

HAD A LITTLE LOTTERY GAME

And the Jovial Old Soldiers Got Him to Exchange $4,400 for the Brick in a Japanned Box.

The Brooklyn police fear that when the news of it gets abroad the Get-Rich-Quick Wallingfords and Blackie Daws who are now operating in the New England "pie belt" or the alfalfa country will stampede for Brooklyn.

There had been an impression among the wiseacres of the metropolitan underworld that the ancient "lottery drawing" game had long ago died out in these parts and was now being worked only in the Middle West one-night stand circuits. But the theory that this venerable and painless method of separating the guileless from their money was being practiced only on the rural free delivery routes was upset yesterday by a sad story told to the police by Col. George P. Clark of 215 Quincy Street, Brooklyn.

Col. Clark gloomily exhibited a small, rough product of the Haverstraw brick kilns, which was not even gilded, for which he had paid $4,400. The police have the brick and are hunting for the men who have the $4,400.

Col. Clark is a well-known resident of the Bedford district. He is a civil war veteran, about 70 years old, and is connected with the R. G. Dun Company, which keeps an eye on business men. According to the melancholy tale told by the Colonel, he was walking in Bedford Avenue, near Quincy Street, on the morning of Dec. 4, when he was pleasantly saluted by a military-looking man, a stranger to him. On the following day, as if by chance, the Colonel and the stranger met again in the street. This time the stranger stopped and spoke to the Colonel.

"I guess you don't remember me," said he with an engaging smile.

Col. Clark politely admitted that such was the truth. Then the affable stranger told the Colonel that he, too, was a veteran and that he remembered him in the war. The Colonel was interested, and the two chatted for a time about war days. The stranger introduced himself as "Mr. Parks" of the firm of "Parks & Cadman." He was a Major by brevet and was overflowing with civil war reminiscences.

Both were bound downtown and they boarded a car together. On the way down the "Major" talked interestingly about himself, but failed to say precisely what line of business he and his firm were engaged in. Col. Clark was to learn that later.

The two met several times after that, the Colonel finding the other always agreeable and interesting. Last Monday "Major Park" confided to the Colonel that he had an appointment to meet the "President of the Yucatan Lottery Company" at the Hotel St. George, in Clark Street, Brooklyn Heights, and invited his new friend to go with him. He wanted the Colonel to meet the head of the lottery concern, who was Col. H. B. Wood, also a civil war veteran.

Col. Clark went with the "Major" to the hotel, where "Col. Wood," a jovial, honest-looking old soldier, was found occupying a suite of rooms. Col. Wood was glad to see Col. Clark—mighty glad to see him! He said so himself. It appeared that there was a drawing on for big prizes in the "Yucatan Lottery."

After a time Col. Clark was prevailed upon to draw from a little bundle of sealed envelopes "just for fun." Strange to relate, he at once drew a prize of $1,000. Col. Clark declined to take the order for the money. His friend Park insisted that he should have it, and there was a lot of talk.

Finally it was agreed that there should be a second drawing, "Park" insisting that he go in with Col. Clark to share equally the loss or the winnings, as it might turn out.

Col. Clark certainly was good at drawing. The second envelope he drew contained an order for no less than $10,000. The Colonel was congratulated on his luck, but he did not believe in lotteries and was not disposed to accept his share of the prize, $5,000. There was some argument, and it was finally agreed that Col. Clark should take the order for $10,000 and pay "Park" $4,400 in cash for his share.

Accompanied by "Park," Col. Clark went to the bank where he had an account and drew out $4,400 in money. It was not turned over to "Park," however. That honest soul thought it would not be right that he should get the cash until the order for $10,000 had been paid.

They returned to the hotel, where they had a talk with "Col. Wood." That sterling old patriot, who could so clearly and vividly recall Vicksburg and Appomattox, suggested that, as "Major Park" had perfect faith and trust in Col. Clark, the latter should put the cash in a box with the order for the $10,000.

"Col. Wood," who was a most accommodating chap, produced a box, a tin one, neatly japanned. There were two keys to the box. Col. Clark should keep one of them and "Major Park" the other, Col. Clark to take care of the box. This was agreed to, and the $4,400 in cash was placed in the box with the order for the ten-thousand-dollar "lottery prize."

While this was being done there was much talk, and "Col. Wood" moved about and around the table a great deal. The box was locked and handed over to Col. Clark. Then came the parting of the ways. Col. Clark went home with his treasure held tightly under his arm. "Col. Wood" and "Major Park" departed for parts as yet unknown to the police.

That night Col. Clark opened the japanned box. It contained a small red brick, as innocent of gilt as it was when it came from the kilns of Haverstraw. Yesterday the police sent out a general alarm for the capture of the swindlers. They have a notion that they may be the same pair that some years ago cultivated the acquaintance of "Honest John" French, who was an Alderman of the old City of Brooklyn, and by a similar game deprived him of $5,000.

DOLLAR A DAY BILL FOR PENSIONS PASSES

MANN HECKLES DEMOCRATS

Forces Them to Vote Against Their Own Bills as Amendments—Measure Extravagant, Says Fitzgerald.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—The House late to-night, by a vote of 229 to 92, passed the Sherwood Service Pension bill. The bill authorizes pensions ranging from $15 to $30 a month, according to length of service, to veterans who served ninety days or more, either in the Mexican or civil wars, and is generally known as the "Dollar-a-day" Pension bill.

Nine hours was spent in a fierce and stubborn struggle for party advantage. For two hours Mr. Mann of Illinois baited the Democrats with a series of amendments, which were bills that at one time or another had been introduced by Democratic members to satisfy the old soldiers in their districts. When they were pressed to a vote by Mr. Mann the Democrats uniformly refused to support the amendments, and member after member had to rise and apoligize for his apparent hostility to his own bill.

The Missouri delegation came in for a large share of Mr. Mann's attention when he offered fourteeen bills introduced by Missouri men to put the militia of that State that served in the civil war on a pensionable basis. The raid became so aggravating that word was sent to Speaker Clark, who came on the floor and demanded a division on one of the bills, and himself set the example to his colleagues of voting with the Republicans for the bill that Mr. Mann had offered as an amendment.

Mr. Mann succeeded in passing an amendment to extend the provision of the bill to soldiers of the Mexican war, this amendment being adopted by a vote of 159 to 45. The provision denying the benefits of the bill to soldiers who are in soldiers' homes was stricken out on a motion by Rauch, a Democrat of Indiana, the vote being 143 to 127.

The third section of the bill, which denied a service pension to those soldiers who enjoy an income of $1,000 a year, was stricken out on motion of Mr. Rucker of Colorado, a Democrat. He was cheered enthusiastically by the Republicans when he offered the amendment, and the applause was several times long and strong when various Democrats arose and supported Rucker's amendment.

Adds Millions to the Outlay.

Mr. Mann pointed out that it would cost more to carry out this section and decide whether an applicant had the amount of income that would debar him than it would to pay the pensions without the limitations. Members of the Pension Committee, however, said that the removal of the section would add many millions to the aggregate carried by the bill.

Victor Berger, the Socialist member from Wisconsin, created a diversion by offering his Old Age Pension bill as an amendment. This measure would call for an annual outlay of something like $500,000,000 and would put every man or woman on the pension roll on reaching the age of sixty. Mr. Berger was clearly out of order with his amendment, but he was allowed to make his speech in support of his proposition, in which he made an appeal for the great army of soldiers of toil as well as those of war. He frankly admitted that he had offered his bill as an amendment because he saw no other chance to get his measure before the House or the country.

Secretary of the Interior Fisher has estimated that ultimately the measure will involve $75,000,000 annual expenditure.

Members of the Pension Committee and the friends of the Sherwood bill hold that the aggregate of increase to the pension budget will not be in excess of $20,000,000. Representative John J. Fitzgerald of New York, Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, however, opposed the measure on the distinct ground that it would add fully $50,000,000 to the outgo for pensions.

"It would be a pleasant task," said Mr. Fitzgerald, "to pour out the public funds to satisfy every whim and at the same time abolish many oppressive taxes, but these things cannot be done if the expectations of the country are to be realized and if the Democratic Party is to keep its faith with the people. The enactment of this bill will sound the death knell of the hope of the Democratic Party successfully to reduce expenditures and to lower substantially tariff taxes. I am not indifferent to the influences urging this legislation, but the obligation to do that which is just to all of the people compels me to withhold my support from this bill."

Oscar Underwood, the Democratic leader, also voted against the bill.

Mr. Mann offered a number of amendments calculated to establish a series of payments for aged veterans who had suffered a loss of eyesight or hearing, but they were quickly voted down, as was also the Sulloway bill when offered by Mr. Fuller of Illinois. This bill passed the House last Winter unanimously, but it lacks the talismanic name of being a dollar-a-day bill, and was relegated to the wastebasket with a shout and a yell. Gen. Sherwood of Ohio, the venerable Chairman of the Pension Committee, was greeted with a long burst of applause as he arose to make the closing speech for his bill, and he summed up the arguments in an emphatic speech that ended in a long round of applause.

A movement has already got under way in the Senate to defeat the bill, with Senator Lodge in lead of the Republican opposition and Senator Bailey of the Democrats.

Into the River to Save a Dog.

Dr. Charles M. McKinlay of the Harlem Hospital staff jumped into the East River at 120th Street yesterday to rescue Fluffles, a Dalmatian hound, the mascot of Harlem Hospital. The doctor was transferring patients to the steamer Wickham to be taken to the Metropolitan Hospital.

Fluffles, while playing on the pier, fell overboard. Other efforts to rescue failing, Dr. McKinlay jumped in and, recovering Fluffles, swam to the raft of the Harbor Police, near by.

SAW HIS HOUSE TAKE FLIGHT.

Lombardi Started It When He Struck a Match in the Cellar.

Vincenzo Lombardi, a shoemaker, moved into a one-story frame house at 129 Bleecker Street, Jersey City Heights, yesterday, intending to open up a shoe-repairing shop in the house to-day. Last night while his daughter Angelina was getting supper for him Lombardi detected the odor of gas, and traced it to the cellar of the house. He struck a match, and the house was blown into the street.

The police and firemen were called out and calls sent in for ambulances from Christ and City Hospitals, Jersey City. The daughter was blown out of the house to the opposite side of the street from where the house once stood. She escaped unhurt. Lombardi remained in the cellar and witnessed the flight of his home. He, too, came through without so much as a scratch.

PAPAMICHALOPOULIS IS HERE

Ex-Greek Minister with Long-Distance Name Arrives on the Themistocles.

M. Papamichalopoulis, formerly a minister in the Cabinet of King George of Greece, arrived here yesterday on the Greek liner Themistocles, from Piraeus. He comes to study the conditions of Greeks resident in the United States, and expects to stay in the country about two years. His headquarters will be in this city.

The Themistocles caused a mild sensation in shipping circles by reporting a voyage that was sunshiny and pleasant all the way from Piraeus to Sandy Hook. Other liners have reported the worst weather encountered on the Atlantic in many a day, but the Themistocles steered clear of it all, according to her log.

GLOBE SQUARE

Authorized by the Aldermen to Surround the Newspaper Downtown.

Mayor Gaynor signed yesterday the ordinance passed by the Aldermen designating the two blocks in Dey Street adjacent to The Globe's new building as "Globe Square."

The ordinance was introduced by Alderman William Drescher of the First District. Borough President McAneny will have signs put up designating the new square.

There are now three traffic centres in the city named after newspapers—Times Square, Herald Square, and Globe Square.

Motor Boat Isn't a Motor Boat When It's Not Running, He Says.

Special to The New York Times.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., Dec. 12.—Ex-Justice of ths Peace George F. Stackpole was fined $10 in Justice Hildreth's court yesterday for having shot his Thanksgiving goose from a motor boat.

He interposed the novel defense that his engine was not running at the time, so that his boat was not really a motor boat at that moment in the full sense of the word.

MAINE NOT WARNED, HE SAYS

Admiral Wainwright, Executive Officer, Had No Word from Any Source.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Emphatic disclaimers were made to-day at the State, War, and Navy Departments of the possession of any information confirmatory of the statement of ex-Consul A. C. Brice that he was warned of the approaching destruction of the Maine two days in advance by a Cuban sympathizer in Matanzas.

Admiral Wainwright, who was executive officer of the Maine when the ship was destroyed, also says that no warning reached him. It is the opinion of officials that only through a death-bed confession, if at all, will the secret be disclosed.

DR. ELIOT RECOVERING.

Considerable Improvement in His Condition Shown Yesterday.

COLOMBO, Dec. 12.—Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard University, is recovering from his operation for appendicitis.

Considerable improvement has been noted in the last twenty-four hours.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 12.—"Encouraging day" was the brief but reassuring cablegram received to-night in regard to the condition of President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot of Harvard University, upon whom an operation for appendicitis was performed last week at Kandy, Ceylon.

KEEPS POSTMASTER MORGAN

His Nomination Sent to the Senate by the President.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—President Taft to-day decided to reappoint Postmaster Edward M. Morgan at New York for another term. Mr. Morgan's nomination went to the Senate this afternoon.

Edward M. Morgan was appointed Postmaster of New York by President Roosevelt on Aug. 14, 1907, to succeed William R. Willcox, who resigned to become head of the Public Service Commission.

Postmaster Morgan is in his sixty-first year, and has been in the employ of the Government since 1873. At the age of 16 he became a carrier in New York, and now bears the distinction of being the only Postmaster of New York who rose to that place from the bottom. As a watchman, stamp clerk, Superintendent of various stations, Superintendent of the City Delivery, and Assistant Postmaster, he served under five successive Postmasters, beginning with Thomas L. James.

FIGHTING LABOR UNIONS.

Saxon Government Wants More Stringent Laws Regarding Strikes.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 12.—In the Saxon Parliament to-day the Government gave notice of its intention to ask the Reichstag to pass more stringent laws in regard to strike picketing.

Saxony seeks the enactment of laws providing for a greater measure of protection for men willing to work during strikes and heavier penalties for labor union officials who interfere with them.

Tobacco Trust Transfers Warehouses.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Dec. 12.—In furtherance of the plan of reorganization under the Supreme Court's decision, the American Tobacco Company has transferred its three mammoth tobacco warehouses located here to the Liggett & Myers Company of St. Louis. The warehouses are the largest in the South.

GERMANS SEIZE PEACE MEETING

Break Up Carnegie Hall Rally for Arbitration Treaties by Organized Shouting.

LED BY GUEST ON STAGE

CARNEGIE LOOKS ON SADLY

Rabbi Wise Mistakenly Attempts to Turn the Storm by Talking of the Irish and Home Rule.

A mass meeting of citizens in Carnegie Hall last night under the auspices of the Citizens' National Committee, Joseph H. Choate, Chairman, to support the ratification of the arbitration treaties with Great Britain and France was broken up by German sympathizers scattered in every part of the house, but chiefly in the top gallery, before half the programme had been carried out.

Lawyer Alphonse G. Koelble, head of the German-American Citizens' League of New York, led the disturbers from the platform. He was threatened with expulsion fifty times by indignant citizens on the stage, but, backed by hundreds in the great audience, he exhibited his seat coupon and practically dared any one to put him out. He shouted that the whole arbitration movement in which this country, Great Britain, and France were concerned was aimed at Germany, and he, for one, did not intend to stand for it.

Every word that he uttered was taken up in various parts of the house and cheered to the echo. From the moment the disturbance began, soon after 9 o'clock, until Chairman Choate was forced to dismiss the audience in an uproar which made his voice inaudible more than ten feet away, confusion reigned in every part of the house. The police were caught unawares. Never before, so far as any present could recall, did a peace meeting on so large a scale actually break up in a row, and few policemen were on hand at any time of the meeting. Those present were utterly powerless.

Carnegie Looks On Sadly.

Andrew Carnegie, world leader of the peace movement, under whose immediate direction last night's meeting was attempted, was a sad-faced witness of it all. He was to have been one of the chief speakers. His time never came. When the disturbance began he feebly tried to wave it down, but saw himself powerless. He sank back into his seat, murmuring to himself, and gave the meeting into other hands.

The demonstration was most unexpected. The organizers of the meeting had no inkling that a person hostile to the peace treaties was in the building until Mr. Koelble, who had a seat on the stage as an invited guest, came to the front of the platform unannounced. Up to that time every mention of fraternity among nations had been loudly cheered, apparently from every part of the house.

Mr. Koelble himself is the mildest appearing of men. He is of medium height, slender, with a long mustache, trained upward at the ends, suggesting that of the Kaiser, and a bald head, except for a carefully combed fringe behind. Last night he wore a frock coat, a light waistcoat, and pearl gray trousers. His manner and voice were as gentle as those of a dove. But in spite of his meekness the storm in the galleries obeyed every movement of his hand and re-echoed his every tone.

The meeting had opened at 8:15 o'clock with every seat occupied. A few late comers who could not find seats clustered about the doors. Those admitted to the parquet floor and to the two tiers of boxes had to show tickets. The galleries were unreserved and were filled early.

Mr. Choate opened the meeting with a stirring speech on the importance of the treaties as an assurance against such a war as the civil war had been. He had been followed by Col. Henry Watterson of Louisville, whose eloquent support of the treaties was not only many times applauded in its delivery but greeted at its close by a great demonstration of approval.

What Started It.

President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University rose when quiet was restored, and after a brief address offered a declaration which was intended to crystallize a great and harmonious demonstration for world-wide peace, but which really brought forth the demons of uproar and disturbance. It read:

> This mass meeting of citizens of New York, assembled in Carnegie Hall on Dec. 12, 1911, records its emphatic approval of the treaties of general arbitration proposed to be entered into between the United States and Great Britain and France, respectively, as signed at Washington on Aug. 3, 1911, and transmitted to the United States Senate by the President with the urgent recommendation that they be ratified.
> We share the feelings of satisfaction and enthusiasm with which these treaties have been hailed by the Governments and the people of Great Britain and of France. We believe that an overwhelming majority of the American people share these feelings, and look forward with confident hope to the day when the judicial settlement of international disputes will be as usual and as normal a mode of procedure as is the judicial settlement of individual claims and differences. We are jealous of the reputation of the United States as a leader and example in the movement to substitute international judicial process for public war; and we wish to see the acceptance and ratification of these treaties placed to our Nation's credit by the public opinion of the world as promptly as possible.
> We earnestly request the Senate to consider and ratify these treaties at the earliest practicable moment. We urge the Senators from the State of New York to give the fullest possible effect to what we believe to be the substantially unanimous opinion of the citizens of the State in favor of these treaties.
> We authorize and request the Chairman of this meeting to transmit a copy of this declaration to the Senate and to the Senators from the State of New York individually.

Mr. Koelble Appears Softly.

Mr. Koelble, who had a seat at the rear of the stage, came forward while President Butler was reading. No one paid much attention to him. Most of those who noticed him at all simply concluded that he was one of those taking part in the programme, and perhaps had been selected to second Dr. Butler's motion.

Dr. Butler's motion was greeted with prolonged cheering, hundreds standing and waving approval with their hats or their handkerchiefs.

"Mr. Chairman," began Mr. Koelble when the audience, seeing him about to speak, paused in applause to hear him, expecting evidently to break forth anew in a moment or two, "I wish to offer as a substitute for the declaration offered by Dr. Butler this motion, that this meeting approve the resolution already adopted by the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations in opposition to the treaties with Great Britain and France, such treaties being breeders of war."

Citizens on the stage and everywhere in the audience were stunned. Even Mr. Choate, usually quick-witted, seemed dumbfounded. But before he or any one else had a moment in which to analyze the situation there came a burst of cheers from the galleries, and from many groups of persons on the main floor.

No one even then could tell just what it meant, for Mr. Koelble had spoken so meekly that few had caught all he said. But as cheer after cheer came from the galleries, it was realized that with an audacity which no one in the peace movement had foreseen this German-American citizen had dared to ask the meeting to do exactly the opposite to what it had been assembled to do. An even bigger surprise was caused apparently by the evident fact that the hall was packed with hundreds of those in sympathy with Mr. Koelble and, leather-lunged, had determined that no more arbitration speeches should be delieverd, and that the Butler resolution should never pass except in such an uproar of disapproval as would rob it of its force and effect.

Mr. Choate Silenced.

Mr. Choate started to say something, but his voice was drowned, and he stood facing his audience, mute and undecided. Dr. Butler glared at the man who had dared to offer the counter resolution, and seemed unable to find words to express his feelings. Mr. Carnegie, who had been seated at the post of honor on Mr. Choate's right, rose, reached for Mr. Choate's coattails as if to make a suggestion, but thought better of it and sank back into his seat.

All this time the disturbers in the galleries and on the main floor, too, were screaming at the tops of their voices:

"How about Germany? How about Germany? It's all intended as a blow at Germany."

These cries were not understood in the uproar by many, and not even then did any one on the stage know who Mr. Koelble was, while few in the audience seemed to know except those who had so vociferously supported him. Now, however, many clustered about the man and demanded to know who he was and what he meant by thus disturbing the meeting.

"Never mind who I am," he cried, "let me speak a moment, and I will quiet this audience."

No one took him at his suggestion, but later all were apparently glad to have him command silence among his adherents. The entire house was now on its feet, and women, standing on their chairs, were shouting in shrill voices to the other shouters to keep quiet.

To reporters who now gathered around Mr. Koelble he handed out his professional card, saying he was a German-American; that the people who organized the meeting were a "lot of dubs," who were trying "to knife" Germany, and he did not intend to stand by idly and see it done.

Again Mr. Choate tried to make himself heard, but could not, and gave it up. Dr. Butler also tried and had to stop, and Col. Watterson rushed here and there making suggestions to both Mr. Choate and Dr. Butler and to Mr. Carnegie as to what should be done. No one, however, did anything until a man with a fog-horn voice, who said he was John I. D. Bristol, an insurance agent, threw up his hand and demanded to be heard.

He could be heard but a minute. The first words of his first sentence were understood to be on the side of the peace treaties, against Mr. Koelble, and against his substitute resolution, and Mr. Bristol, for all his bog voice, never got any further. The middle of his sentence went down in an avalanche of hisses and howls that would have buried a chorus of steam whistles.

Rabbi Wise Takes a Hand.

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of the Free Synagogue was a late comer to the meeting, but was invited to a front seat on the stage. He was selected, because of his physique and the strength and reach of his voice, to talk to the audience, in the hope of bringing about a better understanding. Before beginning to speak, however, he rushed over to Koelble, who was surrounded by an angry group of peace advocates, and shouted at him:

"You ruffian, you disturber of the peace, you ought to be put out."

This was gentle language, however, compared with what others said to Koelble.

"Let me speak," said Koelble while the excitement surged about him, "and I can quiet them," referring to the galleries, which were making excelelnt progress against Rabbi Wise's words of pacification and denunciation.

"I suppose you can," cried Dr. Butler angrily. "You organized them and brought them here."

At one time not less than half a dozen husky young men had hold of Koelble, ready to pitch him out if any one would dare to give the word. But no one seemed willing to take that responsibility, and several, including Frederic R. Coudert, who was also to speak, demanded to know how he got to the meeting at all.

"Show your coupon," they shouted, and Koelble, as mild as a May morning, drew his coupon, entitling him to a seat on the stage, from his right-hand trousers pocket. Those about to man-handle him were surprised at this turn, and fell back for the moment, hoping Rabbi Wise might be making some headway.

But Rabbi Wise wasn't. The excitement had been so intense and the uproar so great that he had mistaken the cue, given in the calls from the galleries, as to the cause of the row. He thought the disturbers were Irish, and began to plead with them as a believer in home rule for Ireland and in the name of the Pope. This was only fuel to the flame, and every time he mentioned Pope, Ireland, England, treaty, or Taft, there stormed back the cry:

"How about Germany! How about Germany!"

Still Rabbi Wise, to whom no one on the stage seemed to have the presence of mind to repeat the words which had been lost to him in the babel of sounds, continued to talk about the Irish and home rule, switching off to say that it was nothing against arbitration that Italy, a Christian nation, was now fighting Turkey, a non-Christian nation.

Finally, in something like disgust, he said: "As a Jew and as a teacher of the people, this is the first time I have ever been refused a hearing by an American audience."

Not My Row, Says Koelble.

Koelble, to all who spoke to him about it, said he did not know who the people were in the galleries and in the audience who were supporting him, but he was told flatly and plainly that this was not true.

To these and others who sought from him an explanation of the disturbance, he said, pointing to the letter PAX in electric capitals at the back of the stage, surrounded by immense peace flags:

"That is the cause of the trouble. This whole scheme is an attack on Germany, the United States, Great Britain, and France combining against Germany, which is my fatherland and the fatherland of those in the audience who do not want these treaties signed, and are content to let the Senate pass on the matter."

Rabbi Wise having grown hoarse and quit, there was no one left who would volunteer to be howled down, and at this moment it looked as if nothing more would be done.

Again the meek Koelble came to the front, and this time those who had refused before to let him speak turned to him hopefully as the only man who could restore peace.

Koelble lifted up his hand toward the galleries. Almost magically there was a hush, and he said in a voice almost low, but heard up to the ceiling beams:

"I wish every one to be quiet, so that the meeting can proceed, and those who have yet to speak can speak without interruption."

One little burst of appreciative applause came in response to this, and the house immediately became as quiet as a church.

Choate Winds It Up.

Mr. Choate, who had long permitted things to go their own way, as there seemed no other course, now rose and said:

"Those who have tried to break up this meeting have done more for the cause of peace and for the furtherance of the ratification of these arbitration treaties than they could ever have done by staying away or remaining quiet."

"That's not so," shouted scores of voices, and there were hisses from many parts of the room. But he was allowed to continue.

"All in favor of the declaration offered by Dr. Butler calling on the Senate to ratify the arbitration treaties," he said, "will please say 'Aye!'"

There was a burst of "ayes," and hundreds jumped to their feet and cheered, while a section of the audience hissed and howled.

"The declaration is unanimously carried," announced Mr. Choate.

"No, no!" cried the galleries and many in the audience. "That resolution has never been carried."

Mr. Choate was deaf to the shouts and protests, and declared the meeting adjourned, though neither Mr. Carnegie, Mr. Coundert, nor Samuel J. Elder had spoken.

All through the disturbance Mr. Carnegie's face was a study. He looked deeply pained and surprised. Evidently he had been shocked by the turn his great meeting had taken, and felt the situation deeply. Friends crowded about him and expressed their indignation and disgust.

"It is horrible," they said, to him, but he only shook his head, and declined to make any comment.

When asked if he wished to comment on the meeting publicly, Mr. Carnegie again shook his head, saying:

"No, no, nothing."

What Watterson Said.

Col. Watterson, in the only speech delivered, got in a eulogy of Andrew Carnegie.

"All honor to him!" cried the Colonel. "But for him we would not be here tonight. It should be of good augury to you, as it is both an inspiration and a happiness to me, that the Scotch-American laddie of 76, whose heart, still warming to the tartan beats loyal to the flag, has been spared to set on foot a world-movement toward the brotherhood of man, without which the very religion we profess must perish from the earth and vanish like ashes of dead-sea fruit."

Col. Watterson admitted that although he favored the treaties he had some prejudices.

"I am still so recalcitrant that I don't want to weep upon John Bull's bosom until he sheds as many tears at Mount Vernon as we at Stratford-on-Avon. I even counsel the ladies of my family to beat the horrid Custom House people down about the docks by getting their articles of "bigotry and virtue," not to say their wearing apparel, in upper Fifth Avenue instead of in the Rue de la Paix.

"But these are merely figures of speech—international pleasantries—not designed to stir up strife or to question a better understanding between ourselves and the English and the French, nor to hesitate over the purpose or the phraseology of the arbitration treaties.

"I consider them sound—eminently so. Wise and far-reaching—wholly so. Practical, possible—decidedly so. But if they were more dreamlike, mere pipe dreams, as a certain person would say, simply setting the vane in the line of the wind, I would still support them."

The notion that war made for manly development and was indispensable to the virility of nations, the Colonel said, was entertained in these days merely by the unknowing and the unthinking. He recalled as illustrative of the vanity of war and warriors the verse on Napoleon:

He fought and half the world was his,
He died without a rood his own,
And borrowed of his enemies
Six feet of ground to lie upon.

The "Brainstorms of Nations."

"The world moves apace," Col. Watterson continued. "After wireless telegraphy, anything seems possible. I am a Methodist in the conceit that man is steadily going on from grace to grace toward perfection, a Darwinian in believing that the road he travels is évolution.

"The idiosyncrasy of the nineteenth century was liberty. Measurably the world has it. The idiosyncrasy of the twentieth century is commerce. Age after age ambitious men struggled for a footing, for land, for territory. Shall the struggle for markets be as costly and as bloody?

"There are brainstorms of nations no less than of persons. What else was the war scare in England a year or two ago, provoked not by German aggression, but by German competition? At one time the average Englishman felt so uncertain in his home that he flocked with other average Englishmen to the playhouse to listen to a lot of maudlin mimicry and be reassured. A dose or two of timely arbitration, I think, would have done the work much better, if not much quicker.

"I yield to no man in my devotion to tri-partite system of Government with its admirable checks and balances. These will always adjust themselves, so that I am in no wise afraid either of the Executive, the Congress, or the court. I was not afraid of the Executive even during the period when the White House was occupied by a strenuous gentleman sometimes described as a man-on-horseback, who contemplated the Diazification of the Presidency and the Mexicanization of the Republic. Ours is a Government of public opinion, and I still believe in the virtue and intelligence of the people.

"And so, dear friends, let us do what we may to put out the fires of hate and to make war at least unfashionable; to establish justice, and advance on peace. At their very least, these arbitration treaties can do no harm. Their confirmation by the Senate will not shorten the height of the sincere and able Senator from Georgia by the fraction of an inch, nor loosen a button upon the expanding waistband of the sincere and able Senator from Massachusetts. It is conceivable that even the upper House of Congress might grow so great as to be good—for nothing. I am far from thinking so. Yet I cannot deny that it is under such suspicion that a change in the method of electing its members is under very serious contemplation.

"Meanwhile let the people, in this particular instance, bestir themselves. There is no voice in this audience, however weak, which is not still strong enough to reach as far as Washington. If peace on earth, good will to men, was good for Thanksgiving; if peace on earth, good will to men, will be good for Christmas; if it be good here at home among ourselves—why not abroad among all the sons of men and the nations of the earth?"

Among those who organized the meeting were Dr. Lyman Abbott, Dr. Felix Adler, August Belmont, William S. Bennet, Arthur Brisbane, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Andrew Carnegie, Henry Clews, Frederic R. Coudert, John D. Crimmins, R. Fulton Cutting, Chauncey M. Depew, William C. Demorest, Dr. John H. Finley, John Franklin Fort, E. H. Gary, Gen. F. D. Grant, Bishop David H. HIGH RATES PAID FOR SHORT HAULS

INQUIRY BY COMMERCE BOARD

Steel Trust's Lease of Bessemer Lines Under Investigation by Stanley Committee.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—On the ground that the Durham & Southern Railroad, owned by B. N. and J. B. Duke of the American Tobacco Company, receives for a twenty-mile haul 40 per cent. of the Seaboard Air Line's division of through freight business, the latter railroad will be cited before the Inter-State Commerce Commission to show cause why its rates into and out of Durham, N. C., should not be reduced.

The Norfolk & Western also will be cited to show why its rates on coal into Durham should not be lowered. The Norfolk & Western, it is charged, allows 62 cents a ton to the Durham & South Carolina Railroad, a lumber road, for a haul of 1 mile, while it receives only 77 cents a ton for a haul of 116 miles.

The Inter-State Commerce Commission, through Commissioner Lane, charges that the Seaboard Air Line "bought" the freight business of the American Tobacco Company by allowing its traffic to be taken away from it at one point by a road under a management allied with the Tobacco concern.

Commissioner Lane says:

"If there is $1 over and above the actual cost of transportation in the 40 per cent. division which the Durham & Southern gets it goes into the pockets of the Dukes. It is not a rebate given to the American Tobacco Company, but confessedly is an advantage growing out of the relation between the Dukes and the Tobacco interests, for if the Dukes did not have the freight to route the traffic manager of the Seaboard says that no such arrangement would have been made."

A case somewhat similar is that of the Bessemer & Lake Erie Railroad, 8½ miles long, and the Pittsburgh, Bessemer & Lake Erie, more than 200 miles long, which was again discussed at to-day's session of the House Steel Trust Investigating Committee. The short line road is owned absolutely by the United States Steel Corporation, which also owns 51 per cent. of the stock of the longer road.

F. C. Baird, general freight agent of the short line, was a witness. Chairman Stanley brought out that the shorter road's rental of the longer one netted the latter's stockholders about 3 per cent. a year profits, while the shorter road paid annual dividends of 334 per cent.

"So the Steel Corporation leased the long road to the short road for a term of something like 999 years?" asked Chairman Stanley.

"I don't know the details of the lease," Mr. Baird replied.

"I understand," said Mr. Stanley, "that the minority stockholders of the leased road get $224,000 interest on their holdings each year?"

"I guess that's about right."

"What becomes of the remainder of about $3,700,000 annually made by this road?"

"It has gone mainly into reconstruction of the whole system. More than $8,000,000 has been spent on it."

"Yes, but it appears that the 49 per cent. of independent stockholders will go on 999 years getting only 3 per cent."

"I don't know anything about that."

Mr. Baird contended that the longer road "would have been two streaks of rust" but for this lease, as it was not paying before.

Mr. Stanley suggested that the Steel Corporation, however, before the transformation took pains to acquire 51 per cent. of that stock.

NO REFUND FOR COMMUTERS

If They Forget Their Tickets and Pay the Regular Fare.

ALBANY, Dec. 12.—A railroad company cannot be required to refund cash fares paid by the holder of a commutation ticket when such person fails to present his ticket for passage, according to a ruling of the Public Service Commission in an opinion written by Commissioner Decker.

The decision was made on complaint of J. H. Crosman of New York, who said that at times he had left his New York, New Haven & Hartford commutation ticket at home, had taken a receipt from the conductor for cash pare paid, and that upon subsequent presentation of the train receipt at a ticket office refund was refused.

The commission declares that the contract entered into by the purchaser of a commutation ticket provides that, in consideration of the reduced fare, the ticket shall be presented at time of passage.

This ruling does not apply to excess fare receipts or round-trip tickets used one way, which are redeemable, says the commission.

Taft to Speak Here for Peace Treaties.

President Taft will speak on "The Pending Arbitration Treaties" at the second dinner of the Economic Club next Tuesday evening, at the Hotel Astor. The President will speak for about an hour.

a time. Rusia denies that right under Article X., which expressly reserves Russia's sovereign rights in perpetuity over Russian natives. In defending this right they have asserted that Article I. has been violated by the United States in that Mongolian subjects of the Czar are excluded from the United States. The feeling here, however, is that the reservation in Article X. asserting the continued effectiveness of Russian citizenship laws also leave our laws intact on the subject of naturalization. A Mongolian wishing merely to travel in this country would, of course, be permitted to do so.

The Government of the United States has invariably contended for the individual's right of expatriation, and Congress in 1868 declared expatriation to be "a natural and inherent right of all people, indispensible to the enjoyment of the rights of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." This right insofar as the United States is concerned has been assented to by many nations.

The United States has carried at times its policy of acquiescing in local laws to a great length. Thus in the case of a foreign-born child of American parents temporarily living abroad, the United States held that it was not competent for this Government to interfere when the country in which the child was born claimed him as a citizen. Specific direction was given forbidding the issue of passports to children born of American parents in Curacao.

Negotiations with the North German Federation, on the other hand, resulted in a treaty provision that a German-born, naturalized American after five years continuous residence in the United States became entitled to all the privileges of a native-born American. The same thing is true in regard to Austria in the convention of 1870. The United States follows this policy absolutely in regard to expatriated Americans. It has been held that if he acquires a foreign allegiance he ceases as completely to be an American citizen as if he had never seen our shores.

CHURCHES TO PROTEST.

Thirty-one Denominations Will Demand Treaty's Abrogation.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Dec. 12.—The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ, embracing thirty-one denominations of Protestant Evangelical denominations in America, to-day took part in the movement to have the treaty with Russia abrogated.

"Russia's attitude toward American passports will be acted upon," the Rev. Dr. Charles C. Macfarland of New York, Secretary of the Social Service Commission of the federation, said. "It is likely that a resolution deploring Russia's attitude and calling for the prompt enforcement or abrogation of the treaty obligations will be passed."

Every big city in the country will be represented at the sessions this week. The agitation follows mass meetings held the past few days, at which the abrogation of the treaty has been urged.

A RUSSIAN BACKDOWN.

Powers' Protest Results in Abandonment of White Sea Claim.

ARCHANGEL, Dec. 12.—Russia has abandoned her claim to introduce a twelve-mile limit in the waters of the White Sea, inside of which it was proposed to forbid fishing by vessels belonging to other nations.

This decision has been reached in consequence of protests made by the United States, Great Britain, Germany, Japan, Denmark, Norway, and Sweden. A bill was introduced in the Duma early in the year with the object of extending the limit of territorial waters from three to twelve miles.

Russian cruisers captured several English trawlers which were fishing within twelve miles of the mouth of the White Sea at the beginning of the year, and as a result all the powers interested made representations at St. Petersburg.

ASSAILS VARDAMAN AS UNFIT FOR SENATE

Senator Percy Challenges His Successful Opponent to Prove Charges of Election Fraud.

ALSO DENOUNCES HEARST

Calls Him a Statesman Without a Record and a Mendacious Muckraker Without a Peer.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—In one of the most scathing speeches recently heard in the Senate, Mr. Percy of Mississippi this afternoon denounced ex-Gov. James K. Vardaman of that State, who won the primary contest last Fall to succeed Mr. Percy in the Senate. After the primaries Mr. Percy announced that, though his term still has two years to run, he would resign to give immediate force to the popular choice. But since then charges of embezzlement have been made against the ex-Governor by the present Attorney General of Mississippi, and Mr. Percy to-day announced that, rather than assume the responsibility for admitting to the Senate a man so notoriously unworthy as Mr. Vardaman, he would continue to hold his seat until 1913.

Mr. Percy's account of the incoming Senator—who as Democratic nominee in Mississippi is certain of election when the Legislature meets in January—kept a full attendance on both sides of the aisle during the hour of his speech. In attacking Vardaman, Mr. Percy also drew in the name of William Randolph Hearst, and stated that the New Yorker had been morally responsible before the country for the shots that killed President McKinley. This criticism came up in his discussion of an article in The Cosmopolitan Magazine, which is a Hearst publication, in which Mr. Percy's election was attributed to fraud.

"I seem to have been attacked by this magazine because I was not elected by a primary," said the Mississippian, "but Mr. Hearst in Congress never supported any progressive legislation. As a statesman he was without a record, as a mendacious muckraker he is without a peer.

"This man Vardaman," said Mr. Percy, "at the opening of the campaign was known to the people for his foulness of speech. He is perverted morally and mentally deficient. He is a common demagogue, a coarse vulgarian. It was his avid, gloating indorsement of the lies published in this magazine that determined me in justice to the Legislature that elected me, and to myself, to serve out the end of my term.

"In a chancery court in Mississippi are now charges on file by the Attorney General, a man who is no partisan of mine, charging embezzlement of trust funds in his custody as Governor. Those charges, if proved, would disqualify him by the laws of Mississippi to hold office; they ought to disqualify him here. Since his latest attacks on me, by invitation, challenge, and taunts I have tried to get him to join the debate face to face, but so far I have seen only the back of my distinguished opponent.

"I have used harsh terms, but under great provocation. He controls the Mississippi Legislature overwhelmingly, and if he believes his charges let him have an investigation before it. But if that investigation is begun, let it be wide enough to include also his fitness for this office. His character is such that I cannot take the responsibility of inducting him into office here by resigning the place I hold. The charge I make against him is strong. As Lamar said, it is such that no good man would deserve it; no brave man would wear it."

Mr. Percy again challenged Vardaman or the Mississippi Legislature to an investigation.

SLANDERER, CRIES VARDAMAN.

Percy Also an "Arrogant Little Creature," Says Senator-Elect.

Special to The New York Times.

JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 12.—When asked for a statement to-night regarding United States Senator Percy's speech in the Senate to-day, ex-Gov. Vardaman said:

"I have only read short extracts from his speech; it is both stupid and mendacious. His reference to the suit instituted against me under the direction of Gov. Noel is vicious and false. Every dollar of money committed to me, and every trust imposed upon me as Governor was properly accounted for and sacredly performed, and the man who intimates to the contrary becomes at once a malicious slanderer.

"As to the challenge, I join with him in a request to the United States Senate to investigate his title to the seat he now occupies. I have this to say, the seat does not belong to me of right. There is no issue between Percy and me whatever; it is rather between Percy and the people of Mississippi.

"Really, every idea of propriety and sense of decency suggests to Mr. Percy that he is not wanted by the people of Mississippi in the place he now holds. The magazine article which he uses as an excuse for his decision not to resign does not contain anything that was not discussed in the press of Mississippi for eighteen months prior to the election held on the first day of August last.

"The truth about the matter is, this arrogant little creature did not intend to resign when he stated on Aug. 4 that he might. He has been beating around for some excuse to take back what he said on that occasion. He likes the job he has. It is the first office of importance he ever held, and he knows it will be the last, and he is going to hold on to it just as long as the naked letter of the law will permit him.

"Personally I am not surprised at his action.

"As to whether or not the Legislature of Mississippi will join with him in the request to have the Senate investigate the matter I am not prepared to say."

the Ohio law did not cover the selection of delegates at large by primaries, and there was no legal method of arranging such a primary. Vorys was supported by Gen. Powell Clayton, the National Committeeman from Arkansas. He argued that the adoption of the Borah substitute would throw the Arkansas primaries into the hands of the Democrats, who would control the selection of the delegates to the Republican National Convention.

Despite the repeated declaration by Senator Borah that his provision was purely permissive and did not compel any State Committee to adopt the primary system for selecting delegates at large, the opposition hung to the argument that it would do just that thing. Former Senator Nathan B. Scott of West Virginia turned on a pathetic plea for the "good old methods that have carried us to victory so many times."

Defeated by 44 to 7 Votes.

Senator Borah urged vigorously that the Republican Party would be compelled to face this primary question either at primaries of their own, as he advoated, or later at the election. He argued that it would be far better for the party to meet it at primaries where it could be settled within the party. But he was alone in his argument, and the vote was overwhelming against him, being 44 to 7.

With that vote the business of the meeting was ended, and after the authorization of the committee to co-operate with a committee from the National League of Republican Clubs, adjournment was had.

The Taft men immediately began to assert that they had won a great victory because they had obtained everything that they desired. But their victory did not suffice to stop the flow of Roosevelt talk that has been so pronounced throughout the whole gathering of the National Committee. One of the most distinguished members of the National Committee, who had voted all through with the Taft forces, grabbed his hat upon adjournment and hustled down to the street. There he paused long enough to say:

"If Roosevelt keeps still he will be nominated. The thing for him to do is to keep still, and I am going over to New York to tell him so."

Around the lobbies of the hotel it was the frequent expression of National Committeemen that if Col. Roosevelt were but to turn over his hand he could disrupt the Taft organization. But almost invariably it was added:

"But he won't turn his hand."

Some National Committeemen to-day expressed surprise that the talk of Roosevelt here should have attracted the attention that it has. They said it was well known in their States, and that the country is full of Roosevelt sentiment.

"If you were to see the letters I get," said one of them, "you would begin to get some idea of how strong it is."

A curious explanation of this Roosevelt talk was put forth in the afternoon by a National committeeman, who has voted with the Taft men all along. It was that the Roosevelt talk had been started by Taft men for the purpose of killing off the La Follette boom. The La Follette talk has simply faded away since the National committee came to town, and whether any genuine Taft men were concerned in spreading the Roosevelt talk or not that talk has surely put the La Follette boom out of business. Senator Bourne, the chief La Follette boomer, was declaring as loudly as ever this afternoon, however, that the La Follette candidacy would sweep the country pretty soon.

The anti-Taft men will be quite satisfied to have the Roosevelt talk die away to some extent. They don't want to push it too far just now, for they are afraid that they might force a statement from Col. Roosevelt that would take him definitely out of consideration as a possibility. But they will proceed to emphasize their points of dissatisfaction with the President.

They were prompt this afternoon to put their own construction on the refusal of the Taft forces in the National committee to adopt the Borah provision permitting State committees to arrange primaries for the election of delegates.

One prominent anti-Taft man scoffed at the argument of the Southern committeemen.

"He says the Democrats would control their primaries," this man exclaimed about Gen. Clayton's argument. "He means he's afraid to let the people control them. He knows that primaries would take the control from the Postmasters, and that is what he wants to prevent. That's the way in all those Southern States. They don't want any more Republicans down there. So long as they have enough to fill the offices and man the machine that is all they are after."

Senator Borah declared that the action of the committee would be taken as a formal pronunciamento against primaries, and that it could not mean anything else. Walter Brown gave out a statement reiterating his belief that a way could have been found for a legal election by primaries of the delegates at large from Ohio. He said:

"Ohio Republicans who are interested chiefly in party success at the polls—who are more concerned about elections than about nominations—will regret that the National Committee has seen fit to deny to State Committees the option to provide for the selection of delegates at large by primaries. Undoubtedly forty-two out of a total of forty-eight National delegates will be elected at district primaries under the law of Ohio as it now stands. If the six delegates at large could also be elected by direct vote, and I believe that a method of so doing, properly safeguarded, could be worked out, the State Convention to nominate a State ticket could be held after the National Convention, and in any event the Presidential issue could be eliminated from the deliberations of the State Convention, with obvious advantage to party nominees upon the State ticket."

Hoosier Chairman Against Taft.

While the National Committee has been at work here there have been some significant meetings of others going on in the same hotel, attended by State Chairmen. One of the results of these meetings was made public this afternoon in the issuance of a statement by Edwin M. Lee, Chairman of the Indiana Republican State Committee, in which he flatly declares that Mr. Taft cannot carry Indiana again.

Lee was a Beveridge man, and managed Senator Beveridge's losing campaign for re-election last year. Recently he was a candidate for the United States Marshalship, to which he was not appointed. The Beveridge faction in Indiana has been losing its grip on the State machinery recently, and the Hemenway-Watson-Fairbanks old guard have been regaining control. Also they have been obtaining patronage recognition at the White House. These facts may have some bearing upon the attitude of Mr. Lee. Here is his statement:

"Mr. Taft cannot carry Indiana. If he is the Republican nominee our fight is lost before a gun is fired. As one of his original friends who labored for him day and night, I have been driven to this knowledge with extreme reluctance.

"I had hoped he would be the man to lead us next year, and I have personally declared for him three separate times. I have spent the last eight months traveling over Indiana; have visited each county in the State, and some counties many times.

"For a time it looked as if we might pull Mr. Taft through, and I have fostered favorable sentiment to him wherever I could, because I am his personal friend, and it seemed logical and good party policy that he should succeed himself. From the first, however, I found no earnest enthusiastic sentiment for him. The feeling of the precinct workers and of the rank and file seemed to be one of sufferance—that he had the 'solid South' and would be nominated, and we might as well make the best of it.

"In the last two months sentiment has changed to pronounced dissatisfaction with Mr. Taft as our leader. A few days ago I sent a letter to our precinct committeemen (there are over 3,000 of these) asking for a statement of political conditions in their precincts, and I have received already hundreds of replies. Four out of five of these letters from precinct committeemen state there is dissatisfaction with Mr. Taft among the voters—and this, too, although in my letter I did not ask for opinions on that point but only for general conditions.

"This proves to me what my personal contact with our voters—and I have personally interviewed literally thousands of them in the last eight months—has led me to fear—that there is not the slightest chance to carry Indiana for Mr. Taft."

From the La Follette headquarters Walter L. Houser, one of the La Follette managers, sent out a statement analyzing the action of the National Committee and declaring it to be an "insolent contempt" for the laws of the States. He says:

"The Republican National Committee not only refused to permit State Committees to hold Presidential primaries if they so wished, but went out of its way, gratuitously to affront the States which have made legal provision for such primaries.

"The call, as adopted, not only requires the authority of the State Committee to make valid the election of delegates in the States which by law have provided for Presidential primaries, but permits the State Committee to order the selection of delegates contrary to law, in defiance of the wishes of the people of those States, by caucus and convention. This applies not only to the States in which there is legal provision for Presidential primaries, but to States like Ohio and Pennsylvania, where the law requires that district delegates shall be elected directly by the voters of the party.

"At the first opportunity the people will rebuke this insolent contempt for the laws of the States and for the popular demand for direct nominations."

HOT AIR, SAYS ROOSEVELT

Of the Report That His Friends Hope to Nominate Him.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Dec. 12.—As Col. Theodore Roosevelt was leaving the Exchange Club, in Milk Street, to-night after having lectured before the Harvard Travelers' Club on his African hunting trip, newspaper dispatches from Washington stating that his friends are endeavoring to force his nomination for President were shown to him. Col. Roosevelt read the accounts, grinned in the true Rooseveltian way, then remarked:

"Nothing in it; some more of that hot air."

Thereupon the Colonel sought to escape by climbing into an automobile. One reporter persisted in his efforts to get a longer statement. The auto door had already started to close, propelled by the strong arm of the Colonel, when in order to save the reporter's head, which was between the [illegible] Roosevelt [illegible] remarked [illegible] say," whereupon the head was withdrawn, the door closed, and the auto went on its way.

President Theodore Lyman of the Harvard Travelers' Club presided during the dinner to Col. Roosevelt, which was attended by 200 members and guests. Following the banquet Col. Roosevelt made his address on hunting in Africa. A screen had been placed for the pictures and a calcium light machine was in place on the supposition that Col. Roosevelt was to show photographs taken in Africa. He brought no slides, however, and therefore those who attended the banquet were obliged to content themselves with an unillustrated lecture.

Col. Roosevelt will be the guest at a dinner of the Board of Trustees of Harvard University to-morrow night.

OHIO PROGRESSIVES HOPEFUL.

More Determined Than Ever to Try to Send La Follette Delegates.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 12.—That the defeat by the Republican National Committee of the proposal to provide for a Presidential primary in States where there is no legal provision for such will supply Senator Robert M. La Follette with the most effective ammunition in his campaign to capture Ohio delegates to the Republican National Convention was the declaration of Progressive Republican leaders here to-night. Chairman Brown wired from Washington that Ohio would have a Presidential preference list.

Receiving his report of the committee's action on the Borah resolution, John D. Fackler, manager of the progressive movement in Ohio, to-night issued the following statement:

"The defeat by the National Committee of the amendment of Senator Borah, providing that in any State not having primary laws the State Committee might direct the election of delegates to the Republican National Convention by popular primary, clearly demonstrates the fear of President Taft that defeat would certainly follow the submission of his candidacy to the decision of the voters.

"When the President was forced to appeal to Reed Smoot, Boise Penrose, Murray Crane, and men of their type to hold the National Committee in line the length [illegible] renomination.

"The Republican Party [illegible] La Follette [illegible] will invade Ohio [illegible] speeches will be delivered in the five [illegible] days between Dec. 26 and Jan. 1, [illegible] Memorial Hall, Columbus.

ELECTION IN ARIZONA.

G. W. P. Hunt, Democrat, Leading the Republican Candidate for Governor.

PHOENIX, Arizona, Dec. 12.—The counting of the vote in to-day's election is proceeding slowly. In Globe the mixed ballot [illegible] the Democrats and Republicans running about even on these ballots.

The only complete count so far reported is in the Fourth Ward of Douglas, where the Democratic candidate for Governor carried 101 to 11.

In all the thirteen counties voting was enthusiastic but light in comparison with the total population, for the reason that by the enabling act, under which Arizona comes into the Union suffrage was restricted to the voters who appeared on the great register of 1908. [illegible] thousands of persons who have settled in the new State during the last three years.

The Democrats hope to elect both Mark Smith and Henry Ashurst as Senators, though the Republicans declared that Ralph Cameron, Republican Delegate in Congress, was a certainty for one of the places. Campaign managers for George W. P. Hunt of Globe, Democratic candidate for Governor, claim a lead of [illegible] over Edward Wells of Prescott, the Republican nominee. [illegible] the recall of Judges back into the Constitution later.

By electing its own Governor and all State officers, two United States Senators and one Congressman, Arizona assumes full sovereignty as a State.

STOKES OPERATED ON IN HURRY, RALLIES

Quick Action to Save His Life in Removal of an Abscess from the Kidney.

SHOOTING RETOLD AT TRIAL

Ethel Conrad Coolly Testifies in Her Own Defense—Forced to Explain Other Incidents in Her Career.

"Mr. W. E. D. Stokes was successfully operated on to-day for abscess of the left kidney by Dr. Bolton Bangs," read a bulletin issued yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Ansonia by Dr. J. P. Thornley, the attending physician.

At 8 o'clock last night Dr. Thornley stated that Mr. Stokes was sleeping restfully and that his condition was very satisfactory.

The patient was taken into the operating room at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The operation lasted about forty-five minutes.

A grave change in Mr. Stokes's condition began on Monday night. He became delirious, and the operation, which for the last few days had been delayed by his physicians, was found to be necessary to take place immediately. At the time of operation the patient's temperature was slightly above 102.

Dr. Thornley considers Mr. Stokes in no immediate danger, and said it might be several days before anything definite could be determined about his progress. The kidney from which the accumulation of pus was removed is being drained by a tube.

At midnight Mr. Stokes was said to be resting well, and his condition was otherwise very satisfactory.

Mrs. Stokes was in an adjacent room during the operation, and last night a telegram was sent to W. E. D. Stokes, Jr., who is a student in the Andover Preparatory School, requesting him to hurry to the bedside of his father.

Mr. Stokes was stricken with acute indigestion while attending the annual horse sale in Madison Square Garden on the night of Thanksgiving last. He was hurried to the Ansonia. A week later the physicians learned that food had fermented in the gastric organ and in the intestines, and that poison had entered the veins and affected the heart.

Ethel Conrad Tells Her Story.

Just about the time that Mr. Stokes was operated upon, Ethel Conrad, who is on trial with Lillian Graham for attempting to murder him in her apartments at the Varuna on June 7, began relating her story to Justice Marcus and a jury in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court. She told her story in dramatic style.

It was expected that her counsel, Robert M. Moore, would make a short opening address to the jury, but he only offered in evidence certain pages of the testimony taken in the Police Court during Mr. Stokes's cross-examination, and which dealt with his description of the struggle in the hall on June 7. He then put his client on the stand and she began to tell her story in a loud and distinct voice. Occasionally she would rattle along so rapidly that the court stenographer was forced to ask her to repeat her testimony. She said that she was 19 years old and was born in Bluefields, Venezuela. She met Lillian Graham first, she testified, about May 1 last. Miss Graham and herself had engagements in the same show, and they decided to live together in the Varuna Apartments. Coming down to the first time she met Mr. Stokes she said:

"At about 11 o'clock on the 30th of May I returned to my rooms in the Varuna and found a letter lying on the writing table. It was addressed to me, and I opened it and saw that it was from Lillian and a suicide letter. I rushed to Lillian's room and found her upon the bed in a semi-conscious condition and saw an empty bottle of carbolic acid on the dresser. I did what I could for her. That is, I gave her mustard and water, and put cold cream on her face. She began to recover, and I went for a doctor and then read the letter she had written to me.

"I went to Mr. Stokes, for I knew that he knew Lillian, and he was the only one I could think of who might help her. So I went to the Ansonia and asked a colored boy where Mr. Stokes's office was. He said it was on the sixteenth floor, so I went up to see him. I was very excited and saw an old man coming down the hall. I asked him where Mr. Stokes's office was, and he took me through a little, dark hall to a room, and I met Miss Brophy, his private secretary, who asked me what I wanted, and I said: 'I must see Mr. Stokes. I must see him on something very, very important.' I then saw Mr. Stokes and said: 'Oh, you know Lillian Graham; something terrible has happened.' I started to explain, but he said: 'She is a terrible woman. You must leave her alone. She is terrible and bad and you are a very beautiful and innocent young woman. You must not have anything to do with her.' I told him that I didn't want him to say that, as Lillian was very sick. Then I showed him the suicide letter and he read it and said: 'Miss Conrad, you must get her away; you must send her to Europe. Now, you come on Thursday or Friday and tell me how she is. I can't give you any money, because I cannot get mixed up in this. She has letters of mine. For God's sake get me the letters, Miss Conrad.'"

She went back to Miss Graham and examined the burns on her face. She described the burns as "not bad burns, but many little red spots all over her face. The skin was not burned so as to take the flesh off." She said Miss Graham begged her not to tell about her attempt to commit suicide. She said that by the next day Miss Graham had recovered enough to accompany her downtown, where they bought the revolvers. This was on the 31st of May, and she testified that they wanted the revolvers because they were going to go in the road with a show and needed them for self-protection. She was then asked if Mr. Stokes told her anything further about Miss Graham, and she said:

Raises a Laugh in Court.

"No, when I first saw him that was all he said. I came to see him the next Thursday, but he was not there, and Miss Brophy told me to call Friday, and I did so. When he saw me he said: 'Miss Conrad, you must leave Miss Graham alone, for she is a very bad, bad woman. Her mother before her was bad and her sister was bad and she herself was thrown out of a place on Fifty-fourth Street because she was so bad.' He then told me that the Baltic was going to sail on Friday and said: 'You must see that she sails on it. I will give you the money to get her ticket and would give you more but she might commit suicide and then the money would be lost.'"

Here Miss Conrad paused to take a drink of water and all those in the courtroom laughed. The witness continued:

"Let's see, where was I, Mr. Moore? Oh, I remember now. Mr. Stokes placed his hand upon my shoulder and, smiling at me, said: 'I am doing all this for you and not for her. You are young and beautiful and innocent.' I said 'I don't want you to do anything for me and don't want your hand on my shoulder. I want you to help Lillian.' He then gave me the money, $200, and after he had done so he asked me why I stood on the other side of the table and I said: 'I don't like you and think you are a horrid old man and a mean old man, also.' He said: 'Look me in the eyes and tell me that you don't like me. Tell me what your business is.' I said to myself: 'Well, that is none of your business, anyway.' I was afraid to tell him that I was an actress for fear that he would get worse, and I saw some pictures on the wall and said I was an illustrator. He then asked me what paper I worked on and, seeing a Delineator lying on his table, I said that I worked for them.

"He then said, 'Oh, I will see that you get a better position. I will send you down to The Mail and Express and have them give you a better position.'"

She then described how Mr. Stokes dictated a letter to Miss Brophy, and told about a conversation between Mr. Stokes and some one at The Mail and Express during which Mr. Stokes said: "Well, I am going to send you a fine little artist and she is a thoroughbred, too. Be sure and usher her into the big chief's office at once when she reaches there." She then said:

Teresa Carreno says:
"The 'Welte-Mignon' has played over to me Liszt's Sixth Rhapsody, which I played for this wonderful instrument. The rendering was so exactly as I play it that I should like to express once again my admiration for this incredible invention. The 'Welte-Mignon' is the wonder of wonders among mechanical inventions." Demonstrations daily. 273 Fifth Avenue. (Opp the Holland House.)—Adv.

Says Stokes Proposed to Her.

"After Mr. Stokes called up The Mail and Express he turned to me and said: 'You certainly are a thoroughbred through and through. You are an aristocrat and I like you.' He began to get nervous and he said: 'You know Miss Conrad I have a farm in Kentucky and breed a lot of horses and can tell a thoroughbred when I see one. See, here is a magazine I own.' He then handed me a magazine about horses and cows and such things and I looked it over and thought it was the most uninteresting thing I ever saw, but I complimented him on it and he said: 'Yes, you are an aristocrat, Miss Conrad, and I have a boy who is also an aristocrat. I think a great deal of my boy and would like to have a splendid young woman like you for his mother!'"

Miss Conrad then said she went back to the Varuna apartments and told Miss Graham that she must pack her trunk, as she was going to Europe. She said that at first she did not tell her who gave her the $200, but later she did so. She said Lillian protested and told her that she must send the money back to Mr. Stokes, but that she refused to do so. She said that they decided to see a lawyer and went to see Martin W. Littleton, but that he was out of town. Upon being questioned further about this she said that she was told to call again on Friday, as he would be back then. She testified that she wanted to see him about the letters Mr. Stokes had written to Miss Graham.

She said that Mr. Stokes called her up once when she was away, and that Miss Graham answered the telephone. She then described a telephone conversation with Mr. Stokes as follows:

"Mr. Stokes called me up on June 7 and said: 'Miss Conrad, I am going to come up after those letters. You know the letters we spoke about.' I said: 'Oh, no, Mr. Stokes; let me send them to you.' I was thinking that if he ever saw Lillian he would get angry and something would happen, but he insisted and said: 'Oh, that is all right, Miss Conrad, I will call for the letters. I will be right up for them.' I started to tell him not to, but he hung up the receiver and I did not know what to do, as I had no one to advise me at all."

Her Story of the Shooting.

While she was talking, Mrs. Stella Singleton, Miss Graham's sister, fainted and had to be carried from the courtroom. Coming down to the shooting she said:

"I heard the bell ring and opened the door to see Mr. Stokes. I was so surprised that I simply dropped my hands to my side and said: 'Why, Mr. Stokes.' I started to walk backward down the hall, and he kept walking toward me all the way. He said many horrible bad things, and then Lillian came in, and he grew angry and said: 'You liar, you!' and a lot of other things worse than he said before. Lillian said: 'How dare you come here after all you have said about my mother and myself and my sister?' He said: 'Don't scream, don't scream!' and Lillian said: 'I will scream and get help.' He then grabbed her by the throat and they struggled down the hall. I was unable to do anything; I was afraid of him.

"They kept on struggling, and then I saw a bright flash and heard a noise and grabbed up a chair. They were near me, and Mr. Stokes had a revolver which he fired. I put the chair up to protect myself and struck at him with it and told him to drop the revolver. He refused, and I took my own. All this took place in a minute, and when I got the revolver I said: 'Mr. Stokes, you drop that revolver, or I will shoot you.' He fired again and I aimed at the floor and shot and shot until I used up all the cartridges in the gun. He let go of Lillian and she began to scream and scream for help."

The witness then said she went for a doctor, as she saw a pool of blood and did not know how badly hurt Mr. Stokes was. She told the police where she got the revolvers when she was arrested.

Chastised Her Father.

Assistant District Attorney Buckner then began to cross-examine her. She said that up to the time she met Miss Graham she lived with her stepfather, and that when she met Miss Graham she made up her mind to stay with her always.

"Isn't it a fact, Miss Conrad, that while you lived in Onderdonk Avenue, Brooklyn, you chased your father about the house with a large carving knife one night, and that the janitress saw you?" asked Mr. Buckner.

"No, Sir, I never chased him with a carving knife."

"Didn't you chase him to a drug store one night with a carving knife?"

"No, Sir, I did not. I never chased him with any kind of a knife, although he sometimes swore terribly and I chastised him."

"Yes, you swore, too, and sometimes chastised him with a knife, didn't you?"

"No, Sir, I did not swear at him, and I said twice already that I never chased him with a knife of any kind."

The witness was then asked about her trip to Plattsburg, where she stayed at the home of James Farley, the strikebreaker, and said:

"If you want me to tell you all, Mr. Buckner, I will. I went there to spend my vacation, and I met Mr. Farley at the station. We knew each other, and he was going to Pennsylvania and told me that I could have the use of his house as he would not be there. I was alone there with a servant."

Mr. Buckner then asked her if she knew a man named Charles Miller. She said that she did, and that she met him at Plattsburg, where he ran a store. She met him while shopping, she said, and he was very polite to her. She said that on the night after she had visited his store she received a telephone call and a man, who said he was a friend of hers from New York, invited her to go riding. She said that at first she refused, but later decided to learn who he was, and agreed to take a ride with him.

"Well, you did go riding. Now tell us what happened?" said Mr. Buckner.

"Oh, Mr. Moore, must I tell all about that?" asked Miss Conrad, who upon receiving an affirmative reply, said:

"Well, I went where he said he would meet me, and he had a little runabout there. I got in and asked him who he was, and he said: 'I am Johnny Jones, a cousin to Paul Jones,' and a lot of things like that to me. He had his cap pulled down over his eyes and his coat turned up. He started the runabout, and we went along very fast. It must have been about forty miles an hour. We never stopped until we reached a little place like a roadhouse. He wanted me to take a drink with him, but I refused, and he then took one himself. He came back into the car and asked me to smoke a cigarette and kiss him. I refused, and he started to crank up the car.

"He left his cap up, and as the light flashed in his face I saw him and said: 'Now I know who you are. You are Charles Miller, and you must take me home at once.' He didn't, though, but instead he drove me all about, and we had a fight in the automobile. I bit his hands and then pretended to faint, and he became scared and started to rub my wrists and temples, and I stayed fainted."

"Didn't you know a man named Clark, who was the manager for one of Farley's hotels?" asked Mr. Buckner.

"No."

Mr. Moore objected to Mr. Buckner's question, saying that it was not a fact that Farley had any hotels, and he knew it, because he had been his counsel for fifteen years. Justice Marcus allowed the question and answer to stand because the witness had answered, and Mr. Buckner said:

"Miss Conrad, isn't it a fact that Mr. Moore represents you because he is the counsel for Farley?"

"No," replied the witness, with a shake of the head.

Used a Revolver Once Before.

She was then asked a number of questions about Plattsburg, and was asked if she didn't dictate a statement for Miller to write while she held a loaded revolver at his head. She asked if she could tell all, and said:

"I did not dictate any statement and Mr. Miller's brother did not come in and tell him to write anything I said. I did have a revolver, and Mr. Miller simply wrote the truth, and I did not give him any dictation at all."

She was asked if she had the statement Miller wrote, and Mr. Moore agreed to produce it to-day. She denied that she also held the revolver at the head of a woman while Miller was writing, saying: "I had all that I could do with Miller. I only had enough revolver to cover him."

She was then asked about her stage experience and if she had ever had any trouble in Philadelphia. She replied that she had not, and said that what was referred to there was a man named Tony, who was a stage hand in the theatre and who entered her dressing room. She said that her roommate threw a pair of her satin slippers at Tony and that she ran after them. In reply to a question from Mr. Buckner she said the slippers were yellow. Mr. Buckner smiled, and the witness said:

An Incident in the Cafe Madrid.

"Oh, Mr. Buckner, I wish you would not look at me like that."

"Didn't you grab a fire axe off the wall in the Café Madrid one night and go after Mr. Farley with it?"

"Why, what in the world put that into your head. Of course not, Mr. Buckner."

"So you didn't take a fire axe at all in the Madrid?"

The witness appeared very much annoyed at this question, and after taking a drink of water placed her glass down with a thump, and shouted:

"No, Sir. I did not, and I have told you so twice now."

She admitted that she knew a man named Issy Kramer, who is a lawyer, and Justice Marcus adjourned court until 10:30 this morning.

Before Miss Conrad took the stand Miss Graham was put through a severe cross-examination by Mr. Buckner. She denied a greater part of the conversation as given by the two clerks who sold her the revolvers. She denied that she got the revolvers for the purpose of getting Mr. Stokes to sign a check for $25,000. She was then taken all through the shooting again. She said that she did not open the drawer of the dresser, as it was open when she reached for the revolver, and declared that Mr. Stokes had her by the throat all the time. She said that her finger was caught in the door and the finger nail came off.

Mr. Buckner then produced posters, handbills, and signs bearing the legend, "Those Two Girls," and showed them all to her, and asked if she had shot Mr. Stokes simply in order to get a position on the vaudeville stage. She denied this, and the noon recess was taken.

When the afternoon session opened Mr. Buckner announced that he had finished his cross-examination, and Mr. Jordan asked Miss Graham several questions on the redirect examination. While she was on the stand a large box of flowers wrapped up in yards of ribbon and from a Broadway florist was handed to her. She did not open the envelope with the flowers, but left them in an anteroom. When court adjourned she carried them with her from the Criminal Court Building.

WOLTER MUST DIE.

Conviction of Ruth Wheeler's Slayer Upheld by Court of Appeals.

ALBANY, Dec. 12.—Albert W. Wolter, convicted of the murder of Ruth Wheeler, a 15-year-old stenographer, in New York on March 24, 1910, must pay the death penalty. The Court of Appeals to-day affirmed the judgment of conviction of murder in the first degree.

Wolter was convicted on April 22, 1910, and was sentenced to die at Sing Sing Prison in the week beginning June 6 of that year. The execution was stayed by an appeal which has since been pending. The long delay in bringing the case to argument was noted by the court, which scored Wolter's counsel for "inexcusable delay."

Although Wolter was convicted on circumstantial evidence, Judge Bartlett, who wrote the opinion of the court, says:

"That Ruth Wheeler was killed in the defendant's apartment is a fact which does not admit of the slightest doubt upon the proof in this case. * * * The defendant was fairly tried and justly convicted."

Wolter has been in the Sing Sing death house twenty months, and it probably will be six weeks more before he will be put to death.

Ruth Wheeler, who had just finished a course in stenography in a business college, left her home on March 17, 1910, to answer an advertisement offering employment. On March 25 Albert Wolter was arrested charged with abducting her. He was about to be released because of the weakness of the evidence against him, when the Wheeler girl's body was found, burned and wrapped in rags, on the fire escape of a tenement house in East Seventy-ninth Street, where Wolter had lived with a girl named Katie Muller.

The Muller girl was arrested the following day and gave the police assistance in completing their case against Wolter. Wolter was indicted for murder in the first degree on March 30, and on April 22 he was found guilty of murder in the first degree, and five days later Judge Foster of General Sessions sentenced him to die in the electric chair. His appeal decided yesterday was taken on May 29, 1910, and was argued nearly a year later, on Feb. 7 of this year, before the Court of Appeals.

TO RE-FORM STEEL CONCERN.

Metropolitan Trust Urges Reorganization of Western Corporation.

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 12.—Creditors of the Western Steel Corporation, the $20,000,000 company which was placed in the hands of receivers on Oct. 13, held their first meeting here yesterday and elected Lester Turner, Sutcliffe Baxter, and Edgar Ames Trustees. Mr. Turner and Mr. Baxter have been serving as receivers.

Immediate reorganization of the corporation was proposed at the meeting by a representative of the Metropolitan Trust Company of New York. If the creditors would agree to an early sale, he said, the trust company would undertake the formation of a new company to take over the steel plant at Irondale, Wash., and have it in operation by February or March of next year.

In a report filed in the United States District Court by the receivers, it is asserted that the affairs of the corporation are in such a muddle that it is almost impossible to get at its true status. James A. Moore, its organizer, the report says, subscribed to the the $20,000,000 stock, turning back into the treasury $4,000,000 of it and retaining $16,000,000 himself. In return for this stock Moore turned over to the company assets which he valued at $41,000,000.

The receivers remark that a review of Mr. Moore's valuation of these assets will "reveal a spirit of speculation and inflation that seems to have characterized the management throughout."

HYDE JUROR NOT FOUND.

A Vague Clue Turns Up—Judge Meantime Holds Remaining Eleven.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 12.—Contrary to the plan announced yesterday, the jury that is hearing the case of B. Clarke Hyde, accused of murdering Col. Thomas H. Swope, was not dismissed to-night, although Harry Waldron, the missing juror, has not been found. Judge Porterfield decided late to-day that he would hold the eleven remaining jurymen for another week in the hope that Waldron may be discovered and found competent to resume his duty.

Waldron has been missing since Monday morning, when he escaped from the jury's hotel. A clue to his whereabouts came to-day when Mrs. Reidy Werby, who lives near the Waldrons, said she saw the missing man in her pasture yesterday afternoon. He appeared demented, she said. Her story is being investigated, although officers place little confidence in it.

To Partition Bowie Dash Farm Lands.

Proceedings to partition the Bowie Dash farm lands, belonging to the Van Cortlandt estate, were begun in the Supreme Court yesterday. The lands comprise a forty-acre tract bounded roughly by Broadway, Sedgwick Avenue, Albany Road, and 238th Street. John Jacob Astor, individually and as one of the executors of the estate of Caroline W. Astor, is cited to appear in the proceedings.

FOIL PLOT TO BREAK JERSEY CITY JAIL

It's a Mighty Mysterious Affair Unless You Look at It Politically.

WARDENS WERE TO CHANGE

And the Man In, Who Was Fighting to Stay, Seems to be the Only Sufferer —Charlton and Other Prisoners Safe.

An attempt was made early yesterday morning to break out of the Hudson County jail in Jersey City. It was discovered and frustrated, but the man or men who made the attempt eluded detection, and when Warden Patrick J. Sullivan made the rounds of the jail every prisoner was found, locked in his cell, apparently asleep.

Porter Charlton, who has been in the jail more than a year awaiting extradition to Italy to answer for the murder of his wife at Lake Como, and Ullie Burke, a noted burglar, awaiting the result of his appeal from a fifteen-year sentence, are two of half a dozen prisoners who might have profited by the jail delivery. They are confined in what is known as Ward 1 of the jail, and it was in this ward that some one sawed through four heavy bars in a window, looking out three stories above ground into Newark Avenue.

The attempted outbreak, though it was discovered in time to prevent its success, is considered peculiarly unfortunate for Warden Sullivan. Sheriff Nicholas T. Wedin recently notified him that his term of office would expire on Friday next, when he could expect the arrival of his successor, John McOfker, an old friend of the Sheriff, and once a betting Commissioner at New Jersey race tracks.

Gardner Colby, Secretary of the State Civil Service Commission, has notified the Sheriff that the commission will not certify the appointment of Sullivan's successor, a necessary formality before the Warden can draw his salary, and it was believed that Sullivan would be able to make a good fight to retain his post. His friends discussed the attempted delivery yesterday as if it were not to be taken as a serious effort on the part of any of the prisoners to escape. They seemed to view it only in the light of its effect on Sullivan's fight to retain his job, and declared that it could not have occurred with more timeliness had it been directed by the Warden's political enemies.

The attempt to break jail was the principal topic of conversation yesterday wherever politicians gathered, and all concurred in thinking it a body blow for Sullivan. None of them pretended to understand how it could have been made, discovered, and frustrated without some clue being gained as to its perpetrators. Yet Sheriff Wedin said last night that his investigation had led nowhere, though he suspects that Burke was concerned in the effort.

Even the discovery of the attempt had an air of mystery about it. It was made by Miss Rose Murry, who has been acting as matron of the jail since the recent removal of the Warden's wife. She has quarters just above the jail office on the second floor and in the northeast corner. She did not retire until nearly 2 o'clock yesterday morning, and then found herself unable to sleep.

Presently she heard a noise in the room above her head. This is Ward 1, and putting on a dressing sack Miss Murry climbed the stairs quietly and glanced through the barred door into the ward. Two windows look out the north side of the building, and one on the corridor faces east. In this window Miss Murry saw the figure of a man. He was outlined by the rays which rose from an electric light on the street corner below. Miss Murry could not make out who he was, but she saw that he was working with a saw at the bars covering the window. Miss Murry crept softly downstairs and alarmed Night Keeper James Moody. Moody, with the key to Ward 1 and an automatic revolver in his hand, ascended the stairs.

The man was still at work at the window. He had not heard Moody climb the stairs, but he did hear him when he inserted the key in the lock. As Moody stepped into the room the man jumped down from the window and darted into the shadow. Moody, instead of commanding him to throw up his hands, ran to the window and turned there in time to see the man slip out the door through which Moody had entered and which he had neglected to lock behind him. Moody summoned the Warden then, and the search of the jail was begun, with the result that every prisoner was found apparently fast asleep in bed.

Then a search was made through Ward 1. There Warden Sullivan found that four bars had been sawed through in the east window, and had been removed, leaving an opening probably eighteen inches square. Each bar was an inch thick and each had been sawed in two places. The bars, about twelve in number, run up and down the window with two cross bars, dividing them into thirds. The four bars had been removed in the middle section formed by the two cross bars.

On the floor near the window lay about fifteen fine saws and the patent handle in which they were held. There were half a dozen small chisels, four table knives, and a jackknife. A bottle of vaseline stood ready at hand, its contents having been used to dull the sound of the saws. There were also four blankets knotted into a long rope and a striped negligee shirt, the use of which the warden couldn't determine. That was all.

Why the bars should have been removed from this particular window is as mystifying to Warden Sullivan and his friends as is the fact that the removal could have been accomplished at all. Had any one dropped from this window on the end of the rope of blankets, he must have landed directly outside of the jail office and in the direct glare of an electric light. Besides, he must have passed by Miss Murry's window, also in the glare of the light. Of all windows in the jail it seemed the one least promising of success as a means of secret egress from the place.

Sheriff Wedin began an immediate investigation which got him nowhere, though he learned from Miss Murry that when she went to give the alarm she had seen two men run away from in front of the jail office. He declared that the attempt to break jail was a commentary on the way in which the affairs of the jail had been conducted, and suggested that the Grand Jury could scarcely overlook the affair. Warden Sullivan's friends agree that this is so, and therein lies the peculiar timeliness of the affair.

REAL DELIVERY IN HOBOKEN.

Two Boys Pry Loose a Lock at Police Headquarters and Escape.

Two small boys broke out of Hoboken Police Headquarters yesterday. They were John Gleason, 14 years old, of 602 Newark Street, and Paul Munz, 13, of 111 Madison Street. Gleason had been arrested as one of a crowd of youngsters who threw a brick through Recorder McGovern's window last week. Young Munz was wanted on some small charge.

With the two lads were 12-year-old August Hartzman of 126 Madison Street and Joseph Barker, 13, of 124 Madison Street, whom the Recorder wanted to question about the disappearance of some lead pipes from various vacant houses. These two sat quietly, but young Gleason and young Munz began to look things over in the detention room.

This is in the rear of Headquarters, and, with the rest of the building, is being repaired. The boys found that they could knock out some bricks and plaster around the lock of the door and, this done, had no trouble in prying the lock loose with a piece of plank. Then they stepped out and disappeared through the back door.

Hartzman and Barker gave the alarm after the other youngsters had escaped, and an alarm was sent out for them. No trace of them was obtained by the police, but last night young Gleason gave himself up, saying it was too much trouble to try to dodge the police. Recorder McGovern paroled him in custody of the Probation Officer.

NAME WOMAN TO ACT IN MAYOR'S ABSENCE

Indianapolis Suffragists Choose Dr. Hannah M. Graham as Substitute for Mr. Shank.

IT IS SO SUDDEN, SHE SAYS

Mayor Is Inclined to Back Down, and Says He May Prefer That His Wife Fill the Chair.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 12.—Although the Restricted Equal Suffrage Association has designated Dr. Hannah M. Graham to act as Mayor of Indianapolis when Mayor Shank is absent, in accordance with the suggestion made by the Mayor in a speech at a meeting of the association, the Mayor now indicates that he may back down on the proposal and may not name a woman Mayor at all.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the suffrage association, held this morning at the home of Mrs. G. N. Carter, the Mayor's invitation was considered and Dr. Graham, President of the association, was chosen for Acting Mayor because Mayor Shank said:

"I think the women are entitled to vote and that they would vote right. I don't know what kind of a Mayor you would make, but I guess you would be as good as I am. At least, I'm in favor of letting you try it. I suggest that when I'm away from the city for two weeks next time one of you be appointed to serve in my place. Then you can see how you like it."

"This is so sudden," said Dr. Graham, when asked about her policy as Acting Mayor. "The committee has just informed me that it has selected me for that honor. I hardly know what to say. I am sure Mayor Shank was in earnest in extending his invitation, and when I serve as Mayor I shall use all of my efforts to administer the affairs of the office in the interest of the people and for the public good. It will be an interesting experience, and I hope I may be able to do some good for the city."

Dr. Graham said she had no idea as to when Mayor Shank would call on her to occupy his chair. "But I am ready to serve whenever the call comes," she said.

When told that his suggestion that a woman occupy the Mayor's chair some time during his absence from the city had been taken seriously, Mayor Shank apeared to be greatly astonished.

"I don't intend to leave the city any more, at least not for any length of time," protested the Mayor.

"But suppose you should have to leave the city some time—would you consent to a woman occupying your chair?" was asked.

"I'll have to ask my wife about that," he replied.

"Perhaps I would want the privilege of naming the woman—I might insist on my wife filling the chair."

CAT SLEEPS UPSIDE DOWN.

Eats Worms and Flies and Otherwise Betrays Strange Tastes.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Dec. 12.—Mrs. Charles L. Ketchen of 2 Alpha Place has a cat named Kinky. It is jet black, with long hair like a Persian lamb's, which curls lightly in cold weather, and has a long body and a tail two feet long. It does not walk like other cats, but prances like a horse. Nor does it sleep like other cats, for it slumbers hanging to a door knob or shelf by one paw, as a sloth does with its four feet. Furthermore, it does not scratch.

Kinky has one bad cat habit. It goes out nights. Often it will sneak up to the attic, climb out of the window to the roof and leap to a tree that overhangs the house. Often when it is pursued by its owner it will leap to the branch of a tree and, hanging by one paw, blink at her and wag its tail. It loves worms, digging in the garden for them, and eats bugs and flies for dessert.

Mrs. Ketchen got the cat from G. A. Hunter of Long Island City for $5 a few days ago. She had an offer of $250 for it to-day, but refused it. She intends to exhibit it in cat shows as a freak.

Kinky came from Africa. The story is that a sailor found him with the rest of the family, its mother and four sisters, a few days old on the South African Coast about a year ago. When the ship reached New York mother and sisters had died and gone overboard. Kinky was the only one left.

NEGRO PILGRIMAGE TO STOP LYNCHINGS

Plans Afoot to Assemble 5,000 to 10,000 Colored Men About the White House

AND PROTEST TO PRESIDENT

When President Taft "Sees That Black Cloud," Says Rev. Mr. Harris, "He'll Sit Up and Take Notice."

A National Protest Committee, a body of negroes, was organized in Mount Olivet Baptist Church, 165 West Fifty-third Street, last night, and plans to send a pilgrimage of 5,000 to 10,000 negroes to Washington next March to demand of President Taft the suppression of mob violence against negroes.

Many small delegations of negroes have gone to Washington to protest against lynchings in various States, but, according to the sentiment expressed last night, they never accomplished anything. Hence the idea of a pilgrimage in which every one who has the inclination and the price of the trip may join. It is said there will be 500 pilgrims from Mount Olivet Church alone.

The delegation will be headed by a band which will play "My Country, 'Tis of Thee" all the way from the Pennsylvania Station, in Washington, until the army reaches the White House. Then the thousands of black folk will completely surround the White House while a select delegation of twenty-five will go inside to lay the grievance before the President.

"And when President Taft sees that black cloud hanging around his White House," said the Rev. A. Mark Harris of Jersey City, National President of the committee and chief organizer, "he'll sit up and take notice. He will then be aware that the men who lay their case before him are not self-elected agitators of a hopeless cause, but duly elected representatives of the great crowd outside."

"Lynching used to be a local issue," he said, "being confined to the Southern States. But now it has spread to practically every State, and I make the prediction that before very long, unless we do something immediately, there will be lynchings in Boston Common and right here on the streets of New York City.

"The 12,000,000 negroes of this country have all stood by the flag, and yet they are being persecuted. It is up to us. The only man who can stop the lynch wave is the negro himself. With all our great numbers, however, we have accomplished nothing, whereas a mere handful of Jews, by their persistency in the right, have set the Nation shaking with their protest about conditions in the far-off country of Russia. If I went to Russia or to some other country I wonder whether the United States would stand by me.

"Our laws were made for the white man, and the black man was not considered. A white man is innocent until proved guilty. A black man is guilty until proved innocent. One of the prisoners in the trial resulting from the lynching of 'Zach' Walker in Coatesville admitted that he had placed a fagot on the funeral bier. But the jury filed out and said 'not guilty.' If 'Zach' Walker had been a white man and his lynchers had been negroes every negro in Coatesville would have been guilty."

Dr. W. E. B. Du Bois, representing the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, then read resolutions in favor of the Washington pilgrimage, and they were passed with ringing shouts of approval.

Among the speakers was Mrs. W. R. Lawton of Brooklyn. She said that she had done her week's washing, cooked three meals for her family, written three articles for newspapers, made all the beds, and cleaned up the house and then, despite her weariness, had come to Mount Olivet Baptist Church "to show her colors." She showed them, too, with effect. Other speakers were the Rev. J. H. Mullen, James Curtis, a lawyer, and the Rev. W. P. Hayes, pastor of Mount Olivet Church.

Tenant Sues the Sage Estate.

Mrs. Libbey Moskowitz filed a suit yesterday in the Supreme Court for $10,000 damages for personal injuries against the estate of Russell Sage. Mrs. Moskowitz occupied an apartment at 1,574 Lexington Avenue two years ago. The ceiling, she says, fell in on her and injured her. The house is owned by the Sage estate.

HAMMERSTEIN GIVES 'LUCIA.'

Orville Harrold and Felice Lyne Add to Their London Fame.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—Hammerstein's production of "Lucia" at the London Opera House to-night, with Orville Harrold and Felice Lyne in the leading rôles, proved a further step toward that conquest of the British metropolis which the impresario has set out to accomplish.

Harrold more than confirmed the impression he had already created that he is one of the greatest tenors of the age, while Miss Lyne's rendering of the mad scene simply brought down the house.

GOOD THE SHERMAN LAW DID.

James C. McReynolds Feels That "Brigand Corporations" Have Lost.

The guest at the second noon-day luncheon of the National Jewelers' Board of Trade at Kalil's Restaurant yesterday was Assistant United States Attorney General James C. McReynolds, who made a speech on the Sherman law. Mr. McReynolds described the law as an extraordinary document, dealing only with prohibitions, but dealing directly with the evils which the men who framed it wanted to correct.

He described the country as it was twenty years ago, when States seemed to vie with others in setting adrift "brigand corporations" to prey upon the people, and when much of the land that now blossoms was a barren waste. Mr. McReynolds declared that the men responsible for the Sherman law could not possibly have made a law that would interfere with or restrict the free exercise of business.

"There was no attempt," said Mr. McReynolds, "to make a constructive but a prohibitive law. The power of courts has been enlarged so that the Federal Government may treat the goods of every unlawful concern the same as if they had been smuggled."

Mr. McReynolds told of the prosecution of the Coal, Whiskey, Tobacco, and Standard Oil Trusts.

"The law has accomplished enormous good," he said, "and has brought about changes in the control of big business concerns. Ten years ago men who controled the railroads defended their system of rebates, but all of the big concerns now believe that the supervision of the Government is helpful, and a man may now start in business without fear of being destroyed. There has been some complaint about the law's delay, but I believe that a suit now can be disposed of within twenty-four months from the time it is begun. I believe that better times are approaching, and that the time is coming when every man will feel that he is being amply protected in his enterprises."

NEW CANCER HOME STARTED.

Mgr. Mooney Officiates at the Cornerstone Laying for St. Rose's.

Mgr. Joseph F. Mooney, Vicar General and Prothonotary Apostolic of the Catholic Archdiocese of New York, representing Cardinal Farley, yesterday put in position the cornerstone of a new St. Rose's Home for cancer incurables to replace the old building on Cherry Street. The new building will stand at Jackson and Front Streets, facing Corlears Hook Park.

When Mgr. Mooney, with Mgr. McGean and Father James M. Byrnes as deacon and subdeacon, and a few acolytes stood in front of the cornerstone there was only a small crowd present. Not more than two dozen took active part in the services, and these included three of the Sisters of St. Dominic, who are in charge of St. Rose's Home.

Fifteen years ago Mother O'Connell first opened a home for cancer incurables in Scammell Street. The Scammell Street house was too small to accommodate all who asked for admission. So Mother O'Connell moved to Water Street and later to Cherry Street, the present St. Rose's Home, where fourteen beds have been in constant requisition by persons too poor to get the necessary attention at home.

The new home will accommodate 100 inmates. It will be five stories high, on a plot 80 by 80 feet, and will be fireproof, built of limestone and terra cotta brick, with a steel frame. The cost will be about $91,000, and it is to be finished by next June 1.

On the corner opposite the new home is St. Mary's parochial school for boys and girls, and 250 of the pupils came out in front of the school and sang hymns during the cornerstone ceremony. Among those at the services were Dr. John L. Sheils, who gives his services to the incurables gratis, and H. J. Reel, a druggist, who supplies medicine free of charge.

'ROBBERS!' SHOUTED THE VOICE BY WIRE

Sleuths to the Rescue, Finding a Man Bound and Gagged on the Floor.

NOT A BURGLAR IN SIGHT

Trembling Man at Last Confessed That Better Poker Players Had Taken His $7.

The telephone in the East Fifty-first Street Station House rang yesterday and an excited voice called "Robbers!" It said that they were in the branch office of the Singer Sewing Machine Company at 142 East Fifty-ninth Street. Detective Van Twistern, who received the message, sniffed suspiciously. It was something in the way the work of the burglars was told to him that caused the sniff; the burglars, said the voice, had bound and gagged a man and left him on the floor.

"And that reminds me," remarked Van Twistern, who is known in police circles as a real Vidocq since he followed the clue of the label on the chloroform bottle used in the murder of William H. Jackson at the Hotel Iroquois, until he had found the murderer, young Paul Geidel. "That reminds me," he continued, as he reached for his hat and called to Detective McIntosh to come along, "of the woman who was bound and gagged, minus a lot of jewels her husband, due home shortly from Europe, had given to her. She forgot to hide the pawntickets.

"And there was the girl that didn't like to stay home alone. She was bound and gagged, and scared her parents when they came home. She forgot to hide the rest of the cloth from which she had torn the rags that gagged her. Let's go up and see what this fellow forgot."

At the Singer Company's store they found a good-sized crowd, and a man "unconscious" on the floor of the repair room in the rear. He was trembling despite his "unconscious" condition, and something about the trembling suggested that it was genuine. It was so violent that the ropes that bound the wrists slipped off, and the knots about the knees came untied.

"Shaking a bit when he tied them, also?" remarked the detectives as they looked around.

"Anything here worth stealing?" they asked the manager, who seemed much excited at the idea of having his chief mechanic handled so badly by robbers.

"Nothing but the sewing machines," was the answer. "We take the cash away each night."

"And you know thieves have a way of finding out a thing or two like that before they tackle a job," rejoined the detectives. There was a movement on the floor, the result of an application by a Flower Hospital surgeon of strong smelling salts to the nose of the prostrate man.

"Robbers! my money!" came in faint words.

"How much did you have?" asked Policeman Maurice Downey, who was bending over the patient.

"Seven dollars," was the whispered answer.

Van Twistern took the young man, who said he was Harold L. Travos of 758 Cauldwell Avenue, the Bronx, aside. In a moment he turned to the others present with the remark, "He was out last night playing poker with friends, and had to make an accounting to the folks. I guess there's no burglary to investigate."

THE KNEISEL QUARTET.

Second of Its Concerts in the Astor Hotel—Mr. Bauer as Assisting Artist.

The second of the Kneisel Quartet's concerts was given last evening in the ballroom of the Astor Hotel. The audience was larger than ever before. The increase in numbers is a gratifying proof of the high esteem in which the quartet is held by the musical public of New York, and of its eagerness to enjoy the fine artistry of Mr. Kneisel and his fellows. That it is gained at some expense to the results in performance in the matter of acoustics is unfortunately evident; but the audience did not allow this to interfere with its expression of satisfaction, for it was uncommonly demonstrative in its enthusiasm; and it had good reason to be.

The concert was begun with a delightful interpretation of Mozart's C major quartet, one that has repeatedly figured on Mr. Kneisel's programmes, and that enlists some of the ripest art of the four players. The other numbers of the programme were made notable by the participation in them of Mr. Harold Bauer as pianist, who appeared after his exacting recital in the afternoon with his artistic zest unflagging. Mr. Willeke, the 'cellist of the quartet, played with him Saint-Saëns's sonata for 'cello and piano in C minor, Op. 32. It is the ingenious composition of an ingenious musician. It is not flooded with inspiration, but it is wrought with skill and finished with the hand of an accomplished craftsman. It has the charm of delicacy and reserve, especially in the slow movements, with its passages of melody and counterpoint alternating between the two instruments. And if it does not call much upon the violoncello's capabilities for expressing the sensuous and the pathetic, it makes no demands for it to speak with other than its natural voice, to attempt a lumbering agility. Mr. Willeke played it with delightful polish of style, with grace and elegance, quite in the spirit of the music, and Mr. Bauer found the precise complement of it upon the piano, with quite the right tones a little "sec," but limpid and transparent.

The third number was Brahms's quintet for piano and strings, which has likewise appeared repeatedly upon Mr. Kneisel's programmes. He plays it, as he does other compositions of Brahms, with especial authority, with the fullest sympathy and understanding, and with results of profound beauty. In Mr. Bauer he had the assistance of the most accomplished of ensemble players, one who finds the exact perspective for the piano in the design of the whole, and who is willing and able to keep it there as are few virtuosos, if it be proper to class him under that head. The performance of the quintet under such conditions was a notable one, and was so felt by the audience.

C. Saint-Saens says:
"The marvel is 'The Welte-Mignon,' a modert name for a marvelous device. How can we refrain from regretting not to have known it before? We might then hear Beethoven, Mozart, and Chopin themselves." Demonstrations daily. 273 Fifth Avenue. (Opp. the Holland House.)—Adv.

PROFESSIONAL WOMEN'S FAIR

League's Bazaar to Open at the Waldorf on Friday.

The annual bazaar for the Professional Woman's League will be held at the Waldorf-Astoria beginning on Friday and continuing until Saturday midnight. Among those who will preside at booths are Amelia Bingham, President of the association; Lillian Russell, Pauline Fredericks, Caro Roma, Belle Gold, Mrs. Owen Kildare, in a novel literary bureau; Mrs. I. S. White, Mrs. Corse Payton, Billie Burke, Beatrice Goldie, and Irene Ackerman. The bazaar will be under the direction of Mrs. S. Ludlow Neidlinger.

An interesting feature of the fair will be the presentation for the first time of a group of artistic subjects, called "Ye Olde Picture Gallery," by Mme. Caro Roma, the composer. These will consist of reproductions from the old masters, as well as contemporaneous artists, including also drawings by George M. Cohan, May Robson, and others. Mme. Roma will be assisted by Margaret Conklin, Elsie Vaughn, the Baroness E. von Ryhiner, Hilma Johnson, the Misses Gladys and Dorothy Schultz, and Thomas Leary, lecturer.

The vaudeville entertainment for the bazaar will be conducted by Miss Mary Shaw, who has enlisted the services of various professionals of note now appearing in local theatres.

SENSATION SPRUNG AT IMPERIAL DURBAR

Viceroy Announces That Delhi Is to be the Capital of India Instead of Calcutta.

$1,600,000 GIFT FROM KING

To be Devoted to Education—Wonderful Scene of Color and Magnificence in Great Amphitheatre.

DELHI, Dec. 12.—King George V. and his consort, Queen Mary, were proclaimed Emperor and Empress of India to-day. This culminating act of the English monarch's accession to the throne of his vast Indian dominions took place amid a scene which for richness of color and magnificence of decorations has probably never been surpassed in modern times.

A sensation was provided at the Durbar, it being announced that the seat of the supreme Government of India is to be transferred from Calcutta to Delhi. An act of generosity on the King-Emperor's part, of which a slight hint had already been given, was also announced. The Viceroy proclaimed that the King-Emperor was to donate a large sum of money to promote popular education, and that further handsome gifts would be made.

The huge amphitheatre which had been erected in the Durbar Camp was thronged from an early hour. The bright tissues and sparkling gems of the many Indian Princes and the smart uniforms of the soldiery contrasted strongly with the white dresses of the European ladies and the sober garb of civilian officials.

The great feudatory princes and rulers of India, and the leading British officials occupied seats of honor near the pavilion in the centre. Screened from the gaze of the curious by a lattice framework, a number of Maharanis and other Indian ladies of high rank occupied two sections of the front galleries.

During the interval of waiting there was military music. Soldiers played a large part in the Durbar, and a guard of honor, composed of 100 picked men, was drawn up before the central pavilion. Troops of every arm surrounded the arena in a compact mass, and lines of soldiers extended along the route of the royal approach.

Cheers mingled with sobs heralded the arrival of a little band of veterans, the survivors of the armies which had made this Durbar possible. The old fighters in their weather-beaten uniforms strove to keep up a show of military formation as they marched to the privileged places allotted to them, but generally it was impossible, and many of them limped to their seats.

Almost immedately afterward the Viceregal procession came into view. Escorted by a brilliantly uniformed native bodyguard, the Viceroy and Lady Hardinge sat in their state carriage, drawn by blooded horses with outriders uniformed in scarlet and gold.

The Emperor's Robes and Crown.

Then the booming of an imperial salute announced the approach of the Emperor and Empress. The royal carriage, drawn by four magnificent horses, was almost hidden from view by the gaily caparisoned escort. The Emperor was in a robe of imperial purple, a surcoat of purple, white satin breeches, and silk stockings. He wore the collars of the Orders of the Garter and the Star of India and the star of the latter order. The imperial crown consisted of a band of diamonds studded with large emeralds and sapphires, with rubies in the centre, and a cap of purple velvet turned up with ermine.

The Queen-Empress's dress was of white satin embroidered with a design of roses, thistles, and shamrocks, with a border of lotus flowers. The Star of India embroidered the front of her dress. Her Majesty's imperial robe was of purple velvet trimmed with ermine, with a border of gold braid. She wore the Orders of the Garter and the Star of India. Her ornaments were a diamond and emerald nacklace and brooches.

Carriage after carriage with members of the suite followed the imperial pair. The guard presented arms and the bands burst into the royal anthem.

The combined processions proceeded slowly to the great central tent, where their Majesties stood to receive the homage and congratulations of the Governors, ruling Princes, and other representatives of British India.

When the gorgeously uniformed line had filed past, the imperial and Viceregal parties appeared before the vast assemblage in the Durbar amphitheatre. When they took their seats on the crimson dais the strains of the national anthem were heard, and the people rose as one person and stood in profound silence.

It was a pretty group around the four thrones of the Emperor, the Empress, the Viceroy, and the Vicereine, at the back of which the imperial and viceregal staffs and the Imperial Cadet Corps, composed entirely of youthful princes and scions of princely families, formed in rank.

The Durbar Ceremony.

The first formal act of the ceremony was performed by the Foreign Secretary, who advanced to the dais and asked permission of the Emperor to open the Durbar. At his signal a long roll from the drums and a thrilling call from the bugles were sounded, followed by a triumphant peal of music from the bands. Then a note from the heralds' silver trumpets rang over the plain.

At that moment appeared the striking figure of the Imperial herald, mounted on a jet-black charger and blazing in his brilliant uniform of gold and purple. Behind him were a drummer and sixteen trumpeters, eight British and eight natives. Halting for an instant, they sounded another blast, and then rose slowly toward the dais, where they gave a third call before saluting.

The Emperor then commanded the herald to read the proclamation announcing the coronation. The herald wheeled his charger around and read aloud, so that all could hear, that George V. had been crowned King-Emperor. At that moment the royal standard was unfurled from the tall flagstaff in the centre of the arena. The National Anthem was played by the massed bands, and as the last notes of the music died away 101 guns boomed the tidings of the proclamation.

Then, along the never-ending line of infantry, rattled out a continuous firing of blank cartridges.

The herald retired to the entrance of the arena, a further flourish was sounded, and the Emperor rose from his throne and bowed to all sides. As he sat down once more the herald called for three cheers for the Emperor, and a mighty roar burst from over 100,000 throats Natives vied with the British in their acclamations, and the cheers within the arena were continued by the troops outside until they extended to the horizon.

The Emperor's Gifts.

At the conclusion of the ceremony Lord Hardinge announced that the King had resolved to devote immediately 50 lakhs of rupees (about $1,600,000) to the promotion of popular education in India, and that further generous gifts would be made for the same purpose. He also announced that half a month's pay would be granted to the non-commissioned officers and the men as well as to the reservists of the British Army in India, and that officers and men of the native army in India would be eligible hereafter to receive the Victoria Cross for bravery on the field of battle. Half a month's pay was also granted to subordinate civil servants, and certain classes of prisoners were released from jail.

It was announced by the Viceroy that the seat of Government was to be transferred from Calcutta to Delhi.

The greatest Durbar ever held in India came to an end with the national anthem and a final burst from the silver trumpets.

As the King-Emperor and Queen-Empress, accompanied by Lord and Lady Hardinge and their suites, left the amphitheatre they were cheered time and again by the crowd until they reached their tents.

LONDON, Wednesday, Dec. 13.—The transfer of the capital of India to Delhi is largely attributable to the political unrest in Bengal.

The recent revolutionary discontent largely originated in Calcutta, and the task of administration on this account was rendered the more difficult.

Delhi, as the ancient capital, is regarded by the natives of Eastern Empire as a sort of shrine, so that the change will minimize the effects of Bengalese disaffection.

The Marquis of Lansdowne, the Opposition leader in the House of Lords, and Lord Curzon of Kedelston, who was Viceroy of India from 1898 to 1905, spoke gravely in the House of Lords last night concerning the change, and some of the Conservative morning papers follow suit. Their dissatisfaction is due to the fact that the policy involves a reversal of Lord Curzon's policy of bringing about the partition of Bengal, and they fear that the new departure may be construed in India as yielding to political agitation.

The change of the capital to Delhi is applauded generally, and almost all moderate opinion approves it.

Official papers issued on the subject show that the new policy was weightily considered before it was adopted, as being essential to the growth of local self-government in India on safe and sound lines.

Although the change may be much criticised in Parliament, all the party leaders recognize that, as it was announced by the King himself, it is irrevocable.

EXPLOSION ON DREADNOUGHT

Five Officers and Fifteen of Crew Injured on British Battleship.

PORTSMOUTH, Dec. 12.—Commander Herbert N. Garnett of the naval Ordnance Department, four engineer officers, and fifteen of the crew of the dreadnought battleship Orion were injured to-day by the explosion of an oil tank.

All the victims were badly burned or scalded on their faces and hands. Sixteen were so seriously hurt that they had to be taken to a hospital. One of the engineer Lieutenants rushed on deck with his clothes in flames, which were extinguished by other members of the crew.

The Orion is lying in one of the basins at the dockyard, where she is being completed for commission. She is fitted for the consumption of both oil fuel and coal.

MEXICAN TOWNS RAIDED.

Merchants Killed—Report That Reyists Plan Attack on Juarez.

Special to The New York Times.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 12.—There has been a decided recrudescence of brigandage in the State of Morelos, showing that, so far from being subdued, the Zapatistas are growing bolder.

The town of Ticuman was raided by bandits the night before last, and two merchants were killed, while the station agent was severely wounded, and the Zapatistas looted the station.

Bandit raids in the neighborhood of the City of Puebla are chiefly directed against the Spaniards, who own large properties in that district. A German employed on a hacienda had a narrow escape. Bandits had put a rope around his neck in order to hang him when he succeeded in convincing them that he was a German.

The town of Victoria, in the State of Guanajuato, has been occupied by several hundred Reyists. There was no garrison in the town and the Reyists found little resistance.

EL PASO, Dec. 12.—United States guards on the border were doubled to-day, when United States Army officers were notified that an insurrecto attack was to be made on Juarez.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

OPORTO, Dec. 12.—There were serious disturbances here to-day as a result of last night's accident, in which fourteen persons were killed and thirty injured by the derailment of two cars which fell into the River Douro. Many of the population stormed the offices of the street car company. The military were called out and drove the rioters off. Investigation shows that the foundations of the railroad, which were of sand, were weakened by recent floods.

BERLIN, Dec. 12.—John B. Jackson, American Minister to the Balkan States, has been stopping here for a few days. He will proceed to take up his new post in the Balkans on Dec. 15. He lunched with the Emperor and Empress at Potsdam on Sunday.

MADRID, Dec. 12.—The infant daughter of King Alfonzo and Queen Victoria, who was born early this morning, will probably receive the name of Cristina.

INTERNATIONAL PLOT AGAINST PORTUGAL

Fabra Ribas Declares That Germany Seeks to Obtain Territory in Angola.

NAMES THE "CONSPIRATORS"

Says They Meet in the Royal Castle of Nymphenburg, Which is the Clericals' Headquarters.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Wednesday, Dec. 13.—Humanité this morning prints over the signature of the Spanish Socialist Fabra Ribas extraordinary statements concerning Germany's alleged designs on the Portuguese forts situated in Angola, on the border of German Southwest Africa—namely, Fort Mercuso, in the territory of the native chief Soba; Fort Lebebe, and Fort Direco.

Señor Ribas alleges that during the Franco-German negotiations Foreign Secretary von Kiderlen-Wächter signified to Ambassador Cambon that Germany would not demand compensation, or hardly any, in the Congo if a free hand were allowed to her in the Portuguese colony of Angola.

Continuing his story of what he calls an "international plot against Portugal," Señor Ribas affirms that the royal castle of Nymphenburg, outside Munich, the residence of Prince Ludwig Ferdinand of Bavaria and his wife, the Infanta Maria de la Paz, aunt of King Alfonso and sister of the Infanta Eulalia, is the headquarters of the Clerical world policy and is the rallying point between Berlin, the Vatican, Madrid, and Vienna. There, he asserts, prominent Germans, such as Krupp von Bohlen-Halbach, Prince Henckel von Donnersmark, the Kaiser's personal friend, and Herr von Radowitz, formerly Ambassador at Madrid, have habitually met in the salon of the Infanta Maria de la Paz since the opening of the Franco-German Morocco negotiations.

Señor Ribas concludes by connecting the visits of these personages to Nymphenburg with the various recent allegations regarding Germany's attitude toward Portugal.

JAIL FOR SUFFRAGETTES.

Twenty Receive Sentences of Two Months in Prison—Two Discharged.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—Twenty-two of the 220 "Suffragettes" who were arrested for taking part in the rioting here on Nov. 21 were indicted at the London Sessions to-day. The others had been summarily sentenced by the Police Magistrate at the Bow Street Court on minor charges. The accused who appeared to-day had on their first appearance been committed for trial at the Sessions, and now had to answer more serious charges of maliciously damaging property.

All the prisoners pleaded "not guilty." They were brought up in batches. The first group when found guilty refused to undertake to refrain from similar lawlessness in the future, and each was sentenced to two months in jail.

The women entered the prisoners' inclosure in twos or threes throughout the day. The evidence against them was monotonously identical, and sentences of two months in prison were passed on all with the exception of two who were discharged.

LORDS REJECT PRIZE BILL.

Action Will Delay the Ratification of the Declaration of London.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—The House of Lords to-night rejected the Naval Prize bill by a vote of 145 to 53.

The Earl of Selborne, in moving the rejection, objected to the constitution of the proposed International Prize Court, pointing out that it gave to the British Empire only the same representation as that accorded to petty Central American republics. Furthermore, he said, the bill permitted an appeal from the British Privy Council to the Prize Court, but no corresponding appeal from the United States Supreme Court, the representatives of the United States having discovered that under their Constitution it was impossible to carry an appeal from their Supreme Court to any international tribunal.

It was therefore possible, Lord Selborne argued, to get two sets of conflicting judgments.

The Naval Prize bill passed its third reading in the House of Commons on Dec. 7, a motion for its rejection being defeated by 172 to 125. Its rejection by the House of Lords had been predicted. The passage of the Naval Prize bill would be tantamount to approval of the Declaration of London, the international agreement respecting prizes in naval warfare.

According to The London Daily Telegraph the rejection of the Naval Prize bill was determined upon by the House of Lords in order to prevent the Government from ratifying the Declaration of London. This procedure will delay the passage of the Prize bill for two years, and the Declaration of London cannot be ratified until the Prize bill has received the royal assent.

The Prime Minister, however, last June made it plain in the House of Commons that the British Government intended, despite all protests from British Admirals, shipowners, and Chambers of Commerce, to force through the ratification of the Declaration of London, which, he said, had been approved by the Government after the fullest possible deliberation.

FIRED ON A BRITISH SHIP.

Italian Cruiser Damaged a Merchant Vessel in the Red Sea.

MARSEILLES, Dec. 12.—The British steamer Baron Polwarth, which sailed from Manila on Nov. 8 for this port, arrived to-day and reported that she had been fired upon by an Italian cruiser while passing through the Red Sea on Nov. 30.

The vessel's bows were badly damaged when she came into port.

The Captain says that the commander of the Italian cruiser apologized for the occurrence.

RAINCOATS and SLIP-ONS
At Less Than Wholesale Prices

At $6.50 for $10 and $12 Grades
At $8.75 for $15 Grade
At $11.75 for $20 Grade

That's about all a man needs to know about the offering, in order to bring him here in a hurry this morning—either to pick out one of these fine Coats for himself, or to buy it as a welcome Christmas gift for some fortunate friend.

But it is interesting to know that the Coats are the surplus stock of a fine maker, who did not want to carry them over his inventory. The price was so low for Coats of such good quality, material, make and style, that we took up the offer in a jiffy. Here they are this morning, in these three tempting groups:

The $10 and $12 Slip-Ons at $6.50
Tan and olive shades, plaid or self-backs, raglan or box shoulders.

The $15 Raincoats at $8.75
Pure worsted, cassimeres and several other good, reliable materials; with plaid or plain backs, raglan or box shoulders; in tan or olive.

The $20 Raincoats at $11.75
Fine English Cantons, cassimeres, wool cheviots, and many other fabrics, in tan, olive, brown, gray and several mixtures, with raglan or box shoulders.

All sizes, in each of the above groups, for men and young men. Fourth floor

The Store Where a Man Buys Things for Himself, Is the Safe Store in Which to Buy Things for a Man

We feel very proud of the confidence we have won from the well dressed men of New York. No store could have keener critics. Broadway and Thirty-third street is a poor location for Men's Apparel that is not RIGHT.

One of our managers brought in a friend the other day who asked to see a certain kind of men's wear. Our man was a little nervous, for the garment was rather unusual. But the salesman brought out EXACTLY THE GARMENT DESIRED. Then the friend confessed that he had tried in five or six other good stores and failed to get what he wanted.

IF YOU CAN'T FIND IT AT GIMBELS, YOU'LL SCARCELY FIND IT ANYWHERE—if it's the correct thing in Men's Wear.

Our Christmas Stocks of MEN'S WEAR
Are Unusually Broad and Fine, and They Offer Wide Choice in Sensible Gifts for Men.

House Coats, Dressing Gowns and Bath Robes

Made in the best style, of selected materials, in comfortable models—a very broad variety to select from:

House Coats, $5, $6.50, $7.50, $10, $12, $15 and $18.

Dressing Gowns, $10, $12, $15, $20, $25 and $40.

Bath Robes, $3, $4, $5, $6.50, $7.50 and $10.

Men's Knitted Mufflers

Superb Dress Mufflers for evening wear; imported from England and France, and fine specimens from America's best looms, $2.50, $3.50, $5, $6.50, $7.50, $10 and $12.

Men's Silk Shirts $3.75

A thoroughly thoughtful gift for men, because perhaps more luxurious than he would buy for himself; and every man enjoys the possession of fine Silk Shirts. None are more handsomely made than these; plain front, coat style, French cuffs. Sizes 14 to 17. $3.75.

Suspenders

Perhaps no man ever had enough, and every man will be glad to have them a little better than the ordinary kinds. Every thoroughly good and attractive sort is here. Some mounted with unusually handsome buckles and nicely boxed for gift purposes. Suspenders with plated buckles, 50c to $3.75; Suspenders with sterling silver buckles, $2 to $4; Combination Sets of Suspenders, Garters and Arm Bands, 50c to $1.

Pajamas

You will be surprised to see how handsome men's sleeping garments are made, and you will see at a glance that they are splendid gifts for intimate friends. All will be nicely boxed. Madras Pajamas, $1.50 suit; of fine mercerized cloths, $2.50; of silk-and-cotton mixtures, $3.75; of silk-and-linen, $5; all-silk, $7.50 and $15.

An Aisle Full of Gifts in the Furniture Store

In the broad central aisle of the Furniture Store we have grouped a great many exquisite pieces of Furniture, quaint and graceful in shape, and with a savor of bygone times about them that lovers of the artistic and good in Home Furniture will find very fascinating. Most of them are of solid mahogany, many with delicate Sheraton inlay. We have illustrated some of the pieces, which are priced as follows:

Mahogany Curio Cabinet, inlaid, top lined with green silk, $34.
Colonial Work Table of Circassian walnut or mahogany, $15.
Mahogany Muffin Stand, with 3 shelves, $10.
Arm Chair, with mahogany frame, upholstered in brown or green, $33.
Rocker to match, at the same price.

A Superb Holiday Collection of Nickel and Copper Ware de Luxe

This great Gimbel Housewares Sale has so many hundreds of interesting things, from the little mayonnaise mixer, that makes such perfect salad dressing, to the fragrant chest of red cedar, that a walk through its aisles is a liberal education, in practical and pleasant housekeeping, as well as an inspiration if you have any married nds to give presents to.

But you will be particularly delighted with the wonderful gathering of shining things in nickel, copper and brass that are as itiful as they are practical, and which fairly radiate giftworthiness.

Here, for example, is a Chafing Dish of entirely new design, with pan of sterling silver, copper finished on the outside, on heavy oak base, and with imported vapor lamp. $35.

Chafing Dishes in similar designs in nickel or copper, on Mission blocks, with regulating lamp, at $19.25.

A Percolator in nickel or copper finish is in a unique loving-cup shape, with stag handles, and is $17.75 for the 9-cup size; or with ebony handles, at $13.50.

Two special groups of Coffee Percolators, in 6-cup size, with regulating lamp, are respectively $5 and $6, regularly $6.50 and $8.

There is a very fine variety of Relish or Hors d'Oeuvre Sets, with cut glass or porcelain centers and heavy nickel frames and handles, at $4 to $15 each. Also various styles of Turnarounds or "Lazy Susies," with porcelain centers, at $6.75 to $10.

Other fine Christmas suggestions are the stunning copper Cocktail Shakers, silver-lined; the Demi-tasse Sets of six cups in brass holders, on oak stands, at $18 to $22.50; the Rhine Wine Sets at $18; a large assortment of mahogany Cocktail Trays, some with glass centers, at $5 to $18, and many sweet-toned Dinner Gongs of various styles, from $1 to $40.

You will probably be able to make a number of check marks against the names on your Christmas list after a visit to this collection.

MT. VERNON BANK CASHIER HELD, TOO

Indicted with Jennings for Getting Loans Through Janitors and Office Boys.

McDONALD ESTATE A LOSER

But E. K. Stallo Says He Merely Fulfilled His Father-in-Law's Commitments—Plan to Sell Bank's Assets.

Following the arrest on Monday of Herbert Theodore Jennings for the misapplication of more than $150,000 of the funds of the Mount Vernon National Bank, of which he was President, Samuel K. Raymond, who was cashier of the institution and was indicted jointly with Jennings, surrendered himself yesterday to United States Marshal Henkel. Both Jennings and Raymond were arraigned before Judge Holt in the United States Circuit Court and pleaded not guilty. Jennings's bond of $25,000 was continued and Raymond gave $10,000 bail.

The indictment charges the bank officers with making unsecured loans to janitors, office boys, and other irresponsible persons, the proceeds of which went into one of Jennings's enterprises, the Broadway and Forty-third Street Building Company, which put up the Fitzgerald Building.

Negotiations are in progress for the sale of the assets of the bank, in connection with which a conference was held yesterday at the office of Felix H. Levy, counsel for the Depositors' Commitee, at 37 Liberty Street. Those present, besides Mr. Levy, included Philip Tillinghast, receiver for the bank, and Henry Muck, Chairman of the Depositors' Committee. Mr. Levy's connection with the matter disclosed the fact that Mme. Johanna Gadski, the opera singer, who is Mme. Hans Tauscher in private life, is one of the depositors whose money is tied up in the closed bank. She consulted Mr. Levy, who is her personal counsel, and through this he became counsel for the committee. Mme. Gadski's account amounted to $17,000, on which, like the other depositors, she had received 15 per cent.

Mr. Tillinghast, who is frequently appointed receiver for failed banks by Controller of the Currency Murray, was asked yesterday as to Mr. Jennings's career as a banker.

"Jennings and President Bain of the Seaboard National Bank," he said, "bought control of the Mount Vernon National Bank in 1907. They had a dispute over certain loans, and by means of a stockholders' meeting Jennings got Bain out and had his own Directors elected, so that he came into full control.

"Later on Jennings put up a hotel and bank building in Oneonta, and on Jan. 1, 1910, he, with R. W. Jones of the Oriental Bank; Bird M. Robinson, Edmund K. Stallo, and William E. Holloway of the Hungarian-American Bank bought control of the First National Bank of Oneonta. Subsequently Jennings bought out Holloway and Jones, and after about fourteen months—on March 23, 1911—the bank closed its doors. Among the assets of this bank were first-class railroad bonds to the amount of $54,000. These were sold to A. H. Jones, brother of R. W. Jones, and the money was used to further Jennings's schemes. After the bank closed the assets were sold to the Citizens' National Bank, which assumed all liabilities.

"Jennings put $53,000 into the Westchester County Brewery of Mount Vernon before it started business and $103,000 into the Broadway and Forty-third Street Building Company, in which he and Stallo were interested. The latter company got into difficulties, but it was reorganized, and a settlement made with the lien holders.

"Some of the money of Alexander McDonald, the Standard Oil man, once reputed to be worth millions, went into Jennings's enterprises. Mr. Stallo was McDonald's son-in-law and the administrator of his estate. He collected life insurance of McDonald's amounting to about $24,000 and deposited it to his account as administrator in the Mount Vernon Bank. He could not legally draw any of it without having his checks countersigned by the National Surety Company, the surety on his bond as administrator. He drew a check, however, for about that amount, which was not so countersigned, but which was paid by the Mount Vernon Bank, the money going into Jennings's enterprises.

"When I first took charge of the Mount Vernon Bank I found that all its assets had been pledged with the National Reserve Bank to secure a loan of $72,000. There wasn't much cash in the bank, and the first thing I had to do was to pay off this loan in order to get back the assets. I am now trying to sell the assets advantageously in bulk, failing which I will proceed to liquidate its affairs in the ordinary way. I expect to pay another dividend to the depositors within a short time."

Edmund K. Stallo, who was mentioned by Mr. Tillinghast, is the father of the Stallo girls, who were long reputed to be great heiresses from the estate of their grandfather, Alexander McDonald. Estimates of this estate have recently shrunk from $50,000,000 to about $300,000. The stock in Jennings's Oneonta Bank was bought in Mr. McDonald's name and was paid for partly in cash by Jennings and partly by notes for $20,000 signed by Mr. Stallo as attorney for Mr. McDonald. The payment of these notes out of the McDonald estate is now being contested by the Metropolitan Trust Company, which succeeded Mr. Stallo as administrator. This case is now in the hands of a referee appointed by the court in Oneonta.

In explanation of the transaction with the Mount Vernon National Bank, Mr. Stallo said yesterday that he had no knowledge of the check having been paid and that the statement of his account furnished by the bank made no reference to it.

"The circumstances." he said, "were these: Mr. McDonald had personally subscribed for bonds of the Broadway and Forty-third Street Building Company. After his death Mr. Jennings asked me to take up the bonds. I was in doubt as to my authority to carry out the subscription, so I gave Jennings the check and told him to go to the National Surety Company and explain the transaction. If they were satisfied that the bonds should be taken up, they would countersign the check. If not, he was not to use the check, and was to consider the subscription canceled.

"I heard nothing more about the check and did not suppose it was used. In fact, I don't know now that it ever was. It is not charged against my account as administrator on statements furnished to me by the bank, and I subsequently checked out all of the $24,000 for purposes of the estate, the checks being countersigned by the surety company, with the exception of $7,562.60. I gave my check for the balance to the Metropolitan Trust Company when it succeeded me as administrator, but the bank refused to pay it, as it held a note of somewhat more than that against Mr. McDonald. The note was signed by me as attorney for Mr. McDonald, which I clearly had a right to do. Furthermore, it was a renewal note, the original of which was signed by Mr. McDonald personally. The present administrator is contesting the payment of this note."

Felix H. Levy, counsel for the Depositors' Committee, said yesterday:

"The members of the Depositors' Committee are very much gratified at the institution of criminal proceedings against Jennings and Raymond. The committee members have been actively at work for several weeks in helping the authorities ferret out the wrongdoing which has caused the failure of the bank. They have been convinced for a long time that its failure was due to dishonest transactions on the part of its officers. Because of these activities and effort in aiding the receiver and the Controller of the Currency, who has given the matter his personal attention, to dispose of the assets to advantage, they are not yet able to make a formal report to the depositors."

Mr. Jennings, who lives at 336 Garden Avenue, Mount Vernon, said last night:

"If the receiver had not put so many handicaps in my way I would have been able to reorganize the Mount Vernon National Bank and pay all the depositors in full. As the result of the present Federal prosecution, I cannot say how much the depositors will receive. So far as the charge that a janitor was used as a dummy is concerned, it is absurd. The man referred to is the Superintendent of a large office building and is a man of means.

"The present receiver of the Mount Vernon National Bank, Philip Tillinghast, is a professional Government receiver, and of the forty-odd banks he has been receiver of he has not opened one."

CARNEGIE TRUST IN INVOLVED NOTE SUIT

Nineteenth Ward Bank Seeks to Recover $50,000 on Paper of Ernest J. and W. Knabe.

BOUGHT FROM THE CARNEGIE

Knabes, Also in the Suit, Say Payment Was Made and Demand to See the Bank's Books.

While the Carnegie Trust Company was still sailing along on a smooth sea and with favoring winds it accepted two notes for $25,000 each, made by Ernest J. and W. Knabe, the pianomakers. They were dated in November, 1909, and were to run four months. During this brief period the Carnegie Company felt the pinch of poverty and sold the notes to the Nineteenth Ward Bank at the usual discount. On March 14, 1910, the notes matured, and on March the Nineteenth Ward Bank people began peering around for somebody to settle. The Knabe people said they couldn't pay just then. This concern had fallen into a trust of its own building, called the American Piano Company, and needed what money it had for current purposes.

The firm wanted to renew the notes for six months and the Nineteenth Ward Bank said that would be all right if the Carnegie Trust Company would indorse the new notes. This indorsement was given by Vice President Robert L. Smith. When the first note was made there was only the usual business sympathy between the trust company and the bank, but before the note was renewed Messrs. Reichmann, Cummins, and Condon of the trust company had become affiliated with the bank.

There are a whole lot of details between the three concerns which will be threshed out in court. The threshing began yesterday afternoon before Supreme Court Justice Erlanger, and will go on this morning. Mr. McIlvaine of Closson, Parsons & McIlvaine, counsel for the bank, said the only thing his client wants is the $50,000. If the bank can win this suit it will hunt around for some well-to-do citizens who was an official of the trust company, dig him out, and invite him to pay the bill, and it is believed that he will have to pay. This is the reason why there is considerable interest in the present suit, for no man can tell precisely upon whom the blow will fall and why there are many eager prayers that the bank will not win.

The trust company is asserting that the close business relations between the two concerns made the transaction a purely personal one with the bank, and that it ought to stand its own losses and not seek to fasten them upon innocent persons. It also says that if anybody is sued it ought to be the Knabe people, because they made the notes and got the money. The reply to this was that it is usual in all business matters to seek to collect from the easiest source, and in this case the trust company or some of the distinguished gentlemen who made that company will surely prove easier just at present than anybody else.

There is also a $30,000 transaction that will eventually come into this suit. It was in court yesterday before Justice Cohalan on a motion made by Bradley Martin, Jr., for the vacation of an order for the examination of the books of the Nineteenth Ward Bank. This order was obtained by the Knabes, who say that they have already paid a note to the bank for $20,439, which was the balance due on a note bearing date of March 10, 1910. The Knabes say that this payment was included in a compromise made with the trust company in July by which the company was to accept $50,000 in cash and a note for $30,000 in settlement of claims aggregating $100,000. They want to see the books of the bank to substantiate this statement. The application to vacate was denied.

But this $30,000 transaction appeared before Justice Erlanger in the form of a note which it is claimed was given by the Knabes for this amount at the solicitation of Mr. Reichmann of the company and secured by an assignment of the Knabes' interest in the American Piano Company.

SAY HE DROVE SLAYER'S TAXI

Young Man Held for Complicity in Adolph Stern's Murder.

Detectives McKinney, Savage, and Raftis went to 204 East Fourteenth Street yesterday afternoon and arrested there a young man who said he was James J. Keating of 27 Desbrosses Street. The detectives say he is known as "Lefty" Keating. They assert that he ran the taxicab in which the slayer of Adolph Stern escaped with the robbers of Jacob Jacobi's jewelry store, at Thirteenth Street and Sixth Avenue, on the night of July 22.

Keating was suspected because of his friendship for Martin Garvey, now in the Tombs charged with Stern's murder. According to Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty, Keating admitted his friendship for Garvey. Magistrate House remanded Keating to await the Coroner's action.

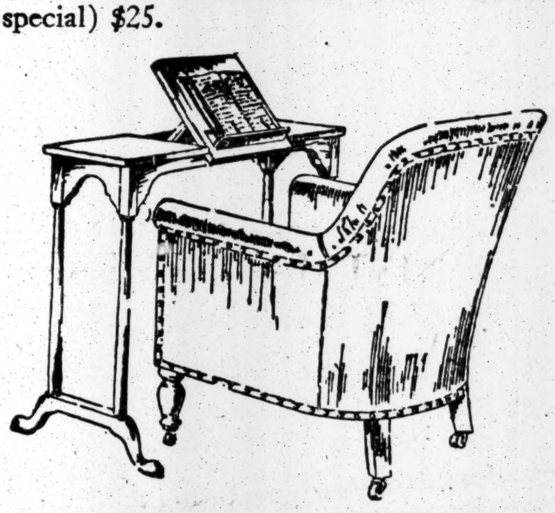
Solid St. Jago Mahogany Reading Stand, as illustrated; a representative example—in wood, workmanship, and finish—of TOBEY HANDMADE FURNITURE. Price, (special) $25.



Length, 38⅝ inches; height, 27⅛ inches; width, 10⅝ inches; is large enough to be used with almost any easy-chair; top is adjustable, and may be folded down flat, allowing use of table for writing.

Few persons, comparatively, appreciate the wide difference in the qualities of mahogany in the market today; or realize the superiority of the finest hand-workmanship over the best factory grades; or know the possibilities in finishing fine woods in such a way as to bring out the full beauty of their grains and colorings.

It is for these reasons that we submit for present consideration the moderate-priced Tobey Handmade Reading Desk shown above, in the hope that it may go into many homes, and that by it we may be able to demonstrate what we believe to be the highest standard of furniture making the world has yet known.

We are willing and anxious that your opinion of TOBEY HANDMADE FURNITURE shall rest upon the comparison which this reading stand sustains with any other article of furniture in your home.

TWO FEDERAL JURIES TRACING DYNAMITERS

HEAD IRONWORKERS GONE

Secretary Hockin Closes Offices and His Whereabouts Are Unknown—Burns After Hidden Dynamite.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 12.—Ortie E. McManigal's confession and his subsequent statements will be the basis of the McNamara Federal investigation by the Grand Jury which begins in Indianapolis Thursday morning.

McManigal's assertions have been investigated, and, it is said, found by Government agents to be authentic. The statements have been made ready for the Grand Jury by weeks of preparation by United States District Attorney Charles W. Miller and others in Indianapolis.

Six labor leaders in various cities in the United States are implicated by the document. McManigal tells of receiving an assignment from J. J. McNamara or other officials of the ironworkers to "do a job" in a certain city. He tells of calling upon these labor leaders, making himself known to them, and discussing the crimes under their personal direction.

Clerks who wrote letters, baggage men and shippers, and all those who are supposed to have had any knowledge of the movement of the explosives used by the McNamaras are among the several hundred witnesses who have been summoned to testify.

The explosives about which special inquiry was made to-day are the following:

Some 1,490 pounds of dynamite discovered in a padlocked box in a barn in the rear of Ortie E. McManigal's father's home at Tiffin, Ohio, April 23, 1911.

Ninety pounds of dynamite sticks found in the basement of a building in Indianapolis, in which were located the offices of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, on April 22, 1911, a few hours after the arrest of John J. McNamara, the Secretary-Treasurer of the association.

Twenty-five pounds of nitro-glycerine dynamite found in a piano box in the western outskirts of Indianapolis, a few days later.

Thirty-eight quarts of nitroglycerine buried in a shed near Rochester, Penn.

The points upon which enlightenment was sought in connection with these instances were: Who wrote the correspondence relative to the purchase and shipment of the explosives? Who paid the bills and kept the accounting of expense? By what means were the explosives transported?

To all appearances the headquarters of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers were closed to-day. The shades were drawn, the door was locked, and the whereabouts of Herbert S. Hockin, the Acting Secretary, became a mystery.

W. J. Burns, the detective, who has been in consultation with officials of the Erectors' Association, left to-night for Washington and New York. He said he would return here Friday.

"I think there was more dynamite planted in various parts of the East than has ever been discovered," said Burns. "It is likely that this has not been removed, as those who hid it would not be inclined to attempt to remove it now."

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 12.—The Federal Grand Jury resumed to-day its investigation into alleged conspiracies against Federal statutes in connection with numerous dynamitings which have occurred in various parts of the country within three years. The trail of The Los Angeles Times dynamiting will be followed, to learn who, if any one, inspired James B. McNamara to blow up the Times Building. More than 130 witnesses have been summoned.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Resolutions denouncing the McNamaras but defending the course of organized labor in providing money for the defense of the accused men when they were believed to be innocent have ben adoptd by the Central Labor Union of Washington. The resolutions also condemn the "kidnappers" of the McNamaras.

OFFERS GOMPERS $250,000.

C. W. Post Proposes New National Labor Organization.

Special to The New York Times.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Dec. 12.—In a letter mailed to Samuel Gompers to-day C. W. Post offered Mr. Gompers a quarter of a million dollars cash as a foundation fund for a new National labor organization built according to his ideas, inviting Mr. Gompers to come and confer with him, and then go ahead with the organization work.

Mr. Post a year or two ago organized here the National Association of Trades and Workers. As far as known, the organization never has extended outside of Battle Creek. Co-operation between employers and employe is the keynote of its principles, and arbitration the means of settling all disputes.

The letter invites Mr. Gompers to "consider the new movement for the workingmen of America enlisted under the banner of the National Trades and Workers' Association, free from strikes, slugging, picketing, tyranny, fines, dynamiting, and murder."

NEW CHARGE OF JURY BRIBING.

Franklin Accused by Bain, Who Accepted Money from Him.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 12.—District Attorney John D. Fredericks to-day filed a second information against Burt H. Franklin, an investigator in the McNamara murder trial, charging him with bribery and with having attempted to influence the verdict of a jury. Franklin already has been held to the Superior Court for trial on another information, and the new one has to do with Robert F. Bain, a sworn juror, who testified in court that he had taken a bribe.

The defense in the case in which Franklin is accused of having bribed George N. Lockwood, a talesman not served with jury summons, is that Lockwood was not a juror and was not bribed.

SAY THEY KILLED SWEEZEY.

Police Certain That Wince or Hendrichs Hit the Street Cleaner.

The police declared themselves confident yesterday that in either Joseph Wince of 241 East Third Street or George Hendrichs of 48 Avenue B, whom they arrested on Monday night, they have the murderer of William Sweezey, the strikebreaking driver of a Street Cleaning Department cart, who was killed in front of 239 East Third Street by a flagstone thrown from a roof on Monday afternoon.

According to Acting Capt. Foye of the Union Market Station, Hendrichs admitted that he had been drinking with Wince in the afternoon, and that he had suggested to Wince that they "start something" with the strikebreakers in the street. They went to the roof of 239 East Third Street, from where, according to the police, Hendrichs admits he threw a brick, and says he saw Wince throw "something" too.

Then, according to the police, Hendrichs says he went to Wince's home at 241 East Third Street, where Wince took off his clothes and went to bed, while he went to the backyard, crawled out through a hole in the fence, and mingled with the crowd around the dead man in the street. He even talked to the foreman for whom he had formerly worked, according to the police, until the ambulance arrived and took Sweezey to Bellevue.

Wince denics that he threw anything. Both men were held without bail by Coroner Feinberg.

Receiver in Bankruptcy a Bankrupt.

Eli M. Simon, a buyer, of 560 West 144th Street, who filed a petition in bankruptcy on Monday, with liabilities of $1,150 and no assets, was appointed receiver for the House of Fashion, dealer in women's apparel at 42 West Thirty-fourth Street, on Oct. 25 last under a bond of $15,000, at the request of creditors. Clerks at the Bankruptcy Court did not remember such a cause before, where a receiver became a bankrupt as an individual.

DYNAMITE CONTROL URGED

Business Congress Also Hears F. T. Martin Contend That Compulsory Insurance Will Remedy Economic Ills.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—The birth of a new political party, composed of business men and formed as a protesting organization, was predicted in a resolution submitted to the National Business Congress by A. Parker Nevin of New York, general counsel of the National Association of Manufacturers. Final action on the resolution will be announced to-morrow.

Another delegate also proposed that Congress be asked to regulate the sale and transportation of dynamite and other high explosives, as the result of a discussion of the McNamara case at Los Angeles. It is urged that the illegal distribution of explosives be made a felony.

Frederick Townsend Martin, who gave an address urging compulsory insurance as a panacea for economic ills, declared last night that henceforth his life will be devoted to the salvation of the poor, the downtrodden, and the unfortunate.

"My mission now is to solve the problem of poverty and banish misery," said Mr. Martin. "I have quit puzzling my brain to devise ways to feed and entertain the idle rich, and shall be content hereafter to be known as the poor man's friend."

Mr. Martin said he had already taken up his life work and declared that he would endeavor to banish crime from the Whitechapel district of London, from the Bowery in New York, and remedy similar conditions in Chicago.

Mr. Martin, in discussing compulsory insurance, contended that it would cause a greater degree of equality between employer and employe and that it was the economic salvation of the masses. "What public schools are to intellectual development," he said, "compulsory insurance is to industrial growth."

An address by John Kirby, Jr., was largely devoted to an attack on the American Federation of Labor.

"The record of this organization," he said, "and the acts and utterances of its officers leave not the shadow of a doubt that its policy is to employ any means, no matter how brutal, unlawful, or unreasonable, that will tend to promote an industrial condition in this country in which the employing classes shall be absolutely at the mercy and dictation of a gigantic and merciless labor trust.

"Be not long deceived by shams and cunningly devised and hypocritical statements, for this institution has proved itself to be a cold, merciless, and murderous organization, having not the slightest regard for the flag of our country.

"I have repeatedly stated publicly that the type of unionism represented by the American Federation of Labor and advocated by Gompers and Mitchell is as great, if not a greater, menace to society than was the Ku Klux Klan, the Molly McGuires, the Mafias, and the Black Hand Societies."

SHOOTS BURGLAR AT WORK.

Policeman Fires Through Plate Glass Window and Gets His Man.

Policeman Harrison of the West Forty-seventh Street Station thought he heard a noise, and also got a glimpse of some one in the grocery of John M. Loftus, at 847 Tenth Avenue as he passed there about 12:30 o'clock this morning. Harrison was certain that burglars were at work, but he passed on leisurely as if his suspicions had not been aroused. Around the next corner he picked up Policemen Mullins and Siebert and returned with them to the store.

A man darted from the hallway of the flat house in which the store occupies the ground floor and Siebert put after him, catching his man a block or so away. Mullins got a second youth who slipped from a side door of the store and ran. Harrison tried the front door. It was locked. The noise he made startled a youth bending over the cash register and he sprang up and ran toward the rear of the store, where a window was open.

Harrison yanked out his revolver and fired a shot through the big show window of the store. His bullet struck the youth in the left hip and he fell in front of the window he had been trying to reach.

The noise of the shot aroused the neighborhood, and a dozen men ran out of near-by houses. They helped Harrison crawl though the rear window of the grocery, where protecting iron bars had been pried apart, and he got the youth he had shot. He called an ambulance from Flower Hospital, and the boy was taken there, where it was said that his wound was not serious.

The wounded youth said he was Martin Rowan, 16 years old, of 119 West Sixtieth Street. The others said they were Joseph Tierney of 810 Seventh Avenue and Jeremiah Quinn of 860 Tenth Avenue. They were locked up.

CITY BREVITIES.

Tugs removed yesterday the greater part of the cargo of the steamer Chelsea, stranded in the fog on the Sunken Meadows, but they were unable to float the steamer.

Edward C. Brooks began suit yesterday against the Guayaquil & Quito Railway Company of New Jersey for $37,500. He says he was engaged as assistant to the President under contract of May 2, 1905, at $7,500 a year, and that he received no pay from 1906 to 1910.

Policeman Frederick Niebuhr of the Adams Street Station, Brooklyn, found a two-weeks-old baby boy, dressed neatly in white, in the hallway of 400 Hudson Avenue. Pinned to the dress was a card with the inscription, "To St. Vincent's Foundling Asylum, Sixty-eighth Street, New York." The child went to the city nurse.

In preparation for operation of cars over the Queensboro Bridge the Third Avenue Bridge Company, a subsidiary of the Third Avenue Railroad, has applied to the Public Service Commission for authority to issue $20,000 stock, to be used in the purchase of three or four cars. Commissioner Maltbie will hold a hearing on Dec. 18.

Nothing of human interest is alien to the new edition. It is a book for everybody, and is offered at a price and on terms (in either format or in any of the seven styles of binding), which bring it within the reach of everybody.

A New 164-Page India Paper Prospectus

Has been prepared by the Cambridge University Press, which is believed to be sufficiently adequate for every ordinary purpose of investigation to render an actual examination of the volumes of the new Encyclopaedia Britannica almost unnecessary. This prospectus, which will be mailed free on request, is printed on India paper from the same type and with the same page form as the original work, and contains hundreds of articles or portions of articles taken bodily from the original text, illustrated by 59 text cuts, 34 full-page plates and 3 maps.

The reader is urged to write for the new India paper prospectus at once or to call and get one personally at the address below, where of course he can at the same time inspect the original work.

The Cambridge University Press begs to announce that the delivery before Christmas Day of out-of-town orders for the 11th edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica (28 volumes and Index) cannot be guaranteed unless application is made at the very latest by December 20th. Orders received after that date will of course be expedited as far as possible, but any one who contemplates giving the new edition as a Christmas present and wishes to be perfectly certain that it will be delivered in time, will be well advised in acting promptly, and thus guarding against possible delays.

Quite a number of the orders which the Cambridge University Press is booking for Christmas delivery come from subscribers who already possess the 11th edition, but who are purchasing one or more additional copies to present to relatives or friends.

A Letter from the Late Joseph Pulitzer

Your edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica (11th edition) I think the most monumental work I have ever known. The best evidence of my enthusiasm is that I have already distributed a dozen sets in America as presents among editors and my children, not counting my own sets. I can hardly conceive a more suitable present to both young and old. The work is a liberal education. I shall probably order half-a-dozen sets more when the work is complete.* I want to thank you for the intellectual pleasure I enjoyed this winter in examining this extraordinary production.

JOSEPH PULITZER.

Wiesbaden.

These sets were subsequently ordered, making 18 sets in all.

A HOME BOOK

The principal motive with most persons when making a Christmas present is to give something useful but at the same time "distinctive," and it is not easy to think of anything that possesses the desired qualities. The new Encyclopaedia Britannica, while more than filling every ordinary requirement, has a special appropriateness as a Christmas gift, for it is one of which the usefulness will be shared by its possessor with others around him. It is essentially a work for the home. The service which it can render to the inmates of a house is clearly limited only by the extent of their desire for information. Whether the need of the moment relates to the rules of a game, the repair of a house, the laying out of a garden, the breeding of a dog, the treatment of a cold, the latest theory of radio-activity, or the influence of Wagner, the answer to the reader's question comes as directly and as quickly as though the specialist who wrote the article was at hand to furnish in person the practical guidance demanded.

Indeed, it would be difficult to ask more of a Christmas gift than that it should be constantly used by every member of the household into which it finds its way. Yet this is the practical experience of thousands of private subscribers who have communicated with the Cambridge University Press. As one subscriber says: "The lightness of the books, the beauty of the type, the interesting style of all the articles are so inviting that I can hardly keep my hands off the volumes even when I must be doing other things."

Orientals

Largest Specialty Rug House in America.

Rugs as Personal Gifts

To the father with a married son or daughter—and to the mother with a daughter of marriageable age—

IS THERE ANY GIFT MORE APPROPRIATE THAN A GOOD ORIENTAL RUG?

The young girl who is "fixing up" her room expects to begin her housekeeping with her own boudoir furnishings.

She is gradually collecting—for a purpose that has its sentimental as well as its utilitarian side.

The rug received from her father or mother or brother is the most acceptable of all gifts. It carpets her room—and it carpets her castle in Spain.

Thus a rug may be an EXTREMELY personal gift, rather than a general household purchase.

In any event, the gift that passes means the friendship that fades.

Searching the list for something which personifies loving sentiment BEST and LONGEST, what equals the Oriental rug?

It has come down through the centuries—the patriarchs' first hearthstone—its motives and its colorings little changed—its permanency in the regard of mankind fixed.

The gift rug should be selected under the VERY BEST auspices—where the utmost supervision has been exercised in your behalf.

No shadow of doubt should ever fall across it.

It never does, across a Wild's Oriental.

The name indicates to the recipient the care you have taken in securing the best of its class, whatever the price.

There are many rugs in the Wild collection, of various Persian weaves, at $12, $15, $25, $50 and $75, any one of which may be graciously given and will be gratefully received.

They are not of the vagabond, bale-lot variety—the flotsam of the Persian shore.

They are made by the descendants of the men and women who made the fine antiques—carefully selected and honestly marked by Wild's experts.

There are also rugs in the Wild collection which would add richness to the atmosphere of a palace—appropriate heirloom gifts which a man of wealth may present to his wife or daughter.

It is the largest collection of GOOD ORIENTALS to be found in any mercantile establishment in America.

REA REPLIES TO ATTACK ON HIS ROAD

Something Lacking in Merchants Objecting to 7th Ave. Subway, He Suggests.

OTHER TRADESMEN BENEFIT

If Assessments Near the Pennsylvania Station Are Too High, See the City Authorities, He Says.

Samuel Rea, Vice President of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, in a letter to the Public Service Commission yesterday replied to the protest made by the Forty-second Street Association against the expenditure of any city money for a subway to benefit the railroad company. A special point in that communication was made of the extra ten-cent fare which Pennsylvania passengers using its new Thirty-third Street station must pay and the contention that the only effect that the business men of the district about the station had noticed through the building of the station was an increase of their assessments.

With regard to the first point Mr. Rea points out that the new station was built primarily to meet the needs of the long-distance passengers and the patrons of the Long Island Railroad. As for the complaints of the heavy assessments, Mr. Rea suggests that they apply to the city authorities for relief, and remarks that other merchants have made their shops more attractive, when such a burden has fallen upon them, and thus benefited by the new conditions. Mr. Rea's letter reads:

> The Pennsylvania Railroad Company,
> Philadelphia, Dec. 9, 1911.
> The Hon. William R. Willcox, Chairman Public Service Commission for First District, 154 Nassau St., New York City.
> Dear Sir: I notice in the newspapers that a protest has been made to the commission by the Forty-second Street Association against a subway which would selfishly benefit the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. It needs no assurance from the commission that it would never authorize a subway for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, if in addition it was not imperatively required to relieve the transit needs of New York City and in addition redeem an obligation of the city to this company long overdue.
> The complaint of the association seems to be based on three points: First, an extra charge for bringing New Jersey passengers into Pennsylvania Station; second, the increased assessments on real estate anticipating increased business from the Pennsylvania Railroad passengers, and, third, that only a small number of persons are using that station and that the shops have not had any perceptible benefit from the opening of the station.
> As to the first, the commission, I am sure, appreciates that this is not the only station of the Pennsylvania Railroad in New York City, and that about two-thirds of the passengers desired to use, and continue to use, the downtown station in the Hudson Terminal, which route is being operated in connection with the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad Company. The uptown station has been constructed primarily to accommodate the longer distance traffic, which desires to reach that centre of the city for business and recreational purposes, and for the very large volume of daily traffic to and from the Long Island Railroad, most of which is within the limits of Greater New York City.
> During the first year of its operation the Pennsylvania Station has handled about 10,000,000 passengers, of which two-thirds constitute traffic to and from the Long Island Railroad. In addition to this 10,000,000 the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad has also opened its station at Herald Square, and the statistics of the travel on the elevated line, the Thirty-fourth Street surface line, and the crowded conditions in Herald Square show the effect of the additional traffic brought to and from that centre by the Pennsylvania Railroad, and that traffic is increasing, and with a west side Subway line would bring a very large number of additional passengers and shoppers.
> If the assessments on property in that vicinity are too high it is a matter which should be taken up with the proper city authorities, but it may be well to point out that if the Pennsylvania Railroad had not entered that section and did not pay the very large amount of taxes which it now pays the burden of these merchants might be even heavier than it is to-day. These merchants do not point out that they may be suffering from adverse trade conditions, and they are, I am sure, aware that the merchants of Newark and other New Jersey points are blaming the railroad because of too frequent service to and from New York, but instead of resting with the complaint, as the merchants in the Forty-second Street Association have done, they have made their shops more attractive and made other advantages for people to shop in the City of Newark and other places, and this is doubtless what the members of the Forty-second Street Association will ultimately do.
> If the greatly increased number of passengers which the railroad has brought to that centre, including so many long-distance passengers who come to the city for recreational and business purposes and make large purchases, has not benefited these merchants there must be something at fault with trade or other conditions over which the railroad has no control. It is the only association so far in New York City that has objected to the completion of the logical extensions of the present city Subway, and we believe that more substantial benefits will flow to the members of this association and to the city by advocating Subway facilities along the lower west side of Manhattan and accommodating the Pennsylvania Station and reaching all the other boroughs than by submitting objections to further delay Subway building.
> It is, however, some relief to also find in to-day's papers the admirable resolutions of the West End Association pointing out the need for a Seventh Avenue Subway.
> Yours very truly, SAMUEL REA,
> First Vice President.

Mr. Rea has been the prime mover in a number of conferences held in the last few weeks by the Pennsylvania officials, Chairman Willcox of the Public Service Commission, and the members of the Board of Estimate Subway Committee, to discuss the possibility of building a Subway down Seventh Avenue for the accommodation of passengers using the new Pennsylvania Station. So far nothing has come of these discussions and no definite scheme has been put forward by the Pennsylvania or the Interborough.

OPIUM SMUGGLERS GUILTY.

Boston and Blake Suddenly Halt Their Trial and Change Their Pleas.

Charlie Boston and Lai Bake, who were on trial before Judge Holt, in the United States Circuit Court, yesterday pleaded guilty unexpectedly to all the counts in the indictments against them for smuggling opium.

Evidence had been brought out complicating police officials in some of the large cities of the East, and it was suggested that on account of the revelations that might have come out as the trial proceeded, influence was brought to bear on the defendants to induce them to admit their guilt.

The particular piece of evidence which precipitated the withdrawal of the pleas of not guilty was the introduction by Assistant United States Attorney Walker of a letter mailed from Baltimore to Boston on Sept. 27, 1910, by George Hay, a stage hand, in which he asked Boston to send him some opium. The letter read:

> Dear Mr. Boston: I inclose $3, for which please send me a glass jar with $3 worth of hop in it. I told the "old man." I would write you earlier, but forgot the number. Please send "hop" at once, as I am all out and need it badly. GEORGE HAY.

Hay identified letters he had written to Boston from all over the country as he went on tour with a theatrical company. Some of them were addressed to Tuck, Ling & Co., 496 Seventh Avenue, which the Government says was the name of the firm under which Boston operated.

Col. Davis's Fortune Goes to Nephew.

KEYSER, West Va., Dec. 12.—The will of Col. Thomas B. Davis, the millionaire brother of former United States Senator Henry G. Davis, disposes of an estate valued at $1,250,000, which a few years ago was estimated at $5,000,000, but which had decreased because of gifts to relatives. Thomas B. Davis, a nephew residing in New York, is the principal beneficiary, receiving the homestead, furniture, race horses, and race track here.

$90,000 A YEAR, BUT IS POOR

So Argues Mr. Ridgely in Answering His Wife's Charges.

Mrs. Jessie B. Ridgely, wife of Albert Newton Ridgely, publisher of a newspaper which furnishes tips on the stock market, applied to Justice Clark in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, yesterday, for an allowance for counsel fees and alimony pending the disposition of her suit for separation from her husband.

She says he offered her $40 a week, but that she refused this on the ground that it is not sufficient to maintain her at her home at 266 Berkeley Place, at the present cost of living, and to pay her servants. Justice Clark reserved decision.

Mrs. Ridgely says her husbanad has had an income of $90,000 a year, that he owns a 350-acre farm at Hopewell, N. J., an Automobile, and an aeroplane. Mr. Ridgely in his answer does not deny these possessions. But he maintains that he is practically poor, that business has been so bad lately that he has had barely enough money to pay his clerks. The farm is run down, he says, and the automobile's condition is a close second to that of the farm. He is willing to dispose of the machine for $200. As for the aeroplane, he says he almost killed himself in it the first time he tried to fly. It is smashed and in a hangar at Nassau Boulevard.

The Ridgelys were married fifteen years ago. They have three children, all girls.

PROTEST IN THEATRE UPHELD

Magistrate Commends Italian Who Denounced Fake Massacre Picture.

Three Italians took exception Saturday night to a performance held at the Dewey Theatre, in Fourteenth Street, in which a living picture film showed a company of Italian troops in the act of massacring a dozen Arab girls. The men addressed the audience from the seats, branding the picture as a fake, were arrested by a special policeman attached to the theatre, and charged with disorderly conduct on complaint of the manager of the theatre, Max Weiss. They were "honorably" discharged by Magistrate Harris in Essex Market Court. The court commented:

"You were perfectly justifiable in your acts. Your rebuke was more worthy of praise than of criticism. It was your duty to show up a picture that purported to show the horrors of a brutal Government in an atrocious slaughter—direct from the scene of action, and which later proves to be but a 'fake' produced by the moving picture people at Coney Island. You not only had a right to do as you did, but, in my estimation, you are entitled to the thanks not only of your fellow-countrymen, but of our citizens as well."

The men were Alberto Pocorrini, editor of The Hoboken Italian Citizen; Glanco Barrall of 684 East Third Street, Manhattan, and Alberto Tarchiani of 253 De Graw Street, Brooklyn.

ACCUSE SHOE MACHINERY CO.

Government Says It Controls 98 Per Cent. of Trade and Asks Dissolution.

BOSTON, Dec. 12.—A suit asking for the dissolution of the United Shoe Machinery Company, a corporation of world-wide scope, was instituted this afternoon by the Federal Government, which filed a bill in equity in the United States Circuit Court.

The bill is brought against the United Shoe Machinery Corporation, United Shoe Machinery Company of New Jersey, eighteen subsidiary corporations, and twenty-three individuals, to prevent and restrain the defendants from "maintaining and engaging in unlawful combinations, contracts, and conspiracies in restraint of inter-State and foreign trade and commerce, in violation of the Sherman act, in the manufacture, sale, and lease of machines, mechanisms, tools, and devices used in the manufacture of boots and shoes."

The court is asked to order the dissolution of the defendant corporation into such parts that no one of them will constitute a monopoly or can become a monopoly of the shoe machinery business.

AUTO FIRE ENGINE TESTED.

Meets Demands in Crowded Streets and Will Be Put Into Commission.

One of the new giant gasoline motor and pumping engines of the Fire Department had a tryout pesterday in the thoroughfares in Manhattan where traffic is heaviest, and the test was so satisfactory that the new apparatus will be put in commission on Thursday in the quarters of Engine 39, located on the main floor of Fire Hall in East Sixty-seventh Street.

The new engine is the first of its kind, running by gasoline and using the same power for pumping the water when the fire is reached. Changing the power from the motor mechanism to the pumping mechanism is accomplished by the movement of a lever.

The new auto engine can make thirty-five miles an hour and pump 744 gallons of water a minute. It is of 126 horse power, and weights six and a half tons. It was built especially for operation in the traffic districts and on thoroughfares where grades are trying. For the operation a crew of only two men is needed, an engineer and assistant. The engineer is also the "driver." Fire Commissioner Johnson said yesterday that he expected to have 150 motor-driven pieces of apparatus in the department by the end of 1912.

HOPE FOR WILLETT IN COURT'S REMARK

Justice Aspinall Says It's a Nice Question of Law Whether a Crime Was Committed.

PATHETIC PLEA FOR CASSIDY

Counsel Likens Him to a Donkey Carrying the Burden and Getting Only Abuse—Decision This Week.

There was a dramatic closing last night to the arguments for a writ of habeas corpus on behalf of William Willett, Jr., Joseph Cassidy, and Louis T. Walter, charged with giving and receiving money in promoting the nomination of Willett as a candidate for Justice of the Supreme Court on the Democratic ticket, when Justice Joseph Aspinall, sitting in the Queens County Supreme Court, Long Island City, took the papers, which included more than 1,000 pages of typewritten testimony, and said he would render a speedy decision.

Mirabeau L. Towns, who made the application for the writ on behalf of the accused men the day before, resumed his argument at noon yesterday, and, save for an hour's recess, continued until dusk. The answer of District Attorney Frederick C. De Witt was brief.

"There is a nice question of law," said Justice Aspinall, "as to whether a crime has been committed, even admitting all the facts presented by the District Attorney to be true."

Mr. Towns had argued that Justice Scudder, sitting as a committing Magistrate, had not acquired proper jurisdiction in the case. District Attorney De Witt asked Justice Aspinall to decide on the law and facts, and not on any technicality. The Justice said he would do so, and then made his statement of doubt as to whether a crime had been committed.

For almost four hours Mr. Towns had attacked the depositions made in the investigation before Justice Scudder which resulted in the issuance of the warrants for the arrest of Willett, Cassidy, and Walter. Surrogate Herbert T. Ketcham and Patrick E. Callahan, nominees with Willett for Supreme Court Justices on the Democratic ticket, and who went down to defeat with him because of the scandal, came in for attention, as also did John H. McCooey, Democratic leader of Brooklyn, who Mr. Towns declared, controlled 23 out of 31 votes in the Judiciary Convention and yet escaped being investigated.

It was charged, said Mr. Towns, that there was no public clamor for the nomination of Willett. He never knew of any successful politician who obtained a nomination through public clamor, "not even excepting his Grace and Spiritual Perfection, Mayor Gaynor."

"Mr. De Ford's deposition does not show where or when this alleged conspiracy was formed," said Mr. Towns.

Taking up the testimony, Mr. Towns said certain ones interested in the proceeding made it a means for "burglarizing a man's reputation and rising to glory by that means," and, casting a pitying eye toward Cassidy, he declared that he was a donkey carrying the burden of a county political organization and getting all abuse and no praise. Cassidy blinked at this tribute, and his followers didn't know whether to weep or smile."

Becoming pathetic again, Mr. Towns referred to Cassidy as having "assumed the ass's burden in looking after politics and was at least entitled to make an honest living as an auctioneer."

"I am sorry that I put this case up to your Honor," addressing the court, "for you to review the proceedings of a brother Justice. But he took upon himself a protean burden and from the chrysallis of a Supreme Court Justice went back into a magisterial grub. I ask your Honor not to shirk; not to put it up to the Appellate Division. It is simply a question as to whether the courts can be prostituted for private ends."

District Attorney De Witt in reply said it made little difference how the proceedings originated. If the investigation finally showed that a crime had been committed warrants could then issue for the arrest of the accused. He said the buying of stock from Walter by Willett about the time of the Judiciary Convention was simply a subterfuge to cover up the real significance of the passing from Willett to Walter of $5,000 in cash.

It is expected that Justice Aspinall will hand down his decision before the end of the week.

Woman's Divorce Suit Dismissed.

Supreme Court Justice Goff dismissed the divorce suit of Muriel K. Wolferstan-Thomas, against Harold B. Wolferstan-Thomas, yesterday, when he learned that her lawyer had failed to sign his name to the summons. They were married Sept. 25, 1909, at Toronto. He did not answer the suit.

FOOD PRODUCTS AT AUCTION.

System Tried to Cut Out Commission Men and Jobbers' Profits.

Considerable interest is manifested in the produce and provision trade in a new system of selling food products at public auction, directly upon their arrival here from the West, in an effort to supplant the profits of the commission merchant and jobber by a comparatively smaller auctioneer's fee.

The first of these auction sales was held on Monday at the Desbrosses Street pier of the New York Central Railroad by the International Auction Company of 204 Franklin Street. H. A. Emerson, formerly President of the United States Packing Company, and now General Manager of the new company, announced yesterday that similar sales will be conducted at the pier every morning, and that circular letters have been sent to the butchers of the city asking them to send their buyers to the pier.

"Heretofore butter, eggs, and poultry were shipped to New York by farmers' agents," he said, "to commission merchants who charged 5 per cent. commission. These sold to jobbers, who added another 10 per cent. profit in selling to wholesalers. We shall receive the products in carload lots from the farmers and farmers' agents in more than ten States, and sell them in wholesale lots or by the carload on the pier, charging only 3 per cent. as auctioneers' fees.

"We do not want the retail trade, and shall, therefore, sell in lots no smaller than twenty-five cases of eggs, ten barrels of poultry, and ten tubs of butter. If retail butchers or dealers want to avail themselves of the saving, however, there is nothing to prevent several of them from clubbing together and buying up such lots.

"On Monday we sold one car of fresh first grade Missouri eggs at 21½ cents, while commission men were quoting them at from 31 to 33 cents; a car of Iowa live fowl at 12 cents a pound, while commission men asked 13½ cents; a car of Texas turkeys at 14 cents, as compared with 16 and 17 cents asked by commission men."

Mr. Emerson said that this was the first time food products, except fruits and vegetables, had been sold in large quantities at public auction in this way, but that there was nothing to prevent other concerns from starting the same sort of sales. Some uneasiness as to the possibility of the scheme was expressed yesterday owing to the fact that heretofore receivers of shipments from the West have been obliged to pay cash to the shippers and wait for their money from local dealers, whereas the new concern intends to transact cash sales with local dealers, or at least demand a deposit on purchase and payment in full upon delivery.

Mr. Emerson said that the concern was capitalized as a New York corporation, at $100,000, but had, he said, the additional backing of the Bronx Refrigerator Company and the Fruit Auction Company, which had $2,000,000 capital, and the stockholders of which, he said, were stockholders of the International Auction Company also.

The officers of the company are: President, V. K. McElheny, Jr., who is also President of the Fruit Auction Company; Vice President, G. M. Cumming, who is President of the Bronx Refrigerator Company, and was formerly General Traffic Manager of the Union Pacific Railroad, and Vice President of the Erie Railroad, and Mr. Emerson, General Manager.

LEAGUES WAR OVER TICKET SCANDAL

May Result in Stopping World's Series—Ban Johnson Is Very Angry.

SLAP AT NATIONAL LEAGUE

Two Organizations Assume Warlike Attitude—John T. Brush Issues Another Statement.

The American League hurled a bombshell into the baseball world yesterday when, at its annual meeting at the Hotel Astor, it declined to have any further intercourse with the National League than is called for by its obligations under the National agreement. The league also desided that its pennant-winning team would not take part in a series of games for the world's championship unless it was allowed full charge of the sale of the tickets to the games on American League grounds.

This radical action by the American League comes as a result of the investigation by the National Commission Monday of the alleged ticket scandal in this city during the world series games. President Ban Johnson of the American League and also a member of the commission, is said to have been so incensed because the two other members of the commission, President Thomas Lynch of the National League and Chairman August Herrmann. did not show enough interest in the ticket inquiry.

As soon as the American League's resolution had been issued the New York Club gave out the statement handed to the investigators by President John T. Brush. In this statement Mr. Brush answers the questions asked by the commission, but President Johnson stated that the communication contains no information which was of any use to the commission in its inquiry.

Following is the resolution which was sent to President Lynch of the American League, Chairman Herrmann of the National Commission, and Chairman John H. Farrell of the National Association:

> The following resolution was unanimously adopted by the American League on Dec. 12, and a copy thereof forwarded to each of the other parties to the National agreement:
> Resolved, That the American League will continue to exercise its privileges and observe its obligations under the National ageement, but will decline to have fuurther official intercourse with the National League, except so far as may be requisite for the safeguarding of its territorial and player rights; be it further
> Resolved, That the American League will not be represented in another series for the championship of the world or in any other inter-league event unless accorded sole charge of the sale of tickets to games played on its gorunds under an arrangement and with the understanding that it shall not assume responsibility for the conduct of the business department of games at the park of the other contesting club.

This resolution was offered by President Frank J. Farrell of the New York Club, and was seconded by President Charles A. Comiskey of Chicago.

The meeting of the commission at the Waldorf on Monday is said to have had a very unsatisfactory ending. Although it was announced that the commission would probably meet again before the end of the week to continue the ticket investigation, Ban Johnson said last night that he would return to Chicago to-day, and that the commission would probably not meet again until its annual meeting in January.

Mr. Johnson was questioned last night about what happened at the ticket investigation. He admitted that in the evidence collected by detectives employed by the commission the names of several New York theatre ticket men were involved, and that it also appeared that one man had received an allotment of 6,000 tickets. But the evidence was not convincing enough to warrant making it public.

It was freely said last night that Mr. Johnson was provoken because the other two members of the commission discredited some of the charges he wanted investigated further. Mr. Johnson said: "You know we had a ticket scandal in Chicago a few years ago, and we had the goods on some men. I wanted these men put out of baseball, but the commission wouldn't expel them. If these men had been punished there would have been no trouble about tickets here this season." In answer to questions, Mr. Johnson said the names of three New York ticket men—Vincent, Hilliard, and Abrams—appeared. He refused to say what part they played in the evidence collected by the detectives. Mr. Johnson said he did not believe William M. Gray, formerly Secretary of the club, was in any way in collusion with the speculators.

That President Johnson is very much perturbed over the attitude taken by the National League representatives in the present controversy is shown by the fact that the wrangle has resulted in the two leagues assuming a more warlike attitude than at any time since the peace agreement between the major leagues. Baseball men in discussing the situation last night admitted that matters had taken on a very serious aspect and would very likely result in doing away with the world series, if not something more serious.

Mr. Johnson has been the aggressor in the present investigation, and when at the meeting of the commission Monday it appeared that the evidence was not substantial enough to warrant any charges against the New York club, it put Mr. Johnson in the light of trying to make more out of the case than it warranted. Now the American League President implies that if the investigation was carried on properly by the entire commission the whole affair would be properly probed and the public would find out just how the tickets got into the hands of the speculators in such large numbers.

The New York club's side of the case is fully stated in Mr. Brush's statement. He says it is impossible to prevent ticket speculating in this city and says that the ticket scandal was not nearly so bad as it was made out to be.

He cites the case of a ticket which got into the hands of a speculator in Philadelphia and was traced back to Mr. Johnson. The latter explained that last night by saying that when leaving the hotel for the last game in Philadelphia, Mr. Herrmann handed him two or three tickets which he couldn't use. Mr. Johnson gave one of them to the hotel clerk at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel in Philadelphia.

It was found on investigation that the clerk sold the ticket to a speculator. Mr. Johnson says that Mr. Brush also accuses him of getting for his own use 225 tickets for the World Series. Mr. Johnson explained this by saying that Secretary John Heydler sent him this allotment, which included tickets for every owner on the American League circuit. For his own private use, Mr. Johnson said he asked for twenty-five and paid for them.

Part of the text of Mr. Brush's answer to the National Commission pertaining to the following inquiry—give all information on the subject that may have come to your knowledge during the period of the sale of tickets or previous thereto or since. The statement follows:

> Some official of the New York Baseball Club is publicly charged with being in collusion with ticket speculators for the purpose of fleecing the patrons of baseball. Having no personal knowledge of this, and with a sincere desire and determination to ascertain whether the charge is true, I have devoted more than a month of time to this subject, employing for the purpose all the figures, facts, correspondence, and other means at my command, and as a result I have been able to trace but one ticket for the World's Series from legitimate hands to a patron through a scalper, and that ticket passed from the hands of August Herrmann, Chairman of the National Commission, to B. B. Johnson, President of the American League in Philadelphia.
> The gentleman who used the ticket sat between August Herrmann and John E. Bruce, Secretary of the National Commission, in the seat allotted to B. B. Johnson by Chairman Herrmann, for the third game, and he informed Chairman Herrmann, Secretary Bruce, and President Lynch, who also sat next to Herrmann, that he bought the seat from a scalper outside of the park for $5.
> I do not know how many tickets Mr. Johnson had out of the 700 or 800 secured by the National Commission in Philadelphia, but I do know that Mr. Heydler, Secretary of the National League, reports that he had 225 tickets for the series in New York. This is the only fact that I have been able to develop capable of being substantiated that accounts for the possession of tickets by scalpers.
> In filling mail orders there is no way under heaven by which you can detect the illegitimate from the legitimate. Where there are a hundred thousand people determined on witnessing an event like the recent world's series and there are seats for but 40,000, the speculator runs no risk in getting all the seats he can at any price he may be called upon to pay. He is, therefore, when the public is invited to send mail orders, the first one to take advantage of it, using every individual that can be pressed into service to aid him in securing the limit allotted to one individual by mail.
> The tickets secured by speculators through mail orders were without doubt very large. Tickets secured by them at public sale was also without doubt very large in number, and since there is no law to prevent an individual from buying and selling again it is a moral and physical impossibility to suppress ticket scalping.
> Mail orders for the series were deposited in the various sub-stations of the Post Office Tuesday evening, Oct. 10, in time for night distribution in some districts and practically a complete distribution in the city Wednesday morning, Oct. 11. Speculators with tickets were thus enabled to offer tickets a day before the public sale opened in the St. James Building.
> A few tickets in the hands of speculators, no matter how limited the number, on the day before the public sale were worth just as much to the newspapers and the individual who in the rush failed to get recognition for the purpose of abuse and criticism as though scalpers had obtained them all, and that there had been no filling of orders by mail or a public sale.
> In view of the fact that the commission has ordered this investigation to take place nearly three months after the world's series had been played leads me to presume that it had positive information which involves some one of the officials of the New York Club, and connects them with a system to graft upon the baseball public.
> If the commission has sufficient information to establish the guilt of any individual connected with the New York Club I am as anxious as any one to know who it is that is involved. If the commission has nothing but unsupported hearsay then it is at fault in keeping this matter alive, and subjecting the New York Club to continued suspicion and abuse, and should, if it cannot prove the charge, exonerate the club and its officials, and censure the individual who made it.

SPRING INTRUDES INTO MIDWINTER

60 Degrees in Town and 74 in the Berkshires a Record in These Parts.

BOSTON TAKES OCEAN DIPS

Pussy Willows Ablooming and Baseball Ahead in the News—But the Cold Is Coming Back To-day.

Spring awoke a few months too early yesterday and blundered into the mid-Winter calendar. The mercury rose to the highest point ever recorded for Dec. 12 by the local Weather Bureau, and while maple sap, pussy willows, poets and the price of ice began to rise springily throughout the States east of the Mississippi River, your Uncle Kris Kringle fell into great terror at the thought that he had obliviously ripvanwinkled past the merry Christmas season by two months or more and almost sank through the earth to the antipodes as the shortest cut back to Greenland. The prophetic soul of the Weather Bureau man, forecasting a relapse in the mercury for to-day, will probably induce the merry and benevolent old gentleman to turn his reindeers' noses back this way again, however, and save the hopes of office boys, elevator men, house servants, big-stockinged small boys, and others for whom Dec. 25 is the day of days.

At 2:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon the temperature was 60 degrees, a record as far as the memory of the Weather Man carries, and that goes back officially to 1872. The nearest to yesterday's warmth was in 1873, and again in 1899, when a maximum temperature of 59 degrees was registered. The lowest temperature yesterday was 51 degrees, at 4 A. M. The mean temperature for the day was 56, but last night the thermometer still hovered around 58 degrees.

The forecaster would like folks to know that the warm weather is due to an interchange of air between the Atlantic Coast—where there has been an area of high pressure for the last seven days, moving slowly westward at the rate of 200 miles a day—and the region above the Great Lakes, where, until yesterday, there were storm conditions. He predicts local rains for to-day, with somewhat lower temperature, and probably fair weather for Thursday, with moderate south to west winds. The temperature will probably go down, he says, to 45 degrees this morning.

Many a proud possessor of a fur coat became a warm possessor yesterday, and wished his furry incubus back into its native pawnshop. Travelers in the Subway gazed up wistfully at the idle, cobwebbed fans, and found scant consolation in the afternoon newspaper reports that in Boston 'twas warmer and more oppressive still.

The dull mist that hovered over the city all day, and settled more thickly at night, only added to the general discomfort, and the anachronistic midwinter warmth and Indian Summer languor. It was regular baseball weather, and even the sporting editors were beguiled into spreading on the front pages news about an impending baseball war that further awakened the thawing fans. The very seats of the Polo Grounds began to warm, and three over-venturesome and too-long-lived flies were burned to death in the bleachers.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Dec. 12.—Reports from the Berkshire show that that section is enjoying its second Spring of the year. At noon to-day the thermometer here stood at 74 degrees in the shade. The pussy willows are coming into bloom again and the sap is running so freely in the maple groves that preparations to harvest a sugar crop have been made in several localities.

Near Lowell to-day farmers were ploughing their fields, a thing unheard of at this time of year in this locality.

On the beach at L Street this afternoon were counted 100 bathers, including several women, while at Revere and other beaches on the north shores scores of others ventured into the surf.

For this season the water was of unusually high temperature, in accord with the air, and many of the bathers remained in the surf for many minutes at a time, apparently without serious inconvenience.

MAY COAX RIVAL'S EMPLOYES

Not Your Fault if Contracts Are Broken Unless You Use Fraud.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, in a decision handed down yesterday, held that a person or corporation cannot be sued for inducing the employe of a rival to break a contract of employment, unless there is an allegation of wrongdoing which amounts to fraud. The court held, furthermore, that the mere statement that the employe was coaxed away wrongfully or fraudulently will not suffice to sustain the suit, but that there must be some declaration of the manner in which the employe was induced to break the contract which will support such an allegation.

Jacob De Jong, a manufacturer of flowers and feathers at 207 Wooster Street, had sued the B. G. Behrman Company, a rival in business at 656 Broadway, for inducing several of his employes, including a Miss Suzanne Patridge, described as a superintendent of great ability, to leave him and enter their own employ. De Jong said he had contracts with the employes who left, and that his contract with Miss Patridge ran through the present month.

The Behrman Company answered that Miss Patridge had voluntarily left De Jong's employ, and with respect to the other employes, denied that it had been accused of doing anything unlawful, and demurred to De Jong's complaint. This demurrer the Appellate Division upheld, saying:

"It has been held in some jurisdictions, and strongly denied in others, that the law gives a remedy for interference with contracts for service, which it would not give under like circumstances for interference with other contracts. In our opinion, however, no such distinction can properly be made, nor is it sanctioned by the closer reasoning.

"A contract for services is like any other contract in which the parties assume mutual obligations, one to the other. In case of a breach by one, the other has his action for damages. If a third party is to be held liable for having induced the breach, it must be because he has been guilty of some wrongdoing amounting to a tort, whereby he had deprived the aggrieved party of a valuable thing, to wit, the contract. It is true that the complaint is plentifully besprinkled with allegations that the defendants did certain things 'wrongfully and maliciously,' but these amount to nothing more than the pleader's conclusions from unstated facts."

The Appellate Division gives De Jong permission to amend his complaint to meet the deficiency if he can.

PLEA FOR SCHOOL FOLK-LORE

Dr. Jacobs Thinks American Children Would Gain Much by It.

A paper advocating the introduction of the study of folk-lore into the public schools, for children between the ages of 5 and 9, was read last night by Dr. Joseph Jacobs, President of the American Folk-Lore Society, at a meeting in Earl Hall, Columbia University.

While it was admitted that the curriculum of the schools is now overcrowded and that it would be unwise to attempt to add another subject, Dr. Jacobs went so far as to suggest that the purely intellectual training be put off a few years and the time devoted to games and fairy tales.

He said it would be a good thing if children did not learn to read until they were 9, if between 5 and 9 the time could be filled in with folk-tales, folk-songs, folk-dances, folk-drama, and folk-games.

"The main trouble with American education at present," said Dr. Jacobs, "is its tentative and formless character, culminated in the academic elective system which has undermined the virility of the American intellect. One of the most disastrous results of this is the absence of any general intellectual culture common to all educated persons, such as was given by the classical training.

"Might we not begin at the very beginning and remedy this in the kindergarten by giving to all American children a common set of folk-tales, of folk-songs, and folk-games, and should not this nucleus be formed by the common elements of European folk-lore, in these branches, which could easily be put into form by a competent folk-lorist?

"Every American child should know the seventy-two fairy tales, the thirty or forty ballads, the twenty or thirty games which are common to all of the children of Europe, from one or other of whom he traces his origin. Thus one touch of folk-lore would make the whole civilized world kin.

"New York at present is the greatest nidus of folk-lore on the surface of the globe. If folk-lorists could help the Bureau of Education of this and other great cities to organize the folk elements in the training of young children they could also reap their reward in the amount of new elements of folk-lore which are lying ready at hand for the capable and zealous collector.

"It would be a pity if some means were not taken by which co-operation could be made between this branch of the Folk-Lore Society of America and the Bureau of Education of this great city to their mutual advantage."

QUALITY IN TABLE DAMASKS.

The tablecloths and napkins sold by Messrs. Walpole Bros. are woven by hand on their own looms in Waringstown, Ireland, and are bleached in the old-fashioned way by moisture and sunshine, preserving the integrity of the fibres and insuring the longevity of the fabric.

These fine hand-woven damasks are shown in an interesting variety of patterns, which are designed exclusively for Messrs. Walpole Bros.

Matched sets of cloth and napkins will make acceptable gifts for housewives who take pride in the quality of their table appointments.

The display of ornamental linens suitable for holiday entertaining is especially rich at this time.

The Ideal Car for the Owner Who Drives

It's a four-passenger coupe with inside drive, retaining the advantages of power and comfort characteristic of the larger cars; it lessens the maintenance of cost and adds to the convenience of operation where a car of large seating capacity is not required.

The interior is a single compartment and all windows except that at the rear may be lowered to provide air on pleasant days.

With long wheel base, sweeping fenders and harmonious contour, broad windows of French plate glass and spacious door, with fine large black and nickel headlights, it is a car of exceeding grace.

There is satisfying charm in the possession of so practical a luxury.

38 H. P., 120-inch wheel base, 36x4 inch Demountable Wheel and Tires. Finished in English Purple Lake, Brewster Green, or Blue, with harmonixing trimmings.

THE REPUBLICANS.

Many times the chief men of the Republican organization have met in Washington about this time of the year preceding the Presidential fight, and have glared at each other across a yawning chasm of difference, or have with pallid faces asked each other, What shall we do to escape a dreadful beating next year? And then, just as happened yesterday, the wheels turn, the mechanism does its work, and an adjournment is taken with every appearance of harmony, if not of hope.

There are this year, however, rather serious differences in the Republican ranks. The progressive end of the party is showing a good deal of bumptiousness and the other end, we believe, is just a trifle scared. It is always well that a faction or a party should view with alarm the operations of the enemy, for then it begins its work in dead earnest. Mr. Taft's friends are no longer in the least concerned about Mr. La Follette. They are evidently a good deal concerned about Mr. Roosevelt. The credit of prophetic gift is due to nobody, not even to ourselves, for saying, when Mr. Roosevelt's latest disclaimer of Presidential aspirations was put forth, that the test of its genuineness would be the behavior of his friends, and that they would doubtless take it as a license, if not as a command, to go ahead. They have gone ahead.

The complete collapse of Senator La Follette's so-called "boom" indicates that he has been used merely as a decoy for Col. Roosevelt, a theory that implies something like contempt for him on the part of those who have been loudest in his praise; if he has consented to play this ignoble rôle, which is hardly credible, the public will conclude that he has very little respect for himself. But probably the Senator did not understand what use was being made of him. However, it is now clear that when Progressive Republicans of the West shouted La Follette they meant Roosevelt.

Everybody knows that Mr. Roosevelt's strength is in the West, but if through any intrigues, machinations, or political deals and devices of any kind, including the stampede, he should come to the nomination, he would find out, and his friends would find out, that his weakness lies all over the country. Mr. Taft was nominated through the efforts, we may almost say at the command, of Mr. Roosevelt. His record in the White House, like that of other Presidents, is one of some mistakes and many good works. But the public judgment of him is favorable, he has the confidence of the sober-minded men of his own party, the respect of his opponents, and we are of the opinion that for some months now he has been gaining in strength. It is well known that Mr. Roosevelt disapproves of the President and of many of his policies. He is entitled to his private opinion. But if he or his friends should now attempt in defiance of the tradition which follows one acceptable term of service with a renomination and in the face of the favor and good opinion Mr. Taft has won to set him aside and to make Mr. Roosevelt the candidate instead of Mr. Taft, the country's judgment of that transaction would be registered with uncommon emphasis.

Probably the danger is not very great. Certainly it is not great enough to justify either in politics or in morals the attempt to make Mr. Roosevelt unavailable by showing him to be the favored candidate of Wall Street. For sheer diabolical, black-hearted malice that effort is unparalleled in our recent politics. Reprobation of such a trick, however, is a good deal tempered by its highly comic aspects. The doubts and dissensions that beset the Republican Party have their plain teaching for the Democracy. The opportunity that appears to await that party can be seized or it can be lost. It cannot be turned to advantage by following the paths through which, in recent years, the Democracy has blundered and stumbled over the insuperable obstacle of its own folly.

THE STRIKE MURDER.

The murder of Sweezey, driver of one of the garbage carts of the Street Cleaning Department, on Monday seems to have been deliberate. Pieces of flagstone weighing fifteen pounds are not thrown at men in jest. The murderer aimed well and hit his mark. The police have captured two men, one of whom may be the murderer. Both are, obviously, cowards, and one or the other is a liar. The evidence is not strong enough to hold either of them, but with good police work sufficient evidence may be secured to identify the murderer and convict him.

It is to be hoped that this case will not be neglected. We have had too many murders, committed by strikers, of men willing to do useful work the strikers refused to do. The strike of the garbage removers employed by the city was unjust and inexcusable. Other lives than Sweezey's have been sacrificed while the Street Cleaning Department has been trying to carry on its work in spite of ruffianly interference. Sweezey's murderer should be brought to trial and punished.

THE CENTRAL AMERICAN TREATIES

In his address before the Civic Federation Secretary Knox spoke hopefully of "the consummation of a debt-funding agreement between American bankers and Nicaragua and Honduras." Treaties with these two Central American republics are now before the Senate. They are, essentially, peacemaking treaties. For our own good it is desirable that peace should be established in the countries between our southern border and the Panama Canal. No better way can be found to secure peace in Central America than to help the various republics to place their finances on a sound basis. Loans are promised by American financiers to both Honduras and Nicaragua, which will be used to refund the debts of those countries, with the proviso that the United States Government maintains an inspection of their Custom Houses, as it does successfully in the Dominican republic, so that the receipts, so far as required, can be applied to the interest.

President Taft and the State Department have urged the acceptance of the treaties. Ousted officeholders from Nicaragua and Honduras buttonhole the Senators daily to urge their rejection. They do not want peace. Revolutions may return them to power. This fact alone should justify the Senate's acceptance of the treaties. With the Custom Houses well guarded peace would be established in Central America. The revolutionist's first point of attack is where the money is. But some Senators have an idea that to ratify the treaties would be to "do something for Wall Street." Wherefore, thus far, they have been "held up."

NOT A PARTY QUESTION.

The unanimous action of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs yesterday in agreeing to report the Sulzer resolution demanding an abrogation of our treaty with Russia of 1832 has a twofold value. It shows that the demand for an immediate change in Russia's construction of the treaty is not a party question. Democrats and Republicans unite in denying the right of any foreign Power to discriminate between American citizens on grounds of race or religion. Both parties are of one opinion that a passport issued by our Government to an American citizen of the Jewish race is entitled to the same recognition, and must have the same recognition from Russia, that is accorded to other passports.

The unanimous vote of the committee has a further use and value in powerfully reinforcing the President and the Department of State in the negotiations now in progress for an amendment of Russia's procedure. It makes it plain to the Government of the Czar that the protest has been made, not by American Jews but by the American people, that it is an American question, that the attempt to set up distinctions between our citizens who, under our laws, enjoy a perfect equality of rights and privileges, is one of which not American Jews alone, but the American Nation must take notice.

THE DURBAR.

With splendid Oriental pageantry George V., King of Great Britain and Ireland, and his consort, standing on a marble dais under a golden dome, were yesterday proclaimed Emperor and Empress of a nation with 295,000,000 inhabitants. In his home, many thousand miles from Delhi, King George has lately been made sadly aware of the aggressiveness of democracy. While his throne remains intact, the peers of his realm have been rudely divested of much of their legislative power and authority, and rank socialism has become an instrument of his Government. To The London Times this proclamation of Great Britain's continued sway in a land of many religions and countless factions suggests these remarks:

> For three weeks he [the King] has pursued his even course across many troubled seas toward his appointed goal, merely stopping for a few hours to receive an enthusiastic welcome at some of those outposts of British power which guard for him the highways of the ocean. That his first visit to any of his oversea dominions after his solemn coronation at Westminster should be to India cannot but be regarded by all his Indian subjects as a special recognition of the great part which India plays, and must continue to play, in the Empire, and as a signal mark of the affection which King George, like King Edward and Queen Victoria before him, bears toward them.

Americans must inevitably be struck by the strange anachronism of this ceremony in a democratic age. The people of India, vicariously, of course, but with the active participation of many thousands of their representatives, accept as their supreme ruler a northern foreigner, not of their blood, holding to a faith very few of them profess, a ruler who rules by no other right than that of conquest. In Great Britain the reflected splendor of the great Durbar is expected to have good results. It emphasizes the might of England throughout the world. It forces anew upon the minds of the discontented millions of the British Isles the fact that they belong, after all, to the supreme nation, and are subjects of an amiable King upon whose possessions the setting of the sun seems, in this period of the twentieth century, to be as remote as ever.

It is no secret that India is full of discontent, as it has been since the days of John Company. But the people are fond of pageantry and probably most of them believe in the divine right of Kings. All accounts agree that yesterday's ceremony was of surpassing magnificence. India has welcomed its foreign ruler and knelt at his feet. But much more is expected of him than gracious smiles and gentle words. Much of recent Indian legislation has increased the discontent. Taxation is too heavy. Many minor reforms are looked for. The Emperor's long journey and personal participation in the Durbar will fail in its effect if it does not result in at least some temporary allaying of the vast empire's chronic unrest.

A WIDOWS' AND ORPHANS' CHRISTMAS.

Widows and orphans of men who have been killed by the street cars of the old New York City Railway system may have a Christmas rejoicing over the action of the Bondholders' Committee of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, which is paying their claims as though they were preferred creditors. Under the decisions of Judge Lacombe, in various proceedings connected with the traction receivership, it was found that these claims for personal injuries and deaths by accident were not enforceable legally. The Bondholders' Committee, nevertheless, recognized the strong moral obligation of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company by submitting a plan, approved by Judge Lacombe and later by the Public Service Commission, which placed the holders of accident judgments on this system upon the same basis with the holders of the bonds which the committee represents.

The bondholding creditors of the road will collect about 90 per cent. of the money owed them; a like percentage will be paid upon the claim of each holder of a judgment for personal injuries or death, and the claims will be liquidated, it is understood, by the early part of February next. Corporations have no souls. Individual bondholders and committeemen have souls, however, and public sentiment is strong in its approval of the policy of mercy and of justice.

"SKELETON" OPINIONS.

The Supreme Court, solely of its own initiative, and without any relation to or bearing upon current events, has given notice that the great pressure of business has compelled it to adopt the custom of handing down opinions which are variously called memorandum opinions or skeleton opinions. They seem to differ from other opinions in that they are simply decisions of law in their bearing on specific facts, and not arguments or discussions of policy, or of what the law ought to be.

The country needs nothing more than decisions which decide, and needs nothing less than decisions which discuss contingencies. For example, if in each of the cases under the anti-trust law the Supreme Court had handed down decisions of the only points involved, as it has just done in the Tobacco case, the country would have been deprived of one of its most absorbing and disturbing subjects of controversial conversation, which has after all ended in nothing but fog. No one has yet risen to defend any of the trusts convicted for their sins, so indefensible was their conduct in the light of reason. And on the other hand nobody has risen to applaud the manner in which the court reached and declared its decisions. The decisions are applauded, but the discussions are sore topics with the best friends of the court. It has even been said that the latest decisions rescued business by the application of the light of reason, but only at the sacrifice of something of the court's prestige and consistency. For the sake of the court no less than of the country the announcement from Washington is welcome.

CANADA'S FRIENDLINESS.

Representatives of both sides of the Dominion Parliament recently have vied with each other in assuring representative hearers in this city that Canada's rejection of reciprocity implied no ill-will. We are glad to reciprocate the sentiment, and to remark that honors are easy in that respect. Our legislators for a long time hardened their hearts regarding the concession of the boon of better trade with Canada, and we found a way to alter their minds without feeling the necessity of informing Canada that we bore her no ill-will for the inaction of our own Congress. In like manner it may come about that Canadians in turn will discipline their laggard legislators, unless perchance their urbane words here shall be reflected in action on their return home. However that may be, there can be no quarrel over good business, meaning business with profits for both sides. Quarrels arise only over bad business, meaning business by sharp practice, or with profits disproportionately divided. Canadians have suggested nothing of that sort regarding the bargain between us. They have said that it was inconsistent with their national policy, and was prejudicial to their imperial loyalty, and therefore have rejected it on grounds imperceptible to the vision on this side the border. That is very much their own business, however, and nobody here thought of taking offense.

On the contrary, we are rather surprised by the fervor of the denials of intention of offense. Since the point is raised, however, there can be no harm in saying that the Laurier sort of friendly policy seems to us preferable to the Borden sort, from any point of view. When we try to appreciate the British and Canadian point of view we remark that Laurier is proposing and Borden is opposing an enlargement of the British preference by Canada. Also Borden has canceled the Laurier naval programme, and may lose power on either or both points of policy. That would be a singular misadventure for a Government that rejected reciprocity with the United States through an excess of loyalty to the empire. We cannot help remarking that the Borden press in Canada, while entirely polite about it, sounds a different note from the one struck by the Premier here. We find, for example, many columns allowed to a discussion of "the American danger" and to precautions against it. While Mr. Borden was preparing his New York speech Canadians were being told that Montreal lies "within easy striking distance of Plattsburg," and that on the lakes there were "several hundred American vessels which within a few hours could be transformed into an effective naval force for action against the unprotected towns and cities on the Canadian side." The conclusion is that "the authorities responsible for the defense of Canada cannot long ignore the military and naval preparedness of our peaceful neighbor to the south. Sooner or later they must take adequate measures for the due protection of our internal waterways and great transcontinental lines of railway communication." The report says that the audience applauded, while the address was followed by an outburst of letters to editors of a receptive frame of mind.

The plain fact is that Canada's defenselessness and our own peaceful and honorable intentions are her best defense. The world in arms could not prevent the violation of a frontier extending across a continent whenever a nation of 100,000,000 so willed. Canada has no enemies of her own. Her sole military danger is of attack by some enemy of the motherland who is inextricably entangled in Old World politics. Against the calamity of a European conquest of Canada our own interests make us her guarantor, not her assailant.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Disclosure That Does Not Disclose.

Accepting as true—and there seems to be no reason or excuse for not doing so—the story told by A. C. Brice about a warning that the Maine was to be blown up, one still finds the mystery of the vessel's destruction as deep as ever. The narrative, indeed, harmonized with both the Sampson and the Vreeland reports as to the nature of the primary explosion, but corroboration of those reports that goes no further than they do adds nothing to our stock of information, even in the way of certainty, and Mr. Brice makes no real disclosure as to who blew up the Maine or why.

He says that two nights before the disaster, he being then United States Consul at Matanzas, there came secretly to him a former Spanish officer who was a Cuban sympathizer, and this officer, after extorting a promise that his identity would never be revealed, declared that the destruction of the Maine had been planned and would soon be attempted. Something was said about passageways in the Governor's palace and diving apparatus kept there, but apparently the Consul's informant knew little about the conspiracy except the fact that it existed. This warning, according to Mr. Brice, was promptly transmitted to the Consulate in Havana, but was ignored there, and two nights after it was given the Maine went down, a shattered hulk.

That somebody blew her up is sure, but an adequate and comprehensible motive for the crime is hard to find. This difficulty is not decreased by that which one encounters in trying to figure out why a Spaniard, though no longer an officer, should betray his late associates, if it were they who purposed the attack on the Maine, or why, admitting that he did sympathize with the rebels—which is possible, though not probable—he should have endeavored to prevent an act likely to result, no matter by whom committed, whether Spaniards or Cubans, in advantage to the rebel cause. There was savage hatred of Americans in Havana at that time, and it is conceivable that a madly fanatical Spaniard might have fired the mine, regardless of later consequences or with the end in view of decreasing by one the fleet which the Spanish ships would have to fight. A Cuban, desperately willing to do anything to bring on intervention, might possibly have done it, but he would have been apt to lack opportunity.

Mr. Brice has not told much about the case, and he has helped us to an understanding of it still less. That is to be regretted.

More About Pay for Beginners.

Our recent criticism of a college graduate who hotly resented an offer of $7 a week and a chance to learn business, made to men of his sort by a firm of coffee importers, is in turn criticised, though in decent and parliamentary phrases, by one who signs himself "Colleague." He thinks that as the importers wanted to get college graduates, they must consider them preferable to non-graduates, and that therefore they should pay them a living wage from the very beginning, not because the graduates would immediately earn that wage, but because of their future value to the house.

There is a certain plausibility in that argument, but it ignores several facts, including the relation of supply and demand—in other words, the certainty that any reputable house where the training is good and the opportunities many for advancement when ability has been shown, can get the kind of young men it wants on the terms this house offers. This supplies full explanation, though not a full justification on any except the vile "business is business" plea, for not paying more. Something that comes near to the full justification, at least sometimes, is found in the other fact that the beginner in such a house gets much more than his beginner's salary, and this added remuneration is not the less real because it is immaterial.

Of course, the college graduate who has not the assistance in one shape or another of parents or relatives cannot afford to take such a place, but he may well regret the necessities or responsibilities that compel him at once to get all he can earn, for such positions are less likely to lead him far than those that can get inexperienced men like himself for little or nothing, simply because they give almost unlimited room—and recompense—for the display of exceptional ability.

In another thing "Colleague" is mistaken. He wrote: "Surely no man will doubt that the college graduate is far more likely to produce results for his employers than the man who possesses lesser intellectual qualifications." "Colleague" will mitigate that "surely" after he has talked with any considerable number of business men. Many of them have discovered that the holder of a college diploma is by no means always or necessarily of superior intellectual qualifications—that some of them are worthless for business purposes and that not infrequently they are outstripped by youths who started in life with none of the conventional and nominal "advantages."

"Colleague" needs to learn that college is only one of many places where education can be secured and an original endowment of intelligence—there is no other—can be trained.

Working to Save Children.

"Preventorium" is a word of construction apparently as orthodox, etymologically, as several others, like "auditorium," "crematorium," and "sanatorium," to which nobody objects, yet somehow it grieves the sensitive eye and ear alike, and one cannot help wishing that the work doing in the institution so denominated at Farmingdale, N. J., were done under another name.

However that may be, the work is surely admirable, and to the degree that prevention of any disease is better than the cure of that disease, the appeal for more funds for the saving of children from the condition and environment that threaten them with tuberculosis should be heeded and answered.

The treatment which these children are receiving at the Farmingdale home is no longer an experiment; it is an assured success, and its little inmates, even after comparatively brief sojourns there, return to their homes not only strengthened for their fight with the White Plague of the tenements, but trained and instructed soldiers in the war. Life at the "preventorium" is largely in the open air, but buildings are needed, and money is required for other expenses if the work is to be extended on something like the scale that the safety of this city demands for its preservation.

The letter we printed yesterday from Marcus M. Marks, the President of the institution, described in detail both its needs and its work, and had, it is to be hoped, more than one reader who "thrilled responsive" in the way that counts most.

HIGH SCHOOLS OF COMMERCE.

Several New Ones Should Aid the Present Commercial High School.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At the close of your otherwise excellent remarks on commercial education and the part which the Chamber of Commerce hopes to undertake in the extension of this important subject, you misinterpreted, I think, President Hepburn's remarks upon the New York High School of Commerce.

President Hepburn's position is not one of criticism on the High School of Commerce as at present managed. On the contrary, President Hepburn has nothing to say whatever in criticism of the school or its programme, but believes it to be the best school of its kind in America.

The difficulty, as I understand it, under which the High School of Commerce is laboring at present is that there is greater pressure upon its facilities than these will bear, i. e., that there are more subjects in commercial education requiring attention than the school, with its present facilities, can well undertake, and that there are more students of commercial subjects in the city than it can well teach.

What is needed in this great commercial city is several additional high schools of commerce, and given these the present High School of Commerce can make those additions and changes in its curriculum which will fit it to the growing needs of commercial education of this one of the foremost commercial cities in the world.

As more than three-quarters of the pupils in our elementary schools must eventually find places in business life, and as even in the higher schools the great majority of the pupils find their way into commercial life, it stands to reason that greater facilities for teaching commercial subjects should be given than are given at present, and that the high schools of commerce should outnumber the ordinary high schools instead of the preponderance being the other way, as it is so greatly at present. GEORGE P. BRETT,
Chairman of the Committee on Commercial Education of the Chamber of Commerce.
New York, Dec. 12, 1911.

CHANCE OF ADVANCEMENT.

Do Employers Capitalize It to Get College Men with Low Pay?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

While the criticism your correspondent received as a result of his offer to employ a college graduate at $7 a week, with the possibility of advancement, might have been couched in more tactful language, there was nevertheless an element of truth in the criticism.

What was proposed was to capitalize the chance of advancement (which would be slight for eight out of ten men) in the way that steamship companies, hotel keepers, &c., use the tips received by employes as a means of reducing the cost of labor and the amount of wages paid. The fact that an employer began as an office boy on nothing a year and became a partner in the firm is immaterial. He has merely noted, like most historians, an exceptional event and neglected to observe the rule, contrary to the custom of modern physicians, for instance, who are more interested in the behavior of 90 per cent. of their cases than in what happens to 10 per cent.

We should rather ask, as did the Greek philosopher, when being shown in the temple offerings from those who had been saved from shipwreck, for the portraits of those whose offerings had availed nothing. C. C.
New York, Dec. 11, 1911.

The Stanley Investigation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In view of the approaching trial by the Government of the United States Steel Corporation, the continuance of the investigation by Mr. Stanley seems not only useless, but unfair to the Steel Company, and is looked upon with some distrust and with the feeling that Mr. Stanley expects to advance his political future by doing it. W.
Coatesville, Penn., Dec. 11, 1911.

RAISING TEACHERS' STANDARD

Board of Education to Make Tests More Difficult for Women.

The Board of Education has decided on a policy of raising the standard of woman teachers by making it more difficult for women to become teachers. This is one of the several measures resulting from equal pay, but members of the board say it is not to be done in a spirit of revenge, but to meet the increased supply of teachers attracted by the augmented salaries.

Beginning in June, women applicants will be required to obtain a minimum rating of 72 per cent. in examination for grade teachers in elementary schools, and men applicants 76 per cent. The present ratings are 70 per cent. for women and 75 per cent. for men. It was the first intention of the board to raise the rating for women to 76 per cent. at once, but it was feared that the supply would be cut to too large an extent.

The next No. 1 examinations will be held on Jan. 8 and 9, and on June 10 and 11, those taking the January examinations escaping the new requirements.

LOT OF YOUNG LAWYERS.

Ill-Paid Note-Takers, They Have Little Chance to Practice Law.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The law schools of New York and vicinity flood Wall Street with embryo lawyers. The maximum wage they can command in a "good" law office is $15 a week. There is no minimum. For this paltry stipend the legal neophyte must bury himself in a library for two years or more. His principal duty is to prepare accurate notes of cases and decisions for the guidance of his employer in important litigation. This he does without hope of substantial advancement and with little or no opportunity of coming into contact with real practice.

I do not contend that the world owes any man a living, but I do insist that every man is entitled to the living that he earns. The result of the failure of a law firm to pay this living compels the long suffering parent to continue his support of the son, and makes of the son a parasite. Or the young lawyer is driven into other pursuits to earn a living.

Law clerks perform skilled labor, but are paid less than the wage of unskilled labor. If they are worth keeping are they not worth paying a living? R. I. H.

Not All of Silken Texture.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A recent contributor to your letter column, who is stated to be a teacher, declares that our system of education tends to produce silk purses out of material suitable for other kinds of sacks. Now, when all is said and done, does your learned correspondent fail to see that silk purses are very good in their way, but that we must have potato sacks, flour and salt sacks, bags for cement, and the like? Or that any system of education which would or even could produce silk purses exclusively would be intolerable?

What would we put potatoes and the like in? Surely not in silk or even near-silk purses or bags. Therefore, is it not a blessing that his pupils in 8B classes still fight shy of making their verbs agree with their subjects, and pronouns with antecedents, and that in common speech they doubtless say, "I seen him when he done it," or the curiously inarticulate speech usual in Noo Yawk in spite of the stupendous sums paid for near-education, e. g., "Who letchin?" That is, who let you in? or "Oo, yair, howjer loin watcher tole me?" or "thoity-foist?" NEWCOMER.

State Socialism.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial article on "Self Help and State Help" is especially fine just at this time, when so many cranks are trying to lift themselves by their bootstraps. State and municipal ownership have almost always proved a miserable failure, both politically and economically. It is a fact, however, that many who would feel insulted to be called Socialists are advocates of State and municipal ownership. Statistics show that about every one of the nearly 1,100 municipally owned plants in Great Britain could be operated at a great saving to the people, with just as good service, under private ownership. The State-owned railways of Europe pay one-half the rate of wages and charge twice as much for transportation as our privately owned lines, and so it is everywhere, and yet the Socialists and the uplifters want more and more State and municipal Socialism. Questions His Qualification.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There appears in your paper this morning a letter regarding Children's Court Judges, in which the writer, Frank W. Smith, calling himself "Clerk of the court," declares the Judges now "sitting" are "thoroughly competent." This information is very gratifying, and the Judges in question no doubt will be pleased that their efforts are appreciated by their Clerk, but when did Frank W. Smith qualify as an expert?

Mind you, I intend no criticism of the Judges in question—as far as I know they are all estimable gentlemen, and do their work well—but Smith has no sense of humor, and that is unpardonable. W. O. D.

A SONG OF BREAD.

Do ye know the Indian Summer, with its wreath of mist and haze,
As of smoke from dying embers of the heaped-up Summer days?
Have ye seen the robe of Autumn, like a royal mantle spread O'er the golden throne of Ceres, crested with its brown and red?
Have ye seen the chaff go flying in a yellow mist and spray
When the drops of wheat came trickling in the harvest-stream all day?
Have ye watched the spouts pour forth their floods of grain upon the bin?
Do ye hear the song of Harvest—when the wheat comes in?

Have ye seen the brown sheaves passing from the stack into the maw
Of this toothed and belted ogre that devours the bundled straw,
Casting chaff, as though in fury, with a spurting jet and gust,
While the hidden kernels gathered as the miner pans his dust?
Have ye heard the voices singing of the men, whose corded arms
Yoked and tamed these stubborn prairies
—these brown giants of the farms?
Do ye know Peace and the battles that the armies of her win?
Have ye heard the heralds trumpet—when the wheat comes in?

Have ye heard the roar of turbines and the whirr of belts and wheels?
Do ye know the joy of hunger that this age-old millstone feels
When this yellow stream comes flowing through the night and through the day
Till the steel and stone gray-silvered, like the reef-rocks with their spray?
Have ye seen the black abysses of the fleets of Peace that wait For the golden streams of harvest to come down to Ocean's gate?
Do ye see the bread of millions—of the folk who toil and spin
That they may share in the Harvest—when the wheat comes in?

Do ye know the joys of labor? Have ye tasted of the bread
That is earned with sweat and struggle, when the sun up overhead?
When the chaff of strife gone flying in a jet and gust of spray
And the grain of life thrashed from it at the closing of the day?
Have ye toiled like these brown giants of the stubbled fields and sheaves,
With their corded arms for swords, and the knee-deep straw for greaves?
Have ye fought with Toil—the Captain of the Hosts of Peace—to win
This real battle of the Living—when the wheat comes in? J. W. FOLEY.

DEFENDS CATHOLIC INSTITUTIONS HERE

E. A. Philbin Replies to the Controller's Implication of Their Misuse of City Funds.

Charges Controller's Agents of Violence and with Wrongfully Taking Away Records.

In a letter made public yesterday as a reply to the statement of Controller Prendergast regarding the right of the city to examine the private accounts of Catholic institutions receiving money from the city, Eugene A. Philbin, counsel for the Catholic institutions, made the direct charge that agents of the Controller had acted in a violent manner in their search for records, and that even the closets of sisters in institutions were broken open and books wrongfully taken away.

Mr. Philbin said he admitted the absolute right of the city to make such examination as is necessary to ascertain that its moneys paid to institutions are properly and honestly applied "even to the extent of being assured that its wards are given every care and comfort they should have," but he said that there were two other issues involved which made it necessary for representatives of the institutions to take exception to the city's methods. These were, he said, the imputation cast upon the persons conducting such institutions by the resolution adopted by the Board of Estimate on June 17, 1910, and which was prepared at the instance of the Controller, and the method pursued in making examinations.

The resolution referred to, said Mr. Philbin, among other things appointed the Controller and the President of the Board of Aldermen a committee to conduct an investigation as to the relations existing between charitable institutions receiving public funds and the city and contained a recital which said that recent investigations have shown that these relations "have been of a character not calculated to insure the fullest protection of the interests of the city in disbursements made to such institutions."

The only inference that could be drawn from this resolution, said Mr. Philbin, was that the institutions referred to had taken advantage of the alleged absence of proper protection of the city's interests to the latter's detriment. It was not assumed that any reference was intended to the Catholic institutions, said Mr. Philbin, until the Controller made it plain in a letter to the Archbishop on June 15, 1910:

"The letter," says Mr. Philbin, "requested that his Grace co-operate in making investigations. Notwithstanding the serious imputation thus cast upon his clergy and reverend members of the religious orders in charge of such institutions, his Grace replied to said letter, and wholly expressing his entire inability to credit the truth of such a serious charge, he said: 'If you know, I would thank you to furnish me with names, for without such information it would be a delicate, and I think a hopeless task, to grope around a number of institutions for evidence of wrongdoing,' and after referring to the absence, because of illness, of the Reverend Supervisor of Catholic Charities; 'In the meantime, if you know of any institution that was concerned as you intimate, I would suggest your applying to it unless you desire to apply through me. And if you will indicate anything specific in the nature of facts or information I can furnish, let me know.'

"No answer was ever made by the Controller, but almost immediately thereafter, and without any warning, some Catholic institutions were visited by persons under authority of the Controller, who acted in the violent manner customarily used by those bearing search warrants, and whose conduct had absolutely no authority in law, for the Controller's only remedy is to refuse payment if proper examination is not allowed by an institution. It would take too much space to even briefly set forth the instances involving the breaking open of closets of the sisters, the wrongful taking away of books from said institutions, and similar acts. The Controller now says, as I understand his latest communication, that he made answer to the Archbishop's letter in interviews with Messrs. Morgan J. O'Brien and Herman Ridder. I am sure he will admit that such interviews occurred months afterward, and that his Grace's letter was not made the subject of discussion."

Not having heard from the Controller, said Mr. Philbin, the Archbishop and Bishop McDonnell at once employed public accountants to make an examination of every institution under their charge at an expense to the Church of $70,000. During many months, said Mr. Philbin, these accountants had many conferences with the Controller or his representatives, and accountants acting under the authority of the Controller occupied rooms in the institutions for many days to the exclusion of the use thereof by the sisters, and every facility was given them to examine the books of accounts and papers relating to their affairs.

The report of the accountants fails to show, continues Mr. Philbin, that there has been a single instance during the two or more years covered by the inquiry in which there has been the slightest evidence of a failure to properly apply the moneys received from the city. Referring to the Controller's charge that certain Catholic institutions started a fund of $5,000 to be paid a public official, Mr. Philbin points out that the Controller omitted to say that the charge was not sustained. As for the second point at issue, Mr. Philbin states that it should not be difficult to perceive that, not only can the Church find no reason for a scrutiny of the affairs of its institutions not connected with their relations to the city, but that it could not with any self-respect allow those not in sympathy with the high purposes of such institutions to exercise a supervision over their affairs. Continuing he says:

"The Church has always taken care of not only its own unfortunate and helpless, but also those of other faiths, and will always do so. It will not, however, perform a duty for the city when unreasonable and unfair conditions are imposed. The thousands of dollars now invested in not only its charitable institutions, but also in the parochial schools, and the vast sums spent for the maintenance of the latter, furnish eloquent evidence of the unselfish charity that always exists."

Controller Prendergast said last night that he would reply to Mr. Philbin's letter later.

WHY PAY FOR NAVY YARD?

The Mayor Hears the Government Loses Title When It Abandons Site.

Mayor Gaynor said yesterday that he had not yet made up his mind fully as to the advisability of the proposed abandonment of the Brooklyn Navy Yard and the conversion of the waterfront there into piers. The matter, he said, was one which would take a long time to pass upon, and the Secretary of the Navy was anxious to get suggestions from various mercantile bodies.

It has been suggested in Washington that the Chamber of Commerce here consider the matter. When it was suggested to the Mayor that the authorities at Washington were of the opinion that the city would have to buy back the navy yard site, he said he was much interested in what appeared to be a copy of the clause in the act of Legislature under which the water front was turned over to the Navy Department, and which provided that in the event of its abandonment for such purposes it should revert to the original owner. Under the same act, it was pointed out, abutting property acquired by the Federal Government would revert to the heirs of the original owners.

DAVID DOWS WEDS GWENDOLYN BURDEN

Fashionable Throng in Grace Church at Marriage of Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. T. Burden.

PAGES IN COURT COSTUMES

Effective Floral Decorations and Musical Programme—Reception at Bride's Home—Honeymoon in Egypt.

A large and fashionable assembly witnessed the wedding ceremony yesterday afternoon of David Dows and Miss Gwendolyn Burden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. Townsend Burden, which was solemnized at 3 o'clock in Grace Church, the Rev. Dr. Charles Lewis Slattery officiating.

The church had an effective decoration of ascension lilies and greens. Along the middle aisle were tall standards wrapped in Southern smilax and topped with huge clusters of ascension lilies, which were held in place by long streamers of white satin. The altar was banked with palms and ferns, and two large vases filled with ascension lilies stood on the altar.

While the guests were arriving a musical programme was rendered, the men and boy choir of Grace Church taking part. Besides the organ there was a harp and 'cello. Selections were played from "Lohengrin," and the Sevenfold Amen was sung.

The ushers included I. Townsend Burden, Jr., James de Wolfe Cutting, Leonard Sullivan, Carroll Dunham, 3d, Moncure Robinson, Morgan Wing, Hugh J. Chisholm, Jr., Coe Kerr, and Alexander Powell.

The Bridal Party.

The bridal party was composed of Miss Burden and her father, who gave her in marriage, and two little pages, Master William Burden, son of Mrs. William A. M. Burden and nephew of the bride, and Master Tracy Dows, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Dows.

Before the bridal party entered the church, the ushers in the middle aisle carried the long satin ribbons down the nave. Charles B. Stuart acted as best man.

The bride wore a gown of brocaded white satin with a train, draped in old family point lace, and having garlands of orange blossoms. A tulle veil fell from a round cap effect of point lace, which was encircled with orange blossoms. Her ornaments were a necklace of large pearls on a diamond strand and a jeweled bracelet. She carried a silver prayer book.

The little pages wore court costumes of white, with caps of white fur, topped with a white plume. Their slippers were ornamented with brilliant buckles.

The ceremony was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents, 2 East Ninety-second Street. The decorations at the house were American beauty roses and other cut flowers in vases, and palms.

Mr. Dows and his bride will sail for Europe on Saturday and will be gone all Winter. They will spend much of their time in Egypt.

Many Gifts for the Bride.

The gifts made to the bride were many and costly, and were shown to relatives and intimate friends of the couple on last Friday at the Burden residence.

The seating arrangements at the church for the relatives were as follows: In Pew 107 with Mrs. Burden, the mother of the bride, who was gowned in purple, were Miss Evelyn Byrd Burden, Mrs. William A. M. Burden, and Mrs. I. Townsend Burden, Jr. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Burden, William P. Burden, and Mr. and Mrs. T. O'D. Hillen were in another pew. Miss Leila Burden, Chester G. Burden, and Miss Ruth Twombly were together. With Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Sheedy were their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Livingston.

With Mrs. Dows in Pew 106 were Mrs. Gibson, Miss E. L. Adams, and Miss Bowman. With Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Dows in Pew 105 were Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Hoe, Miss Hoe, and Mrs. Oliver Gould Jennings. Dr. and Mrs. Carroll Dunham, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kirkham, and Miss Mary Herter occupied another pew. Dr. and Mrs. E. Kellogg Dunham, Dows Dunham, William Marcus, Jr., and Louis Dunham were togtehr. Mrs. Benjamin Brewster, Miss A. M. Dows, and Mr. and Mrs. Victor Morawetz occupied Pew 102.

Among the Invited.

Among those asked to the wedding, besides the above mentioned, were Mr. and Mrs. William D. Sloane, Mrs. Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. C. LISZT'S SONATA AT BAUER'S RECITAL Greatest Achievement in a Performance of Composers of Romantic Movement in Music.

SCHUMANN, CHOPIN PIECES

Ingenious and Instructive Selections an Artistic Delight to a Large Audience at Carnegie Hall.

Mr. Harold Bauer's piano recital in Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon was devoted to the music of Chopin, Schumann, and Liszt—compositions which those leaders of the romantic movement of the thirties, forties, and fifties of the last century had dedicated to each other. THE TIMES on Sunday expatiated at length on some of the facts that underlie these dedications, as well as some that are on the surface; and showed that everything was not as it might seem from the circumstances, and that there was not exactly a mutual and warm admiration among these composers for each other's works, however much personal regard there was. The three men may have been heading in the same general direction, but they did not represent the same ideals in music, an dthere was enough divergence in their aims to add a few more to the stresses of that stormy period.

Mr. Bauer's idea in thus making up his programme was ingenious; not only was his purpose instructive, but the results were illuminative and suggestive for those who wished to consider them in this light. But what was perhaps more important, and an indispensable corollary of any programme devised by an artist of Mr. Bauer's compelling power was this: that it gave a great artistic delight to a very large number of people. His performance was a revelation of beauties that are rarely brought to the knowledge of the musical public in a pianist's recital; and this was due in part to the nature of the programme he had selected, but also to the marvelous eloquence of his interpretation of the music. Never has he risen to so high an artistic stature, never has his playing been so charged with poetic rapture, and never has it so irresistibly appealed to the hearts of his listeners. And what a sound, wholesome, manly art it is, tender with the tenderness of strength, thrilling with the emotions of a whole man!

Schumann's "Kreisleriana," with which he began, a series of eight pieces connected by hardly any other bond than their name—and only in one or two of them does the fantastic Kapellmeister of Hoffmann's evocation seem to appear—most rarely are put upon the programme of public pianists. The reason is obvious; they are so intimate, speak so closely to the sympatheticall listening ear that they lose much in the great spaces of a Carnegie Hall. Mr. Bauer's playing of them was full of the poetic ideas of which each is so definite and unmistakable an expression—diverse ideas that he seized with a never-failing prescience and modeled with a wealth of detail, with an unerring delicacy of feeling, with a truly remarkable vitality of rhythmic sense.

Undoubtedly Mr. Bauer's greatest achievement, and one of the greatest that he has ever presented to this public, was his performance of Liszt's B-minor sonata. It was of supreme mastery, not merely of its material difficulties, which are great, but as well of its spirit. Performances of this sonata have not been rare in late years; performances authenticated by the direct laying on of hands, handed down from the master to his pupils. But it is safe to say that none of them has so fully disclosed what may be found in this music or so eloquently set it forth as Mr. Bauer, who is not one in the direct line of succession. He made it live, gave it consistency and coherency. The grandiose opening section took on nobility and exaltation under his hands, and never has the andante section seemed so bathed in a lambent flame of ecstacy as in his delivery of it. Here the wonders of his tone, its variety in color and emotional expressiveness, its gradations in dynamics, were most fully revealed. There are descents into the commonplace, the bombastic, and the sentimental in this sonata which all Mr. Bauer's art could not make seem otherwise. But he wreaked himself upon the work with an intensity of conviction and a devotion of purpose that colored every measure of the music, and, as it seemed, roused to a higher power. Such a performance as this is the finest tribute that could be paid to Liszt in his centenary year.

If his playing of Schumann's fantasia, Op. 17, and of Chopin's ballade, Op. 38, seemed, on the whole, less remarkable, it was in part because there are memories of them that many great artists have left, and they do not stand in such isolation as the "Kreisleriana" and the B-minor sonata. But these performances were not, in truth, on a lower artistic level. There was a triumphant sweep of passion in the first two movements of the fantasia, a heartfelt tenderness in the last; and in the ballade the fragrant simplicity of the opening measures, the fiery rush of the intermediate section, were expressed with emotional potency. Of the études with which the programme was brought to a close, the first is one of the most familiar. The second is scarcely played by concert givers, and Mr. Bauer's characteristic interpretation of it was therefore most interesting. It is needless to say that the audience, large and distinguished by its understanding and appreciation, was deeply impressed by his remarkable performance.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

A theatre party of fifty members of the Appleton Publishing Company attended the performance of George M. Cohan in "The Little Millionaire" at Cohan's Theatre last night. The Appleton Company is holding its annual conference here this week.

Edmund Breese will make his first New York appearance in vaudeville next week at the Colonial Theatre in a one-act play called "Copy," by Kendall Banning and Harold Kellock. The piece is a newspaper story and is said to have been based on an actual occurrence.

Mlle. Dazie, assisted by Sig. Bonfiglio and a corps de ballet, is to return to vaudeville next week, appearing in Baltimore Monday night in a series of classical dances. Her vaudeville tour is to be of short duration, as she is under contract with the Shuberts for the Winter Garden company.

At the Kinemacolor Theatre, in West Fortieth Street, there is now being shown a new bill, called "Nature's Wonders," which includes "Sunset on the Nile," the Royal Horse Show at Richmond, England, the "Birth of Flowers," a stag hunt in Exmoor, and a drama entitled "Telemaque." The pupils of the American Academy of Dramatic Arts attended the performance last night.

Henry B. Harris announced yesterday that he would give a New Year's eve concert at the Park Theatre on Sunday night, Dec. 31. Members of "The Quaker Girl" company, including Clifton Crawford, Ina Claire, Percival Knight, May Vokes, and others, will take part.

The Montauk Theatre, Brooklyn, will be closed next week, the week before Christmas. This is usually the poorest week in the year for theatrical business, and the management believes it better to give the staff a vacation rather than to keep the theatre open at a financial loss.

Keith & Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre announces as a novelty for next week a bill made up entirely of vaudeville headliners who have never before appeared in New York City.

LEE SHUBERT GETS DAMAGES

$29,629 from L. Sondheim for Breach of Contract for Astor Theatre.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 12.—Lee Shubert, the theatrical manager, wins in his action against Leopold Sondheim, as executor, and recovers $29,629 damages given by the Appellate Division. The Court of Appeals to-day affirmed the judgment of the lower courts, which were in favor of Shubert, in the action brought to recover $25,000 and interest as damages for breach of an agreement to lease to him a theatre to be erected on the northwest corner of Broadway and Forty-fifth Street, New York City. The original defendant, Bimberg, died during the trial of the action.

This litigation was over the Astor Theatre, at Forty-fifth Street and Broadway, which was built as a speculation by "Bim, the Button Man," who had built a number of other theatres in New York. The house was leased eventually to Wagenhals & Kemper, who have controlled it ever since its opening. When this lease was effected Mr. Shubert brought suit, charging a breach of contract. The case went through the lower courts.

Edward Rawlings.

Edward Rawlings, President of The Guarantee Company of North America, of Montreal, Canada, died in Montreal yesterday in the seventy-third year of his age. His last illness was of six weeks' duration, although he had been in impaired health for the last eight years. Mr. Rawlings began his business career in the office of a life and guarantee company in London, England, and was the first to introduce the system of corporate fidelity insurance on this continent in 1863, when he established at Montreal a branch of the London company. In 1872 he organized in Montreal The Guarantee Company of North America for the transaction of fidelity insurance exclusively, and a few years later extended its operations into the United States, doing pioneer work in that line. Mr. Rawlings had also been President of the United States Guarantee Company of New York City since its organization in 1890. He was a member of the Metropolitan and St. James Clubs of Montreal and of the Lawyers' Club of New York. He is survived by a widow, three sons, and three daughters.

Byam Kerby Stevens.

Byam Kerby Stevens, well known in club circles and for many years an active figure on the Stock Exchange, died after an illness of two weeks at his home, 11 East Seventy-eighth Street, yesterday. He was born in this city on Jan. 5, 1836, a son of Byam K. Stevens and a grandson of Gen. Ebenezer Stevens. His mother was a daughter of United States Secretary of the Treasurer Albert Gallatin.

Mr. Stevens started in the sugar business, importing between Cuba and New York. Later he became a member of the Gold Board of New York, the forerunner of the Stock Exchange, and he held a seat on the Exchange from the time it was founded until 1883, when he retired to devote himself to real estate. Mr. Stevens was much interested in hospital charities, and was a member of the Metropolitan, Union, and Knickerbocker Clubs of this city and the Metropolitan Club of Washington.

Capt. John N. Parker.

Capt. John N. Parker, U. S. N., retired, once Governor of Samoa, is dead of Bright's disease at his home, 13 East Fifty-fourth Street. He was 58 years old. He was born in Ohio and entered the Naval Academy in 1870. He was graduated in 1874. Capt. Parker acted as aid to President Harrison, who sent him to Samoa to obtain a coaling station. Three years ago he went again to Samoa, this time as its Governor, for two and a half years, his term expiring last Spring. During the Spanish-American war he was stationed at Manila. Capt. Parker was once in charge of the hydrographic office at Boston. He leaves a widow, who was Miss Lord, a niece of President Harrison's wife.

Obituary Notes.

Mrs. JAMES HOPKINS, mother of J. Jordan Hopkins, real estate dealer of 1,151 Broadway, died early last Monday morning at her home, 550 Park Avenue, in her seventy-second year. The Welte-Mignon Autograph Piano
Is The Living Soul of the Artist

It has the living touch which differentiates the Welte-Mignon from every other piano playing device in the World.

So accurately does the Welte reproduce each note—each delicate shade of contrast—and the individuality of the player, that famous critics declare it impossible to believe that the artist in person is not actually playing.

I. J. Paderewski says:

"The only objection I have to 'The Mignon' is founded exclusively on its name, as the latter is not in keeping either with its tremendous effect or its enormous importance."

To know the Welte-Mignon Autograph Piano you must hear its reproductions of the actual playing of such artists as: Ignace J. Paderewski, Josef Hofmann, Teresa Carreno, Vladimir de Pachmann, Fannie Bloomfield-Zeisler and others.

NO QUARREL OVER LYNCH'S ELECTION

Herrmann Has a Scheme to Force Support of Fogel and Murphy.

When the National League owners get together at the Waldorf at 2 o'clock to-day to elect a President for another year it is not likely that the supposed opposition of Horace Fogel of Philadelphia and Charles W. Murphy of Chicago will assert itself. This became known yesterday when it was rumored about the [illegible] that August Herrmann of Cincinnati had a little scheme whereby he could force Fogel and Murphy over to Mr. Lynch's support.

It was reported about the Waldorf yesterday that Presidents Murphy and Fogel would not vote against Mr. Lynch because President Herrmann had in his possession a letter which was sent to him by mistake from Fogel, when it should have been sent to Murphy. Mr. Fogel, it seems, put Mr. Murphy's letter in the envelope addressed to Mr. Herrmann. It is said to contain something important about the relations of the Philadelphia and Chicago clubs. President Ban Johnson said last night that there was such a letter, and that Mr. Herrmann made a copy of it before it was returned to Mr. Murphy. Mr. Herrmann, it was stated, will use the letter to bring Mr. Murphy and Mr. Fogel into line to vote for President Lynch's re-election to-day.

The meeting of the National League club owners was very short, adjournment being taken just before the election of officers, the suspension of business following a vote offered by President Charles W. Murphy of Chicago. The resolution was to the effect that adjournment was taken out of respect to the memory of M. Stanley Robison of St. Louis, William Hepburn Russell, President of the Boston club, and Frank Elliott, Vice President of the Philadelphia club, three prominent baseball officials who died during the year.

The Board of Directors of the league officially awarded the National League pennant to the Giants. A protest from the Pittsburgh club in relation to an alleged double-header played by Chicago and Cincinnati last Summer was laid on the table because the rules are being revised about double-headers, and action on the matter was continued. The National League will waste no more time hearing the reading of minutes, because Secretary Heydler sends them out to the club owners in printed form and saves all much time.

President Lynch's report was read and accepted. Among other interesting facts, the report showed that 12,840 baseballs had been used during the season. The report also called attention to the fact that most of the faultfinding with the umpires was during the first half of the season. The backing up of the President's decision in the Magee case, as well as the system of keeping the young umpires in the field, worked a noted change. The deportment of the players and the work of the arbitrators during the last half of the season was first class, the report says.

During the season President Lynch allowed but one protest. New York lost 2, Pittsburgh 4, Cincinnati 1, and Philadelphia 1.

Those in attendance at the meetings were: Boston—William Beverley Winslow, Tod Russell, Peter F. Kelley; Brooklyn—Charles H. Ebbets, Henry Medicus; Chicago—Charles W. Murphy; Cincinnati—August Herrmann, Max Fleischmann; New York—John Whalen, Joseph D. O'Brien, and Ashley Lloyd, a stockholder; Philadelphia—Horace Fogel; Pittsburgh—Barney Dreyfuss, William H. Locke; St. Louis—Edward Steininger, President.

Before the meeting President Herrmann of Cincinnati announced the appointment of Hank O'Day, the former National League umpire, as the new manager of the Reds. The news came as a great surprise. O'Day has been umpiring in the National League for more than ten years. Before that time he was a baseball player, pitching for Washington in the old American Association, with Connie Mack, now manager of the World's Champions, as a battery mate. In 1889 O'Day pitched for Brooklyn, and later joined the Giants, for whom he pitched for a season and a half. When his arm failed O'Day was appointed an umpire. "Now we'll have no more protests against the umpires from Cincinnati," said President Lynch.

Horace Fogel, President of the Phillies, made it very plain that he was anxious to get rid of Charley Dooin, his manager and star catcher. Fogel yesterday submitted propositions for trades to every team in the league. To Boston he offered to trade Dooin for Tyler, Millor, and Rariden; to Brooklyn he offered Dooin and Earl Moore for Nap Rucker, Erwin, and Wheat; to Chicago he offered Dooin and Moore for Archer and Brown, and to Pittsburgh he offered Moore and Dooin for Gibson, Leach, and Camnitz.

AMERICAN LEAGUE MEETING.

Umpire Jack Sheridan Gets a Pension and a Gold Medal.

The meeting of the American League was short and to the point. Aside from the bombshell they threw at the National League they transacted little other business. They awarded a gold medal of honor and a pension of $1,200 a year to Umpire Jack Sheridan for faithful and efficient service.

There was a spirited discussion about changes in the National agreement, but these were left to the judgment of President Johnson. Resolutions were adopted condemning gambling and pool selling at baseball games. Each club owner will be asked to use his influence to stamp out the evil wherever it exists.

A tribute was paid to the World's Champion Athletics in the following resolution:

"Resolved, That the Philadelphia American League baseball club has for the second time won the series for the world's pennant, and in so doing has won the commendation and admiration of people generally and thereby brought great honor and distinction to the American League; therefore,

"Be it resolved, That the American League in annual session assembled does hereby offer to the Philadelphia American League baseball club, its officers, and players, its congratulations and hereby expresses appreciation of their great victory."

Patsy Donovan, formerly manager of the Red Sox, and Bob Gilkes have been appointed scouts for the Boston Americans.

Those present at the meeting were: Chicago—Charles A. Comiskey; St. Louis—Robert T. Hedges, John E. Bruce; Detroit—Frank S. Navin, L. H. Richard; Cleveland—Charles A. Somers, E. S. Barnard; Washington—Thomas Noyes, Clarke Griffith; Philadelphia—Benjamin F. Shibe, Connie Mack; New York—Frank J. Farrell; Boston—John I. Taylor.

INTERNATIONAL WIND-UP.

Schedule Meeting to be Held at Providence on Feb. 15.

The International League, formerly the Eastern, finished its business at a postponed meeting at the Victoria Hotel and adjourned until the scheduled meeting, which will be held in Providence, Feb. 15. The season will begin about April 18 and will end about Oct. 20.

The so-called opposition from C. T. Chapin of the Rochester Club to the reelection of President Barrow for a term of five years did not materialize. Mr. Chapin was fined $1,500 by President Barrow for violating the rules covering post-season games. Last season Mr. Chapin canceled several games in the post-season series between the Rochester pennant winners and President Barrow's All Eastern League team.

ATHLETICS DINE WRITERS.

Winners of the World's Championship Celebrate Victory.

The American League Baseball Club of Philadelphia, winners of the world's championship, gave a dinner at the Astor last night to the Baseball Writers' Association of America. Besides the baseball reporters from all the cities on the major league circuits, there were also present all the club owners of the National and American Leagues, as well as minor league club owners from every part of the country.

The dinner was given by "Uncle Ben" Shibe in honor of the Athletics beating the Giants in the world's series, and it was a corker. The menu was satisfying, the lithia sparkling, and the souvenirs unique and attractive. There was plenty of music, the gathering joining in the chanting of many baseball parodies.

August Herrmann of Cincinnati in his speech took occasion to say something about the surprising resolutions the American League passed at its meeting. Mr. Herrmann said that the National League would not break with the American League unless there was some good reason for it that he did not know at this time.

Mr. Herrmann said if something had happened that had offended the younger league he was sure that it could be adjusted. He stated that he did not anticipate any break in relations with the American League, and was sure that their grievance, if they had any, was not serious.

Heard in Hotel Corridors.

The Baseball Writers' Association of America held its annual meeting yesterday and reelected the following officers: President—Joseph S. Jackson, Washington; Vice President—Jack Ryder, Cincinnati; Secretary and Treasurer—William G. Weart, Philadelphia; Board of Directors—Paul Shannon, Boston; J. B. Foster, New York; J. E. Sanborn, Chicago, and Ed F. Bangs, Cleveland.

Word was received at the office of the New York Club yesterday that Ground Keeper John Murphy of the Polo Grounds had arrived at Marlin Springs, Texas, and had started work getting the baseball park in shape for the coming of the Giants next Spring.

The New York American Baseball Club last night released Otis Johnson and John Martin, infielders, to the Rochester Club of the International League.

DE ORO INCREASES LEAD AT BILLIARDS

Champion Gains Three More Points Against Daly—Score 100 to 87.

Alfredo De Oro, the three-cushion billiard champion, increased his lead last night in his match with John Daly at Doyle's Academy, the score at the end of the second session being 100 to 87. The winner required 87 innings to accomplish the victory, as, with the exception of the last few innings, he was inclined to fall off a bit in his game, whereas the erstwhile champion came on at a great pace, and, as in the first night's block at both start and finish, showed to advantage.

De Oro, however, proved to be a master of angles and rolled out shots which did not seem to be on the table. He gave his cue ball all kinds of English, and caused it to writhe as though attached to a string at times. Daly played deliberately and at all times had the worst of the breaks, some of his leaves being provoking even to such an expert as he.

The Cuban quickly sized up situations and played as a usual thing in rapid-fire order. While it might be considered that he had the better of the luck of the lay of the balls at the end of each shot, his knowledge of the game is such as to warrant the assumption by his adherents that he plays continually for the next shot most of the time, which accounts for his excellent showing.

Daly had a much freer stroke than on the occasion of the opening block Monday night, and the majority of his shots showed his conception of angles to be of the topmost order. He had to contend with the "oil" spread by the Cuban when the latter saw little or no chance to tally.

During the session Daly made consecutively during two periods between the sixth and nineteenth and thirty-seventh to fiftieth innings, inclusive, fourteen misses during each of these times, which made great inroads into his string showing. He was kissed out of what looked like five sure counts, but this was in a measure counterbalanced by the fact that in his seventy-eighth inning he tallied three, the first one of which was a scratch, his cue ball being kissed on when it had missed by six inches.

Daly tallied the high run of the night with six scored in his fourth time at the table by a succession of tidy round-the-table billiards. Later on he rolled five, which easily gave him the high-run honors. The champion was compelled to be content with breaks of four, made on two occasions, the last being in his next to the last inning, when his billiards bordered on the miraculous, placing him to within one of his night's total.

The match will wind up to-night, when play will start at 8 o'clock.

Parker Leads Billiard Tourney.

E. V. Parker jumped to the lead in the Harlem Class C amateur handicap 18.2 balkline billiard tournament at Paul's Riverside Billiard Academy, 125th Street and Seventh Avenue, when he defeated Dr. Tuggle last night by the score of 115 to 82. The contest was a one-sided affair from start to finish, with Parker setting the pace throughout and required thirty-three innings. Parker was playing at the handicap of 115 points, while Tuggle had to make 120 points in order to win the game. The winner made high runs of 21, 18, and 12, and had an average of 3 16-33. Tuggle's best efforts netted him high runs of 14 and 11; the latter high run he made twice during the contest. His average was 2 18-32.

Dankelmann Defeats Two Players.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 12.—John Dankelmann of New York defeated P. P. Trump and Joseph Wireback of this city to-night in the tournament of the National Amateur Three-Cushion Billiard League, 50 to 32. The game went 84 innings, Dangelmann making an unfinished run of 6, which was high run. Trump made a run of five.

LOCAL GOLFERS IN SESSION.

Metropolitan Body Indorses New Handicap System at Annual Meeting.

A lengthy discussion as to whether it would be advisable to abandon the half stroke in computing par so as to follow dutifully in the footsteps of the parent organization occupied the greater part of the time of the delegates gathered at the annual meeting of the Metropolitan Golf Association at Sherry's last night. Finally a resolution offered by Leighton Calkins of Plainfield was got through and adopted with the proviso that it met with the wishes of the National body. The resolution was:

Whereas the U. S. G. A. has adopted for general use the Metropolitan Golf Association system of handicapping, except that the table of par distances has been revised and air-line measurements are recommended;

Resolved, That the Metropolitan Golf Association indorses the effort on the part of the National association to secure general uniformity in handicapping, and thereby amend its table of distances and directions for figuring par so as to conform with the recommendations of the parent association, if it so desires.

When the championship question was brought up only one request was received for the amateur tournament. This was from the Country Club of Lakewood. No bid was received for the open. As is usually the case at meetings of this organization, the matter of deciding upon courses for the championship was left to the Executive Committee.

As usual, no opposition was raised to the ticket presented by the Nominating Committee, consisting of Howard F. Whitney, Chairman; A. R. Fish, and A. H. Lockett. The Secretary was instructed to cast one ballot, as follows: President, Frederick S. Wheeler; Vice President, James L. Taylor; Secretary, Wynant D. Vanderpool; Treasurer, S. Clifton Mabon; Executive Committee, the above officers and Findlay S. Douglas, Joseph P. Knapp, James A. Stillman, Cornelius J. Sullivan, and John M. Ward. The only changes from the old list are that Mabon succeeds M. N. Buckner as Treasurer, and that Stillman and Sullivan take the places of H. V. Keep and John Reid, Jr., on the board.

The Secretary read his usual complete annual report, which was in part as follows:

"The membership of the association on Jan. 1 of this year consisted of sixty-one clubs, which was the largest in the history of the association.

"The two following committees were appointed by the Executive Committee at their first meeting:

"Tournament Committee—Harry V. Keep, Chairman; James L. Taylor, and Chase Mellen.

"Handicap Committee—A. H. Pogson, Chairman; J. E. Erickson, and F. J. Phillips.

"The Handicap Committee was afterward increased by adding the names of George H. Barnes and Wyatt W. Taylor.

"The Treasurer's report this year shows a balance at the present time of $972.32. Last year the balance at this time was $961.13. This year, in addition to financing the open tournament, the association was called upon to meet the expenses in connection with the entertainment of the teams in the Lesley Cup match. This last expense comes but once in three years."

CHAMPIONS WIN BOUTS.

Atkins and Bauers Score in Irish A. A. C. Competitions.

In the finals of the boxing and wrestling tournament of the Irish-American A. C., held last night in the club gymnasium, some fair sport was witnessed by the biggest crowd of the series. The session was long drawn out and unfinished at midnight. Among the local champions who sustained their form during the tourney was Herbert Atkins of the West Side Y. M. C. A., who worked his way through the 130-pound boxing class and won final honors from J. Nugent, Paulist A. C., on the judge's decision. The summaries:

110-Pound Class, Boxing.—Semi-Final Round—C. Moors, New Polo A. A., defeated Tony Perrone, St. B. A. C. Four rounds. Judge's decision. Final Bout—Joe Hopkins, Irish-American A. C., defeated C. Morris, New Polo A. A. Three rounds. Judge's decision.

Raicevich on Gotch's Trail.

Raicevich, the Italian champion wrestler, does not intend to appear in public until he feels certain that Frank Gotch will come to terms. The Italian champion has mastered the various holds under catch-as-catch-can rules and does not fear the result of a match with the American champion, and will then turn his attention to Zbyszko, whom he feels confident he can defeat, notwithstanding the latter's weight and prodigious strength. At the banquet tendered to Raicevich a few days ago by his admirers, it was the general belief among those who listened to the remarks made by Raicevich that he is equal to any task which may be imposed upon him, and that he is capable of holding his own against any wrestler in the world, under any rules.

Zbyszko Is Willing to Wrestle.

DULUTH, Minn., Dec. 12.—Replying to numerous challenges issued by Giavonni Raicoveich to Zbyszko, J. H. Hermann, manager for the Pole, to-day stated that he is prepared to match his man against the Italian at any time to a finish contest, and just to show what he thinks of Raicoveich's ability Hermann States that he does not want one cent of the purse if his man does not win the required two falls within one hour.

NEW ATHLETIC ALLIANCE.

Michigan Expects to Arrange New Track and Football Schedules.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Dec. 12.—With the purpose of forming new athletic alliances, P. Bartelme, director of athletics at the University of Michigan, has gone East. He is expected to arrange track and baseball schedules for the coming Summer, and it is possible that he will take up the matter of football games for next Fall.

It was said here before Bartelme left for the East yesterday that the trip may result in the formation of some new alliances in athletics and that it may also mark the passing of some in the East that Michigan has been playing in late years.

Good Scores by Gunners.

Excellent scores were made by the gunners of the Bergen Beach Gun Club in their monthly shoot over their Jamaica Bay traps yesterday afternoon. The principal event was a shoot at 100 targets, in which H. Welles, a professional; R. Morgan, and John Martin all tied with totals of 90. The conditions were ideal for the sport. The light was just right, and there was not a breath of wind to mar the flight of the bluerocks. Twenty-one marksmen in all took part in the shoot. The scores: H. Welles, 23 22 22 23—90; R. Morgan, 23 23 21 23—90; John Martin, 21 21 25 23—90; Dr. Griffith, 21 22 21 23—87; A. P. Lane, 23 23 19 21—86; L. Schorty, 20 19 21 23—83; G. Remsen, 20 21 19 23—83; J. F. UVICK QUITS IN BOUT WITH BURKE

Omaha Heavyweight Fails to Stand Punishment at Royale A. C.

Billy Uvick of Omaha, Neb., after going along on almost even terms for nine rounds last night with Sailor Burke at the Royale A. C., refused to continue after that time, and climbed through the ropes, thus announcing his desire to quit. The contest on both sides was a disappointing one, as both men used foul tactics, and roughed and butted each other on numerous occasions.

Burke, who is noted for his foul work, started the unsportsmanlike doings, and received in return from his opponent in kind. In five of the nine rounds Uvick was entitled to the honors, and would possibly have received no worse than an even break had he continued the last round, but after having his left eye badly cut in the sixth session he lost his courage. After the ninth he slumped and refused point blank to continue, much to the surprise of the crowd.

The bout from the start was far from a boxing exhibition, as neither man extended himself sufficiently to satisfy the crowd, and when the unexpected end came all filed out of the building without making any demonstration, apparently being pleased with the ending.

Uvick did most of the forcing in the early rounds, and was the more willing of the two to fight, while the ex-sailor pranced about, avoiding as much as possible the blows of his opponent. Had Burke tried he might have given a better exhibition, but for some reason he refused, and the contest dragged along in a tiresome way.

There were very few times when the milling was fast, and then it only lasted for a few seconds, and even then it showed little semblance of good boxing.

LEWIS WINS TIRESOME BOUT.

Shades Billy West at Brown's in Ten-Round Go.

Willie Lewis and Billy West, who were scheduled to fight a ten-round bout last night at Brown's Gymnasium, earned their money easily, and incidentally caused many spectators to sit through one of the most uninteresting contests ever staged at the Twenty-third Street Club. What little honors were distributed went to Lewis, who shaded his opponent, but neither man could be credited with any undue amount of work. Lewis was possessed of the most science and at times was willing to do some of the forcing, but West was the best physically, and offset Lewis's efforts. Lewis stalled part of the time, then came back and tried to jab with his left, being usually successful. In the fifth round Lewis showed his best work, and with a jabbing streak got in several stinging blows, which proved to be the best of the entire ten rounds. Shortly after the opening of the sixth session West landed a hard right swing on Lewis's left eye and opened a small cut, which was the only mark either man showed at the close of the fray. The last four rounds were repetitions of the monotonous preceding ones, with the final bell finding both men stalling as it rung. The semi-final of six rounds between Tiger Young and Walter Brooks was by far a more interesting one than the final. Both boys fought furiously all the way, but in the general summing up Brooks earned the decision.

NITCHIE AND KELLY DRAW.

Welterweights in Fast Bout at Mount Vernon Athletic Club.

Young Nitchie of Philadelphia, and Jimmy Kelly of Port Chester, two welterweights, boxed ten rounds last nght at the Mount Vernon A. C. to a draw. From the clang of the first bell until the end of the tenth round there was never a lull in the going.

Nitchie, who seems to like punishment, took five blows in order to get over one, and always bored in with his head down, like a bull.

The contestants brought the crowd to its feet at the opening of every round as they rushed at each other and started the slam bang work from the first tap of the bell. Although the contest was a fast one, neither man showed any foul tactics, breaking at the order of the referee, and landing all blows cleanly.

Boxers Fined in Canada.

WINDSOR, Ontario, Dec. 12.—"Spike" Kelly, who knocked out Peter Shaughnessy here a week ago, Shaughnessy, and Promoters Glasgow and Richards, were to-day fined $50 each for violating the Canadian prize-fight law. The referee and seconds were dismissed on suspended sentences.

Williams No Match for Morris.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 12.—Carl Morris, the "Oklahoma Giant," made short work to-night of Al Williams of Cleveland. The fight, a bloody one, was stopped in the third round. Williams was punished severely, and was helpless against the jabs dealt by Morris.

JOHNSON TOO HEAVY.

Heavyweight Champion Weighs 300 Pounds and Has Retired.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—Jack Johnson, champion heavyweight pugilist of the world, weighs nearly 300 pounds, and will never again enter the ring in a contest to retain his title, according to information received at his home here.

Johnson is on the ocean on his way back to Chicago with his wife, who is seriously ill. He sailed with his wife from Liverpool yesterday, and before starting let it be known to his friends in Chicago that he had finished with the roped arena.

Johnson's friends in the "colored belt" in Chicago had discussed rumors of the champion's retirement for several days past, but when the confirmation of these came they were at a loss to understand his action. Johnson has given it out that he will engage in business when he reaches his home.

Australia's Offer to Britt.

Jimmy Britt may get back in the game after all, especially if he hearkens to the call sent by his erstwhile partner, Hugh McIntosh, who has gone back to Australia after he and Britt put the pugilistic promotion business on a broader scale in London. McIntosh wants his old coworker to go to Sydney and get busy. He wants the Pacific Coast idol to engage in three bouts in the Rushcutter's Bay arena in February and March.

It will probably take some flattering offer to get the ex-lightweight away from his adopted city just now, for since he landed here a few days ago vaudeville managers have sought him out, and from the material talk it looks as though Britt will make his bow to a New York audience in a week or so.

Former record, 1,017 miles 2 laps, made by Lawson and De Mara in 1909.

One of the worst spills that has occurred at any six-day bicycle race in years happened in Madison Square Garden this morning at 1:17 o'clock. Eddie Root had started a sprint about a minute before and quickly picked up a lead of thirty yards on the field. The other riders set out to overtake him, and as he turned at the Fourth Avenue bank Root turned to see how great was his lead, and in an instant his handle bars turned. He skidded along the upper part of the incline, his front wheel wabbling badly, and then he went down. The others coming closely behind were unable to steer clear of Root, who fell in such a way that he was facing the oncoming field of riders. Cameron, Wells, De Mara, Menus Bedell and Thomas all sustained bad falls, and the entire Garden was thrown into confusion.

As a result of the fall it was thought at the time that at least three of the riders—Bedell, Root, and Thomas—might not be able to continue. Bedell was the most seriously injured. He sustained a gash on the head and was cut on the back and on his arms. Root suffered a bad cut on the right leg, where the pedal of his wheel was forced into the flesh, and he bled profusely.

It was necessary to sew up the wound. De Mara was badly shaken up and bruised, and while waiting for a physician he fainted twice. Cameron's hand was cut badly enough to require sewing up, and his legs were also badly bruised. Thomas's face was cut and his body was badly bruised. Wells was the most fortunate of the riders who fell. He received a severe shaking up and a few bruises, but no cuts.

The accident occurred at 1:17 o'clock, and at 1:30 the extent of the men's injuries was not known sufficiently to say how many of the teams would be broken up by the accident.

One of the spectators who occupied a box overlooking that part of the track where the accident occurred, fainted at the sight, and five minutes elapsed before he was brought back to consciousness. None of the riders was knocked unconscious by the fall.

Partners of the injured men rode around the track while physicians attended their injured mates. Bedell and Root were so seriously hurt that it was thought that neither would be able to continue. The extent of De Mara's injury was causing much concern, as it was feared that he had been injured internally. Practically all the wheels of the injured men were wrecked.

Twelve teams are on even terms, and the other two combinations—the Thomas-Stein and Galvin-Wiley teams—were but a lap behind the leaders. Throughout the day the most nerve-racking pace had been kept up, but the riders held up remarkably well, and not one lost as much as a lap during the twenty-four hours which ended at midnight last night. With the most grueling part of the race ended, the feeling was strong at every camp that only accidents would eliminate any of the twenty-eight men left in the race

From 6 o'clock until midnight the riders kept up a steady pace, but only one real sprint was attempted. That came at 11 o'clock, and was started by Jackie Clarke. Lorenz and Root succeeded Clarke at setting the pace, and the entire squad of twenty-eight riders was soon on the track, partners being ready for relief. For six laps the riders tore around the track at top speed, and it was brought to a sudden stop by a collision between Georget and Clarke, which gave the latter a bad fall at the Fourth Avenue and Twenty-sixth Street side. Stein had to make a quick turn to avoid Clarke, and he steered into the path of Lorenz, both being thrown on the Twenty-seventh Street side. All three men escaped injury.

Last night's crowd was the largest of the present race and compares favorably with the best crowds of previous races. It greatly excelled the usual crowds of the early part of the week at races of other years.

Records began to go by the board early yesterday morning and continued to go throughout the day. At 1 o'clock in the morning the riders were 5 miles and 2 laps behind the record of 541 miles and 5 laps, established by the Rutt-Stol team in last year's race. During the early morning hours the riders hit up a fast pace, and at 5 o'clock they were only 1 mile and 5 laps behind the 1910 record. Between 5 and 6 o'clock a faster pace was hit up, and when Eddie Root led the field over the line at 6 o'clock the twelve teams, tied for the lead, had registered 631 miles and 6 laps, a new record. The best previous figure was 629 miles and 8 laps, made by the McFarland-Clarke combination last year. In the next two hours the riders gained five additional laps on the old record, and the 8 o'clock score yesterday morning showed the field 2 miles and 3 laps ahead of the figures hung up by McFarland and Clarke in 1910.

During a sprint started by Lorenz at 5:30 o'clock last night Kramer lost a front tire and Palmer, who was directly behind, crashed into Kramer's wheel. The latter was driven to the outer wall of the track on the Twenty-sixth Street side, and Palmer, vaulting his handle bars, landed twenty feet from where the crash occurred, directly in the path of the oncoming riders. John Bedell and Drobach crashed into the wreck of Palmer's wheel and also went down. Two wheels were badly smashed, but the riders escaped with a few scratches and a shaking up. Fifteen minutes later Collins fell at the Fourth Avenue and Twenty-seventh Street turn and crashed into three assistants, who were repairing tires at the side of the track, but both rider and assistants escaped injury.

RACE DRIVERS AT GARDEN.

Auto Pilots Will Act as Salesmen at the Show.

There will be a large number of the foremost racing drivers at the Madison Square Garden Automobile Show during Part I., the week of Jan. 6-13, and racing enthusiasts, of whom there are many, may meet their favorites at close range. Several years ago a number of manufacturers realized the value of racing drivers as salesmen.

Ralph Mulford, winner of the Vanderbilt Cup race at Savannah, will be sent to New York from Detroit by the Lozier Company, which will display the Vanderbilt Cup and the car which won it in this company's booth. Grant, his teammate, who ran fourth in the last Vanderbilt and won the cup on two previous occasions, will also be in attendance.

Louis Disbrow, who ran fifth in the Grand Prize, driving the only American car to finish in the great international event, will be in the Pope-Hartford booth, and perhaps divide his time with the National booth, as well. Aitkin and Wilcox will also be in the National booth.

Ray Harroun, Joe Dawson, and Cy Patschke will be on hand at the Marmon display of cars, and one of the attractions of this will be the famous Wasp, with which Harroun and Patschke won the 500-mile sweepstakes at Indianapolis. Fred Belcher will be down from Springfield, Mass., in the Knox interests.

Ralph De Palma, who drove the Mercedes at Savannah, scoring second in the Vanderbilt and third in the Grand Prize; Basle, Jagersberger, and other famous pilots will be on hand assisting in the sale of cars.

Auto Tourists Arrive To-day.

Thomas W. Wilby, special agent of the Office of Public Roads, Department of Agriculture, will arrive in New York at noon to-day, completing his 11,000-mile scenic and historic round-trip tour of the United States, which has covered a period of fifteen weeks. Mr. Wilby is accompanied by his wife, who has won the distinction of being the first woman to complete a round-trip transcontinental motor tour from coast to coast. The transcontinental party left Washington on Monday morning after receiving a cordial greeting from President Taft, Speaker Champ Clark, and many other prominent personages interested in good roads. The run on Monday was to Philadelphia and last night the tourists arrived at Lakewood, from where they will start at 8 o'clock this morning on the last leg of their long journey to New York.

CALL FOR SKATERS.

Meeting of the Eastern S. A. to be Held at St. Nicholas Rink.

President Cornelius Fellowes of the Eastern Skating Association has issued a call for the annual meeting of the representatives of the various athletc and skating clubs affiliated with that organization to elect officers, discuss several changes in the rules affecting the amateur status of competitors, receive registrations, and assign championship events in connection with the race meetings to be held under the jurisdiction of the association.

The first open skating races of the season will be held under the auspices of the New York Athletic Club on Jan. 6 at the St. Nicholas Rink, when an effort will be made to have many of the best speed skaters in Canada and the West meet the champions of the East. The programme of events has not yet been announced.

INDOOR REVOLVER SHOOTING.

Manhattan Leads In First Two Rounds of Association Tourney.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 12.—Results in the first two rounds of the indoor league race of the United States Revolver Association were announced to-day by Secretary-Treasurer J. B. Crabtree of this city. As was the case last year, the Manhattan Club of New York started with top scores, hitting over the 1,100 mark in both its matches. As a rule, the scores run better than they did in the first two contests of last season. The scores:

CHURCH ATHLETES COMPETE.

Ritchie Carries Off the Honors at Bronx House Games.

The senior athletes of the Bronx Church House held their regular monthly athletic meet in the clubhouse gymnasium last night and the programme of events was productive of some keen competition. C. Ritchie was easily the star performer of the evening. Ritchie competed in three of the five events. He won the running high jump event. In the twenty-yard dash Ritchie crossed the finish line in second position, and in the parallel bar event he won third place with a total of 26 points. The summaries:

20-Yard Dash.—Won by E. Muhlfeld; C. Ritchie, second; George De Vere, third. No time taken.

Running High Jump.—Won by C. Ritchie, (5 feet;) H. L. Rost, (4 feet 9 inches,) second; J. Hopkins, (4 feet 8 inches,) third.

Parallel Bar Event.—Won by W. Smith, (28 points;) George Gardner, (27 points,) second; C. Ritchie, (26 points,) third.

Eight-Pound Shot-Put.—Won by W. Shannon, (43 feet 11 inches;) J. Reilly, (42 feet 10½ inches,) second; George Gardner, (39 feet 4 inches,) third.

One-and-One-Half-Mile Run.—Won by H. S. Earle, (scratch;) Y. Bosen, (10 seconds,) second; L. Christman, (5 seconds,) third. The winner's actual time was 9:42.

Benefit for Aviators.

Under the auspices of the recently organized Aeronauts' Fund Association a benefit performance will be given Sunday evening, Jan. 20, at the New York Theatre for the widow of Tod C. Shriver, the American aviator who was killed while flying at Ponce, Porto Rico, recently. Various aeronautic organizations in New York, as well as in other communities, will participate in making the benefit a success. Many well-known actors have volunteered their services, and included among the ushers for the evening will be several widely known aviators. It is intended to give to the widow one-half of the net profits of the performance, while the other half will be used to form the nucleus of a fund to be accumulated in the treasury of the association.

COMMODITY MARKETS.

WHEAT showed hardening tendency on very small trading, closing at best prices for the day. Shorts covered more freely late, finding prices sustained and no late pressure to realize. News was more bullish and bears were less in evidence. The persistently unfavorable Argentine advices, with continued rains, caused some uneasiness abroad, and the Argentine market has been quite seriously affected. European markets were not unanimously higher, some being down, while others were up. The European visible increased 700,000 bushels. With the recent hardening of European markets export bids on red Winter have improved, resulting in sales the past few days at New York and outports of 15 loads of red Winter for Antwerp and Glasgow, and further bids were reported quite near a working basis. The Northwestern movement exerted some bearish effect, showing continued heavy movement, with an increase in Minneapolis stock of 850,000 bushels in three days. Prediction of early falling off in the Northwestern movement had some effect, and a good deal of buying developed for reaction, on the theory that after a marked decline prices were entitled to recovery. The receipts at all points showed an increase of 300,000 bushels over last week and about the same amount over last year. The Bradstreet's visible increased 424,000 bushels in the United States, with a gain in Canada of 2,603,000 bushels, making a world's gain of 3,727,000 bushels, against a decrease of 3,926,000 bushels the previous week, and a decrease of 2,075,000 bushels last year. Cash wheat was firmer, No. 2 red, 97c, free on board; No. 1 Northern, $1.12⅝; No. 2 hard Winter, $1.06⅝; No. 1 Manitoba, $1.11⅝.

CORN was dull and firm, closing at ¼c to ½c net advance. Offerings were light in the future market, and prices were influenced by less favorable weather conditions and by reports of smaller country offerings. Western cash markets were quoted firmer, and export demand improved with reported sales of 26 loads at outports. The receipts West showed further large gain over last week, amounting in two days to 2,700,000 bushels, or 700,000 bushels more than last week. The increase in the visible supply was 2,169,000 bushels, following an increase of 557,000 bushels the previous week. Last year the increase was only 40,000 bushels. Spot corn was firmer, with steamer quoted at 67½c, elevator, export, and No. 2, 69c, free on board, January to March loading.

OATS.—The market was dull and firm all day, closing at a net gain of ½c to ⅝c. Good commission house buying developed, with reports of lighter offerings from the country and firmer cash market. The visible supply decreased 835,000 bushels. Spot oats were firm, with standards and No. 2 white quoted at 54c; No. 2 white, 54½c.

PROVISIONS.—A better tone developed in the provision market, with advance in packing points in live hog markets. Offerings were not so freely pressed, and the close was steady.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Resistance toward scoring further declines was apparent during yesterday's session, although the pressure of hedges continues to limit the advances. Belated short covering in response to the Government cotton report on Monday was noticeable, while it was believed that the West was rendering support, probably encouraged by the extent of the recent decline in oil values and a somewhat steadier undertone in lard. Selling of the near positions by refiners, with claims that the oil would be delivered, was obvious, in fact so much so that some interests were skeptical as to the real motive for the sales. Crude quoted at 4.07 to 4.13.

COTTON.

Despite numerous bearish advices, emanating from practically all sections of the belt, there was an undertone of firmness to the future market. At the start hesitation was noted, with declines of from 1 to 4 points recorded, incidentally establishing new low ground, but thereafter prices gradually hardened. The inquiry from shorts was enormous at times, which, in connection with some new investment buying attracted by prevailing levels and liberal trade demand, proved more than commensurate with the heavy volume of hedge sales.

The tenor of the spot dispatches created the impression that the Government report was generally subjected to a bearish interpretation at the South, as concessions were granted by the holders and the liberal demand was apparently easily supplied. Official spot quotations were generally 1-16c to ⅛c lower, and, obviously, with the advance in the future market and declines in spots, a part of the disparity existing was adjusted. Prominent bears who have been selling rather freely were on the buying side during the day, and it appeared as though pessimistic price opinions were undergoing modification, there being some claims that inquiry from spinners would increase on the small recessions and that cotton at current quotations, representing less than 8c a pound at several Southern points, was looked upon as an incentive for spinners to anticipate future requirements with greater confidence.

The cables from Liverpool were below expectations and influential in the initial declines of the local market. Private advices from abroad stated that liquidation had been impelled by the Government report, with freer offerings of actual cotton also a factor, but the prevalence of a good trade inquiry was a partial offsetting feature. Foreign news, on the whole, was contradictory. There was a cable from Shanghai claiming that no improvement was noted in conditions regarding the piece-goods trade. Another cable from France was that cotton trade conditions continued good, although the situation of the wool trade was unsatisfactry. The Manchester official cables reported cloths and yarns quiet, with very little business doing. Berlin advices pertaining to the Egyptian cotton crop were more bearish, it being stated that top crop prospects were favorable and that estimates of the outturn were being increased.

The local spot market was unchanged, with middlings at 9.20c. Exports are about 600,000 bales in excess of last year. The New York warehouse stocks amount to 68,000 bales, against 61,000 the 1st of December and 215,000 a year ago. Port receipts to-day are estimated at 65,000 bales, against 63,000 last week and 61,000 a year ago. The weather at the South is a shade less favorable for movement.

REORGANIZING TOLEDO LINES

Gas and Electric Properties Likely to be Segregated in a New Company.

Plans for the reorganization of the Toledo Railways and Light Company are reaching final stages, and it is believed that the terms will include the segregation of the gas and electric properties in a new company which will be controlled through stock ownership.

About $8,000,000 indebtedness of these properties will be provided for by the sale of $5,000,000 first mortgage bonds and first preferred cumulative preferred 6 per cent. stock. It is expected that the $6,000,000 first mortgage bonds of the Toledo Railways and Light Company will be retired at par during the year; that the 4 per cent. consolidated mortgage bonds represented by the Protective Committee will be exchanged for 4 per cent. cumulative preferred stock at par, and that common stockholders will be called on for $7 a share in return for full participation in the new common.

Those who do not pay the assessment will probably get one-seventh of their present holdings in new common.

TO HOLDERS OF:
Certificates of deposit of Bankers Trust Company (of New York) for shares of Preferred and Common Stock of

ALABAMA CONSOLIDATED COAL & IRON COMPANY

deposited under Plan and Agreement for the Merger and Reorganization of Alabama Consolidated Coal & Iron Company and Southern Iron & Steel Company, dated October 11, 1911:

The undersigned Committee has been informed that certain agreements have been executed between holders of the preferred and common stock of Alabama Consolidated Coal & Iron Company altering, as between the parties thereto, the relative proportions of new securities distributable to them under the Plan dated October 11, 1911.

While refusing to be affected by any agreement made between depositors, the undersigned Committee believing that all depositors of the same class should be treated alike, at the request of the holders of a large amount of stock of Alabama Consolidated Coal & Iron Company, has determined to modify said Plan. Accordingly, notice is hereby given that the undersigned Committee, acting under said Plan and Agreement aforesaid pursuant to the powers conferred upon it by paragraph Eighth of said Agreement, has modified said Plan as follows:

(1) Depositing preferred stockholders of Alabama Consolidated Coal & Iron Company will receive 150% in new preferred stock and 30% in new common stock, in lieu of 150% in new preferred stock;

(2) Depositing common stockholders of Alabama Consolidated Coal & Iron Company will receive 122% in new preferred stock and 100% in new Common stock, in lieu of 122% in new preferred stock and 115% in new common stock;

(3) Depositing common stockholders of Alabama Consolidated Coal & Iron Company, upon payment in cash of 50% (instead of 80%) of the par value of their respective shares, will be entitled to subscribe pro rata for $1,250,000 (instead of $2,000,000) face amount of new bonds, $312,500 (instead of $500,000) par value of new preferred stock, and $1,250,000 (instead of $2,000,000) par value of new common stock; and

(4) Depositing preferred stockholders of Alabama Consolidated Coal & Iron Company upon payment in cash of 60% of the par value of their respective shares, will be entitled to subscribe pro rata for $750,000 face amount of new bonds, $187,500 par value of new preferred stock, and $750,000 par value of new common stock.

A statement of said modifications of said Plan and Agreement has been signed by the Committee and filed with Bankers Trust Company, in the City of New York, the Depositary under said Plan and Agreement. Said statement may be inspected during business hours at the office of said Depositary.

Holders of certificates of deposit for common stock of Alabama Consolidated Coal & Iron Company may within 21 days after December 6, 1911, (the date of the first publication of this notice), upon surrender of their respective certificates of deposit to the Depositary and upon payment of the sum of fifty cents in respect of each share of said common stock represented thereby (being the proportionate contribution of each such share towards the compensation and expenses of the Committee,) withdraw from said Plan and Agreement; and thereby shall be entitled to receive certificates for shares of common stock of Alabama Consolidated Coal & Iron Company to the amount represented by their respective certificates of deposit.

All holders of such certificates of deposit who do not so surrender the same and withdraw within said period of 21 days the shares of stock represented thereby shall be conclusively deemed to have assented to said modifications of said plan and shall be bound thereby as fully and effectively as if they had respectively actually assented thereto.

Margin of Safety in Investments
The wise investment of money is not simply a question of safety; nor, on the other hand, is it merely a matter of income. It is in reality a combination of the two.
While it is impossible to present any fixed rule, it is generally laid down by experts as an axiom that when a bond issue represents from one-half to one-third the true value of a property mortgaged, then the margin of security is ample.
If, moreover, the income applicable to interest charges on a given bond issue is from two to three times the annual requirement, then the margin of earnings is ample.
If, in addition, the bonds yield approximately 5 per cent. and have a reasonably broad market, then they combine:
1. Safety as to principal.
2. Convertibility into cash.
3. Opportunity for profit.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Less Activity in Stocks, but Forward Movement in Prices Is Carried Further.

BERLIN'S BIDS FOR MONEY

Suggest No Such Strain as That Market Felt Last September—Higher London Carry-Over Rate on Americans.

The increase in the volume of trading which accompanied the presentation on Monday of an unusual amount of news, nearly all of it of favorable import, was not maintained yesterday, but for the most part the upward drift of prices persisted and many fractional and a few larger net gains were added to those of the previous day. There was very much less in the day's news yesterday to arouse interest on the Stock Exchange, but the market merely became dull without showing much effect of the selling induced by the substantial rise with which the week opened. Union Pacific, which had shown the sharpest gain on Monday, was the only one of the most active stocks which yesterday closed at a net decline, and its loss was limited to the barest fraction. The suggestions in the morning's political dispatches from Washington that after all it may be Mr. Roosevelt who may determine in the final count the selection of next year's standard bearer of the Republican Party did not pass unnoticed in Wall Street, but the possible situation in next year's Presidential contest which this suggested will have to become more clearly defined before it assumes the position of a stock-market factor. Despite the interest taken in the matter it was certainly not a Stock Exchange factor yesterday. Wall Street will in due time become keenly interested in the political developments now beginning to form themselves in advance of next year's National election, but at present, so far as the stock market is concerned, even the most forehanded of traders would hardly feel called upon to discount the events of next November. What was Wall Street's view four years ago, however, is not necessarily Wall Street's view to-day, and much has happened which may lead Wall Street, or, at all events, the Stock Exchange, to look upon the political events of next year from a somewhat different point of view than it would have assumed that long ago.

What with the further bids made here by Berlin bankers for over the end of the year loans, the higher carry-over rates on American securities charged at the London settlement, the further recession in call money rates here, and the continued though much reduced loss of cash to the Sub-Treasury, as compared with a week ago, the monetary affairs of the day presented a good deal that was of interest. Bids a fraction above 6 per cent. were reported yesterday as being made from Berlin for the use of American money for the next thirty-days, which would cover the end of the year settlement, but it appears that these bids for loans were in marks and not in dollars and that the New York lender on such bids would have to take all of the risk of exchange. The difference of exchange is a much more important item in a short loan, of course, than in the case of long time loans, and some of the bankers who were most active in lending money in the German market earlier in the year, notably at the close of September, are not now accepting these bids of 6 per cent. because of the conditions under which they are being made. So far as came to light yesterday, the highest bid made in this market by German bankers for loans in dollars was 4½ per cent. The expectation in well-informed banking circles was that this rate was likely to be raised to a somewhat higher figure before the end of the month, but it seems clear that the bids for American money now being made by Berlin indicates no such expected strain as that market had to encounter at the close of the September quarter. The carry-over charge on American stocks in the London settlement went as high as 6 per cent., which was from 1 to 1½ per cent. above the rate charged at the last fortnightly settlement. This advance in carry-over rates in the face of an easier, or, at most, a steady discount market, clearly bore out the reference in the day's cable advices to a much enlarged position in American stocks in the London market.

CALENDAR FOR TO-DAY.

ANNUAL MEETING.

United Fruit Co.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Tone in London Cheerful—Prices Steady in Paris, Higher in Berlin.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—Money was in strong demand and discount rates were steady to-day.

The settlement occupied the attention of traders on the Stock Exchange. Carry-over rates for American shares ranged from 5 to 6 per cent. Business for the new account was fair, and a cheerful tone prevailed. The settlement of the labor dispute helped home rails, and the report of the Railway Securities Commission strengthened Americans. Mining and copper shares were strong, but Guayaquil bonds closed two points lower.

American securities opened steady, and during the forenoon advanced from ⅛ to ¾ above parity on covering. Canadian Pacific gained 2⅝ points on the announcement of the new issue of stock. Wall Street buying sustained values in the afternoon, and the market closed steady.

Underwriters have agreed to take up at 89 the $35,000,000 Canadian Northern Railway debentures recently offered.

Money, 3@3¼ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3 15-16@4 per cent.; for three months bills 3⅞ per cent.

Gold premium at Madrid, 8.08; at Lisbon, 10.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—Prices were steady on the Bourse to-day.

Three per cent. rentes, 95f 62½c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 21c for checks.

BERLIN, Dec. 12.—Trading was active and prices were higher on the Boerse to-day. American shares were especially firm.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 45 pfennigs for checks.

Money, 4¾ per cent.

Private discount rate, 5 per cent.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Trading in Reduced Volume, but There Are Bursts of Activity in Scattered Issues.

COPPERS ARE IRREGULAR

Inspiration Substantially Higher on Active Trading—Metropolitan Bonds Up—Tobacco Issues Off.

Curb trading was in diminished volume yesterday, and price movements generally narrow. The most active issue was British-American Tobacco, which is to be distributed to American Tobacco common stockholders. Sales of 9,500 shares were reported between 15⅛ and 15½, the close being at 15¼, even with the opening. The coppers were irregular. Braden, after opening ⅛ down, at 5½, rose again to 5⅝, on sales of 400 shares. Giroux rose ⅛, but closed even with the opening at 4. Greene-Cananea lost ⅛ from the opening. Inspiration, which was the most active of the list, rose from 9⅝ to 10 on sales of 7,500. In the bond list Metropolitan 4s and 5s became again the most active issues, taking attention to a large extent from the new tobacco company bonds which were reactionary, while the traction bonds made substantial gains.

Transactions reported yesterday in the outside market, with opening, high, low, and last prices, were as follows:

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Strength characterized the market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange most of the day. There was not much aggressiveness, however, about the dealings, compared with the day before. The fresh injection of political issues into market discussion acted somewhat as a damper upon speculative enthusiasm. Small lots of American Cotton Oil changed hands at 44½, and Distillers' Securities at 31⅝, no sales of these two stocks being reported during the day on the other Exchange.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Canadian Pacific's Money.

Some people, probably holders of Erie stock, still believe that when Sir Thomas Shaughnessy has perfected his plans they will be found to include ownership of the Erie. The announcement that the Canadian Pacific will sell $18,000,000 of new stock, which will enrich the company's treasury by $27,000,000, was taken as indicating further preparations for getting control of the Erie. An officer of the Canadian Pacific gave a more plausible explanation for the new stock issue when he said that it was to provide funds for new terminal facilities and further construction. When the new shares are sold the company will have annual dividend requirements of $19,800,000. As the road has earned a surplus equivalent to more than 16 per cent. on its $180,000,000 of stock for each of the past two years there is little question about its ability to maintain its 10 per cent. rate in the face of the increase in stock issues.

Improvement in Georgia Incomes.

Holders of the Central of Georgia income bonds have seen a wider fluctuation in their securities than occurs in the average good stock issue. When the railroad company failed to declare interest in 1907, on the ground that it had not been earned, there was a rush to form protective committees, and the litigation which resulted has dragged on from court to court for most of the time since. Interest was awarded by the highest court in Georgia shortly before Christmas, 1910. At the end of last week the first incomes had advanced 8 points from the low price prevailing earlier in the year, while the seconds had risen 20 points, and the third incomes 22 points. The consolidated mortgage bonds sold yesterday at 110, which is a new high price for that issue in the current year.

Peculiar Traffic Arrangement.

In deciding that the Inter-State Commerce Commission can properly inquire into the division of rates made between carriers, Commissioner Lane points out some peculiar features of the relations between the Seaboard Air Line and the Durham & Southern. The latter is owned by B. N. and J. B. Duke of the American Tobacco Company. The commission found that for the sake of getting a larger share of the tobacco company's business at other points the Seaboard voluntarily gives up some of its business to the Durham Line. "The Seaboard surrenders the position of terminal carrier of a large portion of the Durham traffic," said the commission, "to the Durham & Southern, which for its twenty-mile haul receives 40 per cent. of the Seaboard's division on through business via the Virginia gateway. No such arrangements would be made but for the fact of a community of interest between the Durham & Southern and the Duke interests."

Steel Improvement.

Advices from the Pittsburgh district and from the steel trade generally are that new business is coming in apace and that the price movement seems at last on the upturn. The small advances so far made seem to have had the effect of bringing out delayed orders to replenish exhausted stocks, a class of business which has not been seen since the upturn of last January, and one which is indicative of renewed confidence among the dealers. The independents, as well as the Steel Corporation, have apparently been getting new business at a rate which is demanding increased operations at the mills, and the situation, as the manufacturers see it, is more hopeful than at any time since the recession began last Spring.

13¾-Cent Copper.

Sales of copper were reported yesterday at 13¾ cents, although this was not the universal price, other sales being reported at 13⅝. Selling agencies have not abated a bit of their confidence in a continuance of the higher levels for some months at least.

Expect Low Bond Bids.

The bids which the State Controller will receive on Thursday for the forthcoming issue of $10,000,000 4 pe rcent. canal improvement bonds, are expected to be well under the price obtained for the similar offering made last April. At that time the average price received was something better than 104.30. When the second issue this year was announced last month it was a disappointment to the bond houses since a large proportion of the previous issue had remained in the hands of the syndicates because of the already plentiful supply of this class of security, and the situation is now further complicated by the higher rates for money. The forthcoming bonds have been valued by Curb speculators in "when issued" contracts at 103⅜ and 101⅝ in the most recent quotations. Last Spring's issue sold "when issued" on the Curb around 105.

PAY ON METROPOLITAN 5s.

Accumulated Dividends to be Divided Among Collateral Trust Holders.

Holders of the Metropolitan Street Railway collateral trust 5 per cent. bonds will receive an unspecified amount shortly from the Trustees of the mortgage in the shape of pro rata distribution of funds accumulated from dividends on the stocks held in the collateral trust. The Guaranty Trust Company is Trustee for these general mortgage and collateral trust bonds, due 1997, of which there are $12,500,000 outstanding, and in announcing the coming distribution the company stated yesterday that the fund "has reached substantial proportions."

The collateral behind the bonds, in addition to the first lien on certain street railway properties and leases of others, consists of $3,090,000 par value of stocks. The dividends on these stocks became payable to the Trustee of the mortgage by reason of the railway company's default in the payment of interest on the bonds. The statement says:

"In accordance with the provisions of the mortgage securing said bonds, this fund will be distributed to the bondholders entitled thereto in connection with the termination of the Trustees under said mortgage."

NO PLAN FOR WABASH 4s.

Committee Undecided Whether to Ask for Receivership or Pay Interest.

Holders of the Wabash refunding 4s were cheered yesterday by a statement sent out in one of the news services to the effect that the railroad company had deposited a large sum of money with the Equitable Trust Company for the purpose of paying the January interest, and that the Reorganization Committee had decided to meet the semi-annual coupons due on that date.

It developed upon inquiry that the trustee had not received any amount to provide against a default on the January payment and that the committee is not committed to any action of this kind. A number of the bankers and Directors plan to leave New York to-day, in the company of President Delano, for a several days' inspection trip. Mr. Delano said yesterday that he had no cause to be ashamed of the property which he would show the committee, and that if the company had $10,000,000 to spend on improvements the Wabash would compare favorably with any road in the West. It was learned that the committee will not decide whether to ask for a receivership or pay the January interest until shortly before the close of the year.

STOCKS OUT OF TOWN

Generally Strong Tone, with Many Advances, Following Moderately Active Trading.

RISE IN CHICAGO LOCALS

Advances Run to Several Points in Local Shares in That Centre—Coppers Firm but Quiet in Boston.

Trading in the principal out-of-town markets yesterday was characterized by moderate activity during which advances were common, particularly in local stocks.

The market was quiet in Baltimore, and featureless.

The copper shares lacked snap in the Boston market, and though firmness was the rule, advances in prices were confined to the more active leaders, such as Amalgamated and Utah Copper. At the same time, the trading was broad, indicating some outside interest, but it was not clear that this was wholly with a view to buying on the higher price and stronger statistical position of the metal. A few, notably Calumet and Arizona, seemed easier under large offerings. In the industrial list, business was slack around the previous day's quotations in most instances. United Shoe Machinery moved up a point on scattered purchases. Railroad stocks were steady, with a light demand for small lots. New England Telephone rose 5 points to a new high record price.

Prices ruled generally strong on the Chicago Exchange, with some gains running to as much as several points. Booth Fisheries common, after an opening advance of 2½, added more than 2 points, and closed a shade under 50. There was an advance of 2 points in Chicago Title and Trust, and of almost as much in Commonwealth Edison. Fractional gains prevailed in Can preferred, Chicago Telephone, Diamond Match, and some others, while slight concessions were made in National Carbon and Pneumatic Tool. McCrum-Howell responded moderately to the declaration of the regular quarterly dividend of three-quarters of 1 per cent. on the common, payable Jan. 1 to stockholders of record Dec. 20. Interest was manifested in the report that the plan of bondholders to reorganize the United Boxboard Company provides for an assessment to be levied upon all the present securities—namely, 10 per cent. on both classes of bonds, the general mortgage and collateral issues, and $5 per share on the capital stock. The plan of reorganization is not only distasteful to stockholders but painful, considering the fact that an assessment previously levied has been lost.

The General Asphalt stocks suddenly came to life in Philadephia, moving up with a rush on light orders by houses sometimes known to operate for inside interests in the company. The report that the Lehigh Navigation's electric plans contemplated extending to Philadelphia as a rival of local concerns was not taken seriously.

Yesterday's transactions on the various out-of-town exchanges, as reported to THE NEW YORK TIMES, were as follows:

SELL THEIR GEORGIA BONDS.

Holders of Central Railway Issues Close Deal with Illinois Central.

Committees representing Central of Georgia income bondholders have arranged to sell the bonds deposited with them to the Illinois Central, which controls the road through stock ownership.

Lazard Freres announced yesterday on behalf of themselves, Maitland, Coppell & Co. and other holders of the certificates for the first, second, and third income bonds that they had negotiated a sale of their holdings and that the buyers would extend the same offer to all other bondholders who have not deposited their securities with the committees.

The Illinois Central has agreed to pay 95, 92½, and 90, respectively, for the three classes of bonds, besides the accumulated interest, and a part of the expenses of the committees. All of the certificate holders will be required to pay 1 per cent. toward the expenses of the committees, while those bondholders who did not deposit their securities can take advantage of the offer by paying in addition to this charge 2 per cent., 2½ per cent., and 3 per cent., respectively, on the first, second, and third incomes.

There is about 6 per cent. of accrued interest due on the first incomes, 12 per cent. on the second, and 18 per cent. on the third. This will bring the net return to the holders above par. The Illinois Central has bought a considerable amount of the bonds in the open market, but the committee will be able to turn over from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000. The bonds have been a source of much embarrassment to the Central of Georgia and have been the subject of almost continual litigation for the past six years. A year ago the Supreme Court of Georgia decided that the company was obligated to pay the full interest on all three classes for the year 1907.

PAYING EXTRA DIVIDENDS.

First National Bank Declares One of 10% and American Surety 3%.

A number of extra dividends were included in yesterday's new budget in Wall Street. A 10 per cent. extra dividend was declared on $10,000,000 capital stock of the First National Bank in addition to the regular quarterly disbursement of 7 per cent. The regular quarterly dividend of 3 per cent. on the stock of the First Security Company, which was formed by the bank a couple of years ago to take title to its security holdings, was also declared. All of the dividends are payable Jan. 2.

The American Surety Company declared an extra dividend of 3 per cent. in addition to the regular quarterly disbursement of that amount. Both are payable Dec. 30 to stockholders of record Dec. 15.

The Chicago City Railway, which last year paid an extra dividend of 2 per cent. at this time, declared yesterday an extra dividend of 1½ per cent. in addition to the regular quarterly disbursement of 2½ per cent. Both are payable Dec. 30 to stockholders of record Dec. 19.

Nipissing Mines Company has declared besides the regular quarterly dividend of 5 per cent., an extra 2½ per cent., payable Jan. 20 to stock of record Dec. 30.

Railroad Merger Plans Bond Issue.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 12.—At a meeting of the Directors of the Minneapolis & St. Paul Railroad, to be held in New York next week, it is expected that final arrangement will be made for the new bond issue to raise money to extend the system northward from South Dakota to Canada and southward beyond St. Louis. The road has consolidated with the Iowa Central Railways, under the Presidency of Newman Erb of New York, with headquarters at Minneapolis.

M. & ST. L. EARNINGS UP.

President Shonts Points Out, Though, That Freight Rates Should Be Higher.

The annual report of the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroad Company for the year ended June 30 shows operating revenue of $5,094,016, which is an increase of $148,625 over the previous year. Operating expenses increased by $104,690, to $3,523,199, and taxes by $4,282, to $229,560, leaving net at $1,341,255, an increase of $39,653. Income from investments was $37,773, a falling off of $2,083. The total income was $1,379,029. The payment of $1,368,791 in interest on funded debt outstanding left a surplus of $75,884.

Dividends on the preferred stock, which called for the disbursement of $100,000 in the previous year, were omitted and the surplus compares with the deficit of $22,062 left in 1909-10 after the payment of the preferred dividend. President T. P. Shonts, in commenting on the showing of the year, says:

"Notwithstanding the partial crop failure and marked recession in general business in the territory served, your company has enjoyed the largest gross earning year in its history. Liberal but judicious expenditures have been made for the up-keep of rolling stock and the physical property, the general condition of which has been greatly improved during the year.

"The operations for the year have felt the full effect of the higher rate of wages paid and improved working conditions granted in meeting the demands of labor, and with the constantly increasing requirements of the State and Federal laws and administrative boards, the necessity for a proportionate advance in the rates of transportation to compensate such increased costs is still prominently before your management."

RECEIVER FOR MONORAIL LINE

President Burrows Appointed—Interborough Had Sued to Foreclose Mortgage.

Supreme Court Justice Ford signed an order yesterday appointing Bion L. Burrows receiver of the Pelham Park Railway Company and the City Island Railroad Company. Mr. Burrows is President of the Pelham Park Company, which controls the City Island Road, and operates the monorail over the former and a horse car line over the other.

The action of the court followed two suits by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company to foreclose mortgages of $28,520 and $27,550 for non-payment of about $1,400 interest. The monorail line attracted a great deal of attention because of its novelty, but its popularity was marred by two accidents.

CENTRAL OF GEORGIA RAILWAY COMPANY

To Holders of Certificates of Deposit of Manhattan Trust Company, issued under Protective Agreement dated September 6, 1907; and To Holders of Third Preference Income Bonds of the above Railway Company:

An offer has been made to the undersigned Committee to purchase the Third Preference Income Bonds of the Railway Company now deposited under the Protective Agreement, and also such additional bonds as may be deposited with the Committee as hereinafter provided. The purchasers have agreed to pay a portion of the expenses and disbursements of the Committee, and the sum of $1,095.42 for each of said bonds, with all unpaid coupons or interest warrants attached, being $900 for the principal of each bond, $185.42 for interest heretofore unpaid, and $10 for interest from October 1, 1911, to December 13, 1911.

Each member of the Committee and other holders of large amounts of the certificates outstanding have already accepted the said offer, and the Committee, by unanimous vote, recommends to all certificate-holders the acceptance thereof.

In order to afford to all holders of Third Preference Income Bonds an opportunity to share in the benefits of said offer, said bonds, with all unpaid coupons or interest warrants attached, will be received by the Manhattan Trust Company, No. 113 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, for account of the Committee, until and including December 28, 1911, upon payment of the sum of $30 per bond to said Manhattan Trust Company, for account of the expenses of the Committee, being the amount fixed by the Committee as the terms upon which such bonds will be received.

Holders of said bonds who shall deliver same to said Manhattan Trust Company for account of the Committee and make said payment of $30 per bond as above provided, and holders of Certificates of Deposit of Manhattan Trust Company, who desire to sell the bonds represented thereby ON OR PRIOR TO DECEMBER 28, 1911, will receive from said Manhattan Trust Company, upon delivery of their bonds in negotiable form, or upon surrender of their certificates in negotiable form, the said sum of $1,095.42 per bond, less the sum of $10 to be retained, subject to the order of the Committee, to be applied on account of its expenses and disbursements.

Any holder of said Certificates of Deposit who does not desire to avail himself of said offer may withdraw the bonds represented thereby, upon surrender of his certificates in negotiable form, provided there shall have been paid upon said certificates the sums heretofore called by the Committee, and upon further payment to said Manhattan Trust Company, for account of the Committee, of the sum of $10 for each bond represented by the certificates, being such holder's share of the expenses and disbursements fixed by the Committee.

Pursuant to the power and authority vested in it, the Committee has requested the discontinuance of the litigation caused to be instituted by it against the Railway Company, and has withdrawn therefrom.

As the Committee has accomplished its purpose of protecting the interest of its depositors, notice is hereby given, pursuant to the provisions of the Protective Agreement, that the Committee has elected to terminate said Agreement as of February 28, 1912.

These bonds will be paid at 105 and accrued interest to January 1st, 1912, on presentation at the office of The New York Trust Company, No. 26 Broad Street, New York City, on and after January 2d, 1912. Interest will cease on the above bonds on January 1st, 1912.

THE NEW YORK TRUST COMPANY.
By H. W. MORSE, Secretary.
December 1st, 1911.

TO THE HOLDERS OF FIRST MORTGAGE Five Per Cent. Bonds of the Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth Streets Crosstown Railroad Company, dated October 1, 1896, maturing October 1, 1996, and to holders of Central Trust Company receipts for the same:

Pursuant to Bondholders' Agreement dated July 22, 1908, the undersigned adopted a plan and agreement for the reorganization and readjustment of the Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth Streets Crosstown Railroad Company, on December 11th, 1911, and duly filed, on December 12th, 1911, a copy thereof with Central Trust Company of New York, the depositary under said agreement, at its office, No. 54 Wall Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City.

Such plan and agreement will become effective and binding upon all holders of Central Trust Company certificates of deposit and will be finally and conclusively deemed to have been assented to by all such certificate holders unless within twenty days after December 12th, 1911, more than one-third in amount of the certificate holders shall file or have filed with Central Trust Company of New York written notice of their dissent, which such notice shall specify the date and number of the certificates held by the holder so dissenting.

CENTRAL OF GEORGIA RAILWAY COMPANY

To Holders of Certificates of Deposit of Metropolitan Trust Company, issued under Protective Agreement, dated September 17, 1908; and To Holders of First Preference Income Bonds of the above Railway Company:

An offer has been made to the undersigned Committee to purchase the First Preference Income Bonds of the Railway Company, now deposited under the Protective Agreement, and also such additional bonds as may be deposited with the Committee as hereinafter provided. The purchasers have agreed to pay a portion of the expenses and disbursements of the Committee, and the sum of $1,013.76 for each of said bonds, with all unpaid coupons or interest warrants attached, being $950 for the principal of each bond, $53.76 for interest heretofore unpaid, and $10 for interest from October 1, 1911, to December 13, 1911.

Each member of the Committee and other holders of large amounts of the certificates outstanding have already accepted the said offer, and the Committee, by unanimous vote, recommends to all certificate holders the acceptance thereof.

In order to afford to all holders of First Preference Income Bonds an opportunity to share in the benefits of said offer, said bonds with all unpaid coupons or interest warrants attached will be received by the Metropolitan Trust Company, No. 49 Wall Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, for account of the Committee until and including December 28, 1911, upon payment of the sum of $20 per bond to said Metropolitan Trust Company for account of the expenses of the Committee, being the amount fixed by the Committee as the terms upon which such bonds will be received.

Holders of said bonds who shall deliver same to said Metropolitan Trust Company for account of the Committee, and make said payment of $20 per bond as above provided, and holders of Certificates of Deposit of Metropolitan Trust Company who desire to sell the bonds represented thereby, ON OR PRIOR TO DECEMBER 28, 1911, will receive from said Metropolitan Trust Company, upon delivery of their bonds in negotiable form as aforesaid, or upon surrender of their certificates in negotiable form, the said sum of $1,013.76 per bond, less the sum of $10, to be retained, subject to the order of the Committee, to be applied on account of its expenses and disbursements.

Any holder of said Certificates of Deposit who does not desire to avail himself of said offer may withdraw the bonds represented thereby, upon surrender of his certificates in negotiable form, provided there shall have been paid upon said certificates the sum heretofore called by the Committee, and upon further payment to said Metropolitan Trust Company, for account of the Committee, of the sum of $10 for each bond represented by such certificates, being such holder's share of the expenses and disbursements fixed by the Committee.

Pursuant to the power and authority vested in it, the Committee has requested the discontinuance of the litigation caused to be instituted by it against the Railway Company, and has withdrawn therefrom.

As the Committee has accomplished its purpose of protecting the interests of its depositors, notice is hereby given, pursuant to the provisions of the Protective Agreement, that the Committee has elected to terminate said Agreement as of February 28, 1912.

CENTRAL OF GEORGIA RAILWAY COMPANY

To Holders of Certificates of Deposit of Central Trust Company of New York, issued under Protective Agreement dated September 6, 1907; and To holders of Second Preference Income Bonds of the above Railway Company:

An offer has been made to the undersigned Committee to purchase the Second Preference Income Bonds of the Railway Company, now deposited under the Protective Agreement, and also such additional bonds as may be deposited with the Committee as hereinafter provided. The purchasers have agreed to pay a portion of the expenses and disbursements of the Committee, and the sum of $1,056.79 for each of said bonds, with all unpaid coupons or interest warrants attached, being $925 for the principal of each bond, $121.79 for interest heretofore unpaid, and $10 for interest from October 1, 1911, to December 13, 1911.

Each member of the Committee and other holders of large amounts of the certificates outstanding have already accepted the said offer, and the Committee, by unanimous vote, recommends to all certificate holders the acceptance thereof.

In order to afford to all holders of Second Preference Income Bonds an opportunity to share in the benefits of said offer, said bonds with all unpaid coupons or interest warrants attached will be received by the Central Trust Company of New York, No. 54 Wall Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, for account of the Committee, until and including December 28, 1911, upon payment of the sum of $25 per bond to said Central Trust Company for account of the expenses of the Committee, being the amount fixed by the Committee as the terms upon which such bonds will be received.

Holders of said bonds who shall deliver same to said Central Trust Company for account of the Committee, and make said payment of $25 per bond as above provided, and holders of Certificates of Deposit of Central Trust Company who desire to sell the bonds represented thereby, ON OR PRIOR TO DECEMBER 28, 1911, will receive from said Central Trust Company, upon delivery of their bonds in negotiable form as aforesaid, or upon surrender of their certificates in negotiable form, the said sum of $1,056.79 per bond, less the sum of $10 to be retained, subject to the order of the Committee, to be applied on account of its expenses and disbursements.

Any holder of said Certificates of Deposit who does not desire to avail himself of said offer may withdraw the bonds represented thereby, upon surrender of his certificates in negotiable form, provided there shall have been paid upon said certificates the sums heretofore called by the committee, and upon further payment to said Central Trust Company, for account of the Committee, of the sum of $10 for each bond represented by such certificates, being such holder's share of the expenses and disbursements fixed by the Committee.

Pursuant to the power and authority vested in it, the Committee has requested the discontinuance of the litigation caused to be instituted by it against the Railway Company, and has withdrawn therefrom.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Home of Dolan's Park Row Restaurant Sold to an Investor —Another Theatre for Seventh Avenue—Upper West Side Deals—Many Important Leases.

The Park Row Building long occupied by Dolan's restaurant has been sold. No eating house in the lower part of the city, not excepting the Astor House rotunda, is more famous than Dolan's, and, although nothing definite could be ascertained regarding the future of this popular all-night house, the fact that Dolan's lease expires May 1 next, has given rise to the rumor that after that date it will be obliged to seek new quarters.

The building is at 33 Park Row, adjoining the south corner of Beekman Street. It is a six-story structure, and has been sold by William Augustus Spencer and Wolcott G. Lane, trustees under the will of Lorillard Spencer. The buyer's name was not disclosed, being simply given as an investor. The brokers in the deal were William S. Whiting and Horace S. Ely & Co.

The building has a frontage of 23.4 feet on Park Row, opposite the Post Office, running back to Theatre Alley, where the frontage is 25 feet, with a depth of 75.3 feet on the northerly line and 85.11 feet on the southerly line. This is the first sale of the property in half a century. The property, including the building, is assessed at $140,000, the ground value being $130,000.

W. R. Willcox Leases Cravath Estate

William R. Willcox, Chairman of the Public Service Commission, has leased for a year Paul D. Cravath's country estate at Locust Valley, L. I. Mr. Cravath is building a new house near by overlooking the Sound, which will be ready for his occupancy next season. The lease was negotiated by Worthington Whitehouse.

Mrs. Helen Morton, daughter of Levi P. Morton, has leased, through the same broker, a large country estate at Roslyn, L. I., not far from William K. Vanderbilt, Jr.'s, Lake Success estate.

A $110,000 Lease on 46th Street.

J. Howard Wainwright has leased for a term of twenty-one years at an aggregate rental of about $110,000 his property at 22 West Forty-sixth Street to Arthur S. Lewis.

This building, on lot 20 by 98.9, is to be remodeled into a store and loft structure and will be ready for May tenants. McCarthy & Fellows were the brokers.

Another Theatre for Seventh Ave.

David Hauser has purchased from John C. Reid, Jr., the lot 25 by 75 at 2,226 Seventh Avenue, adjoining the northwest corner of 131st Street. The buyer will erect a three-story moving picture and vaudeville theatre. This is the first transfer of the property since 1873. The Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company negotiated the sale.

Reported Sale of Madison Av. Corner

The four-story and basement remodeled dwelling, at the southeast corner of Madison Avenue and Sixty-ninth Street, is reported to have been sold by Cleveland Moffett. The property, which has a frontage of 32 feet on the avenue and 63 feet on the street was purchased at auction last year by Mr. Moffett from the Swenson estate for $99,000.

Investors Buying Tenements.

Weisman & Herman have sold to the Brown Realty Company the six-story new law tenement at 2 Manhattan Street on a plot 26 by 100 at the northeast corner of 100th Street. In part payment the buyer gave the plot 75 by 209 on the east side of Third Avenue, between 169th and 170th Streets, in the Bronx.

John P. Wulff has purchased for investment 1,213 and 1,215 First Avenue, two four-story tenements with stores, on plot 38.6 by 100, between Sixty-fifth and Sixty-sixth Streets.

Operator Buys West End Avenue Corner.

An important deal in the apartment house district on the upper west side was announced yesterday by Bing & Bing, who sold to Julius Tishman the southeast corner of West End Avenue and 101st Street.

The plot, which measures 100.11 by 100, is covered with three five-story flats. A modern apartment will probably be erected on the site.

Site for Carnegie Library.

The City of New York has purchased from Lowenfeld & Prager the plot, 50 by 100, on the north side of 179th Street, 150 feet east of St. Nicholas Avenue. There is a lease until next July on the building on the property. A Carnegie library will probably be erected on the site.

Bronx.

L. Seligsberger sold for Jennie Halpert 61 West 181st Street, a three-story sixteen room house on plot 50 by 100.

Kurz & Uren, Inc., have sold for John Fellner, 377 East 157th Street, a three-story double flat, on lot 25 by 100, to an investor.

Brooklyn.

The eight three-story store and flat buildings now in course of construction at the northwest corner of Myrtle and Onderdonk Avenues, have been sold to an investor by the Merchants Lloyd Realty Company.

Actress Buys New Rochelle Home.

Mrs. W. B. Taylor, an actress whose stage name is Miss Stella Mayhew, has purchased a bungalow residence at Lyncroft, New Rochelle, a tract developed by Wolter H. Flandreau.

Insurance Company Buys in Newark.

The Firemen's Insurance Company of Newark has purchased the Pennington property on the north side of Broad Street in the "Four Corners" centre, and is having plans prepared to improve the property with a three-story building next Spring. Negotiations have been pending for the plot for some time. The insurance company's new building occupies the adjoining corner.

Recent Buyers.

Edward M. Browning is the buyer of 110 and 112 West Fortieth Street, sold Monday by the Brady & Kip estate. A loft similar to the buyer's new building at 141 to 145 West Thirty-sixth Street, which is twenty-two stories high, will probably be erected on the site. N. A. Berwin & Co. negotiated the sale.

Apartment Building Loan.

Robert Wallace, Jr., who recently purchased the plot on the south side of 121st Street, 118 by 100.11 feet, beginning 100 feet east of Amsterdam Avenue, has obtained a building loan of $175,000 from Joseph Hamerschlag for the new apartment house to be erected there.

Riverside Drive Apartment.

Plans have been filed for a six-story apartment house on the east side of Riverside Drive, 193.10 feet south of 129th Street, for the London Construction Company, at a cost of $45,000. It will have a frontage of 50 feet and a depth of 72.2 feet, and will have accommodations for twenty-five families. Gronenberg & Leuchtag are the architects.

Report on Bronx County Bill.

The Legislation Committee of the Taxpayers' Alliance of the Borough of the Bronx will submit a report with its recommendations on the Bronx County bill, which is about to be reintroduced in the State Legislature at a meeting to be held this evening at 4,214 Third Avenue.

Other matters of importance will be brought up including the question of placing a new hospital in Westchester for the care of patients with contagious diseases.

REFEREES' NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW YORK.—EVERSLEY CHILDS, as Executor, &c., Plaintiff, against WILLIAM J. GREENFIELD and others, Defendants.

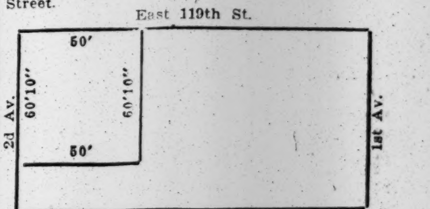
In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action and bearing date the 6th day of December, 1911, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 4th day of January, 1912, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Joseph P. Day, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows: All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, with the building thereon, situate, lying, and being in the City and County of New York, Borough of Manhattan, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point formed by the intersection of the southerly line of East One Hundred and Nineteenth Street with the easterly line of Second Avenue; and running thence southerly along the easterly side of Second Avenue sixty feet ten inches; thence easterly, parallel with East One Hundred and Nineteenth Street, fifty feet; thence northerly, parallel with Second Avenue, and part of the way through a party wall, sixty feet ten inches, to the southerly side of East One Hundred and Nineteenth Street; and thence westerly along the southerly side of East One Hundred and Nineteenth Street fifty feet to the point or place of beginning.

Dated New York, December 12, 1911.

CHARLES L. HOFFMAN, Referee.

EDO E. MERCELIS, Attorney for Plaintiff, 69 Wall Street, New York City.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold; its street numbers are 2,314 to 2,320 Second Avenue and 298-300 East 119th Street.



The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold is fifty-one thousand eight hundred fifty-one and 53-100 ($51,851.53) dollars with interest thereon from the 18th day of November, 1911, together with costs and allowance amounting to four hundred thirteen and 88-100 dollars, with interest from December 6th, 1911, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of the taxes, assessments, and water rates, or other liens, which are to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money, or paid by the referee, is twenty-one hundred seventeen 02-100 dollars and interest.

The said premises will be sold subject to rights, if any, acquired by any elevated railroad company, for the operation of an elevated railroad in Second Avenue; and to the state of facts shown on the survey made by Francis K. Ford, dated August 26, 1905, to be found on file with plaintiff's attorney, and with the Lawyers Title Insurance and Trust Company, 160 Broadway, New York City.

Dated New York, December 12, 1911.

CHARLES L. HOFFMAN, Referee.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

MICHAEL HENMANN.—Judge Hand has appointed Nicholas Kelley receiver for Michael Henmann, restaurant, at 47 and 49 Maiden Lane, and authorized him to continue business for ten days.

JULIUS ORBACH.—Schedules in bankruptcy of Julius Orbach, skirt manufacturers, 60 University Place, show liabilities of $13,512 and assets of $11,805, consisting of stock, $800; machinery, $1,000; accounts, $10,000, and cash, $5.

PEOPLE'S 1 to 25 CENT STORE.—Schedules in bankruptcy of the Peoples' 1 to 25 Cent Department Store at 657 Tenth Avenue show liabilities of $2,926 and assets of $3,003, consisting of stock, $1,500; fixtures, $1,500, and cash, $3.

A. M. WEBER-UHLIG COMPANY.—Judge Hand has appointed Arthur F. Gotthold receiver for the A. M. Weber-Uhlig Company, manufacturer of children's headwear and women's neckwear, of 367 Broadway; liabilities are $22,000 and assets $10,000.

NATHAN HARRIS.—Nathan Harris, wholesale dealer in dress goods at 154 Ridge Street, has made a settlement with creditors at 35 cents on the dollar cash, and Judge Hand has dismissed the petition in bankruptcy filed against him on Sept. 23; liabilities were $15,000.

ISAAC SHAPIRO.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Isaac Shapiro, dealer in men's furnishing goods, at 21 Rutgers Place, who made an assignment on Monday, by Harry C. Graham, a creditor, for $558 on unassigned claim of Lewis & Bashlow. Liabilities are $2,000 and assets less than $1,000.

I. BERNARD EDELSTEIN.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against I. Bernard Edelstein, dealer in men's furnishing goods, at 1½ Church Street, by these creditors: Alexander & Harris Company, $230; Moses & Benjamin Cohen, $153; Charles Falkenberg, $295. Assets were $1,000 and liabilities $5,000.

BAGGE-STILLMAN COMPANY. — Schedules in bankruptcy of the Bagge-Stillman Company, iron and steel works, at 145th Street and Southern Boulevard, show liabilities of $8,397 and assets of $14,284, consisting of stock, $1,281; machinery, $4,000; horse and wagon, $350; accounts of $8,578, and blueprints, $75.

THALER BROTHERS.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Samuel and Max Thaler, who compose the firm of Thaler Brothers, dealers in woolens at 102 Hester Street, by these creditors: Samuel J. Billig, $250, on an assigned claim of Pascal, Nacht & Co.; Charles Kalmanowitz, $142, and Charles G. Reider, $128. Liabilities are $1,800 and assets $700.

SINGER BROTHERS.—Schedules in bankruptcy of Singer Brothers, furs, at 43 East Twentieth Street, show liabilities of $34,869 and assets of $9,952, consisting of accounts, $2,626; stock, $6,197; fixtures, $997, and cash, $132. Among the creditors are Mautner & Ahlswede, $4,707; Adler & Platky, $1,660; Jacob Stern, $1,532; Jackson & Brod, $1,318, and Sawyer & Hepner, $1,231.

MOSES GROCH.—Judge Hand has granted a discharge from bankruptcy to Moses Groch of Marks & Groch, manufacturers of suits and costumes at 15 East Sixteenth Street. Liabilities are $11,835. On June 21, 1911, a discharge was denied to both partners, and the objection against Mr. Groch was that he did not appear for examination. He subsequently had the case reopened, and appeared for examination, with the result that he was granted a discharge.

GEORGE WATSON.—Charles C. Nadal, receiver for George Watson, dealer in horses, at 212 West Fiftieth Street, has obtained permission to sell any of the horses at either public or private sale. He found six horses at 212 West Fiftieth Street, worth from $6,000 to $7,000, some of which have been shown at various horse shows, and 21 at the Plorham Stud, Madison, N. J. Mr. Nadal found no cash assets, and it is necessary to sell some of the horses at once to pay feed bills and help.

PETER PULVER & SONS.—William H. and Sarah J. Pulver, doing business as Peter Pulver & Sons, wholesale dealers in oil and grease at 214 Franklin Street, have made an assignment to Morgan D. McMonegal. The business was started forty years ago by Cook & Pulver, who dissolved in 1882, and Peter Pulver succeeded to the business. In 1884 his two sons, William H. and Robert E., became partners. Peter died in 1893 and Robert E. died in 1900, and his widow, Sarah J., became a partner. The firm formerly did a large business, but of late years it has diminished to small proportions.

Wrights Win Against Grahame-White.

Judge Hand in the United States Circuit Court yesterday granted an accounting to the Wright Company for alleged infringements of its flying patents by Grahame-White, in respect to the Farman and Blériot machines. The accounting ordered dates only from the service of the subpoenas, though the court said that it would have been willing to entertain an amendment so as to include all the profits from the use of these machines.

Collector's Error Results in Duty Reduction—Textile Decisions.

The Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday rectified an error made by customs officials when a protest filed by James F. White & Co. was sustained. It appears that union fabrics imported by the firm were classified by Collector Loeb as cotton cloth and duty collected at the applicable rate under the provision in the act of 1909 covering such goods. The firm maintained that the material was composed wholly or in chief value of flax, and should be granted entry at 35 per cent. The examiner reported to the board that a mistake had been made. On the strength of this the tribunal reverses the assessment made by the Collector.

A controversy between the Government and B. Altman & Co. regarding the classification of colored cotton cloth was decided adversely to the importers on the ground that the testimony was "insufficient." The Collector's classification is upheld. E. G. Carter made somewhat similar claims, which were sustained. Protests by E. de Grandmont, B. Altman & Co., and H. Bischoff & Co., regarding the classification of mercerized cottons, were sustained, as were claims by the H. E. Frankenberg Company, drawn work, and the Kern Commercial Company, dealing with brattice cloth. The board denied claims by the American Express Company, relating to appliqued articles, and Wilfred Schade & Co., cotton plush.

The following protests were overruled: Ewing & Clancey, Veit, Son & Co., C. H. Wyman & Co., R. Pierson & Co., Gallagher & Ascher, Charles D. Stone & Co., Oy Wo Tong Company, and other Chinese importers. Claims sustained included George E. Field, F. Erler, S. Handel & Brother, and Marchoini & Co.

CITY OF NEW YORK.
BOARD OF ESTIMATE AND APPORTIONMENT.

Public notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, held November 29, 1911, the following petition was received:

TO THE BOARD OF ESTIMATE AND APPORTIONMENT:

THE BRONX TRACTION COMPANY, a street surface railroad company, hereby applies for the consent of the City of New York to the construction and operation of a double track extension of its road on the following route in the Borough of the Bronx, City of New York:

Commencing at the present terminus of its road at Westchester Square, in the Village of Westchester, Borough of the Bronx, City of New York, extending with double tracks in, upon, and along the surface of Westchester Avenue to the intersection of said avenue with the Eastern Boulevard or Pelham Bay Park, also situated in said Borough of the Bronx, City of New York.

The proposed extension is to be operated by an overhead current of electricity, and will connect the Company's lines now terminating at Westchester Square with the Pelham Bay Park, thus affording a new line of transportation to the Park from the Southern and Western portions of the Borough of the Bronx.

Dated November 24, 1911.

[Seal.] BRONX TRACTION COMPANY,
By EDWARD A. MAHER, President.

City and County of New York, ss.:

EDWARD A. MAHER, being duly sworn, says that he is the President of the Bronx Traction Company, the petitioner herein. That he has read the foregoing petition and knows the contents thereof and that the same is true to his knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and as to such matters he verily believes it to be true.
EDWARD A. MAHER.

Sworn to before me this 24th day of November, 1911.
JAS. S. WILLIAMS,
Notary Public, N. Y. Co.

and the following resolutions were thereupon adopted:

Whereas, the foregoing petition from the Bronx Traction Company, dated November 24, 1911, was presented to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment at a meeting held November 29, 1911;

Resolved, that in pursuance of law this Board sets Thursday, the 21st day of December, 1911, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon, and Room 16 in the City Hall, Borough of Manhattan, as the time and place when and where such petition shall be first considered, and a public hearing be had thereon, at which citizens shall be entitled to appear and be heard; and be it further

Resolved, that the Secretary is directed to cause such petition and these resolutions to be published for at least fourteen (14) days in two daily newspapers in the City of New York, to be designated by the Mayor, and for at least ten (10) days in the "City Record" immediately prior to such date of public hearing. The expense of such publication to be borne by the petitioner.

RICE'S ELY CENTRAL BOOM

Shown in Telegrams Introduced at the Scheftels Trial.

Several telegrams which passed between the head and the branch offices of B. H. Scheftels & Co. were put in evidence yesterday at the trial before Judge Ray in the United States Circuit Court of B. H. Scheftels, George Graham Rice, and other Directors of the company on the charge of having used the mails to defraud. They dealt with the sale of the Ely Central Copper stock, in which the Government contends the firm was so deeply interested.

On Aug. 22 last year this order went forth to all the branches:

> Encourage the buying of Ely Central, this morning, in particular.

It found the stock at 12 cents. In four days it had moved up to 56 cents.

On Aug 14 Scheftels was away from the office, and a telegram signed G. G. R. was sent to him, which read:

> Barney leben. Kick in with several thousand in the A. M. It costs money to put in stocks as per your orders. Lost almost 20 in coal to-day, and went long of 10,000 Ely Central.

Another wire to Scheftels from Rice was:

> Stir the lambs up to-morrow on Ely Central. The great move has come. G. G. R.

On June 14 last year the branches were bidden to be particularly active. The orders sent to them over the wire were:

> Don't forget to transmit by wire all balances above $500 this morning and repeat the performance at noon. Using lots of money to move stocks. G. G. R.

The case will be resumed to-day.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—The Consular and Trade Report will note the following foreign trade opportunities. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of item referred to.

7,708. REPRESENTATION IN THE FAR EAST.—A commercial agent of the Department of Commerce and Labor has forwarded a letter from a man who is traveling through the Straits Settlements and India in which he expresses a desire to represent American manufacturers in Japan, China, Philippines, India, Dutch East Indies, or the Straits Settlements.

7,709. CEMENT FACTORY AND MACHINERY.—An American Consular officer has forwarded a letter from a business firm in his district requesting that it be placed in communication with an American concern that is prepared to erect and equip a complete cement factory producing 75,000 tons annually.

7,710. FLOUR AND SUGAR.—An American Consul in the Far East reports that a business firm in his district wants to communicate with some flour-milling concern on the Pacific Coast with a view to becoming agents. Should arrangements be made, the company intends to import flour from the United States in shipments of 2,000 bags per month. This firm is also desirous of importing American white sugar and would be glad to make connections with firms in the bean business. A flour suitable for making Chinese cakes; that is, one producing a rather sticky dough, is desired.

7,711. SYRIAN LACE.—An American Consular officer in Turkey reports that a local exporter of fine Syrian lace wishes to find customers for his goods in the United States.

7,712. LUMBER AND WOODS.—A lumberman in a Canadian city informs an American Consular officer that he would like to secure quotations on hard pine spars, 60 to 75 feet in length, 10 to 12 inches small, both round and sawed sticks, and he also requests prices on the various sorts of hard pine woods.

7,713. CIDER AND CIDER ESSENCES.—An American Consular officer reports that the leading mineral waters, cordial, and vinegar manufactures in an American city desire to get in touch at once with exporters in the United States who can supply them with apple cider, concentrated apple juice, or concentrated apple cider, for the purpose of using it in the manufacture of certain mineral waters.

7,714. IMITATION AMERICAN LEATHER.—An American who has had much success in introducing an American product into England, and who can furnish references, has made inquiry of a Consulate for the names of manufacturers of imitation leather such as is used for chair upholstery, with a view to introducing it into a certain automobile manufacturing district for upholstering purposes.

7,715. GERMAN AGENCY FOR AMERICAN FIRMS.—An American Consular officer in Germany reports that an English-speaking resident of his district, who has represented one American firm for a number of years, desires to act as agent for other lines of American manufacturers.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—The West Indian disturbance was apparently central Tuesday afternoon north of Eastern Cuba. Its intensity is still unknown.

General rains continue from the Gulf States, northeastward to the St. Lawrence Valley, but in the Atlantic States, although the weather was cloudy, there were only a few light and scattered showers.

Abnormally high temperatures continued in the Atlantic and east Gulf States, but in the Central Valleys and the lake region they have continued to fall, and on Tuesday they were but slightly above season.

Pressure is high west of the Rocky Mountains, except in the extreme Southwest, but to the eastward its distribution is very irregular.

It will be somewhat colder Wednesday in the Atlantic States, while over the remainder of the country temperature changes will not be decided.

Winds along the New England Coast will be moderate south to west; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate south, shifting to west and northwest; South Atlantic Coast, moderate northeast and east.

Steamships departing Wednesday for European ports will have moderate south to southwest winds with unsettled weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York and Ne wEngland—Local rains south, local rains or snow north, portions Wednesday, somewhat colder. Thursday, probably fair; moderate south to west winds.

New Jersey—Unsettled and somewhat colder Wednesday. Thursday, probably fair; light to moderate south winds, becoming variable.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Unsettled Wednesday, probably local rains north and west portions, somewhat colder. Thursday, fair; light south winds, becoming variable.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1910.	1911.		1910.	1911.
3 A. M.	17	53	4 P. M.	25	59
6 A. M.	18	52	6 P. M.	24	59
9 A. M.	17	54	9 P. M.	23	56
12 M.	20	57	12 P. M.	21	57

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 56; for th corresponding date last year it was 20; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 35.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 54; at 8 P. M. it was 58. Maximum temperature, 60 degrees at 2:20 P. M.; minimum, 51 degrees at 4 A. M. Humidity, 86 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 77 per cent. at 8 P. M.

REFEREES' NOTICES.

NEW YORK SUPREME COURT, NEW YORK County.—JAMES H. CRUIKSHANK and WILLIAM D. KILPATRICK, Plaintiffs, against THE McSWEENEY REALTY COMPANY and others, Defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale duly made and entered in the above-entitled action bearing date the 11th day of December, 1911, I, the undersigned, the Referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the Exchange Salesrooms, Nos. 14 and 16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 3d day of January, 1912, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by George Price, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold and therein described as follows:

All that lot of land in the City and County of New York with the buildings thereon, bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at a point in the northerly side of Perry Street, distant one hundred and thirty-six (136) feet westerly from the intersection of the northerly side of Perry Street and the westerly side of Washington Street and running thence westerly along the northerly side of Perry Street sixty-six (66) feet; thence northerly at right angles or nearly so with Perry Street one hundred (100) feet three (3) inches; thence easterly parallel with Perry Street sixty-six (66) feet; thence southerly at right angles or nearly so with Perry Street one hundred (100) feet three (3) inches to the point of beginning.

Said premises being now known as Numbers 161, 163, and 165 Perry Street, and being those which were conveyed to The McSweeney Realty Company by St. John's Park Realty Company by deed dated July 12th, 1910, and recorded in the office of the Register of the County of New York in Liber 201 of Section 2 of Conveyances, at Page 161.

Dated New York, December 12, 1911.

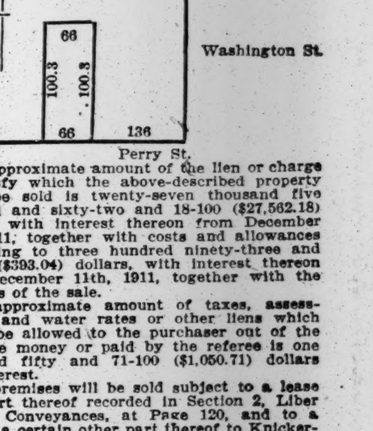
BOWERS & SANDS, Attorneys for Plaintiffs, office and Post Office address, Number 31 Nassau Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, N. Y.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold; its street numbers are Nos. 161, 163, and 165 Perry Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York:



The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold is twenty-seven thousand five hundred and sixty-two and 18-100 ($27,562.18) dollars, with interest thereon from December 6th, 1911, together with costs and allowances amounting to three hundred ninety-three and 04-100 ($393.04) dollars, with interest thereon from December 11th, 1911, together with the expenses of the sale.

The approximate amount of taxes, assessments, and water rates or other liens which are to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money or paid by the referee is one thousand fifty and 71-100 ($1,050.71) dollars and interest.

Said premises will be sold subject to a lease of a part thereof recorded in Section 2, Liber 208, of Conveyances, at Page 120, and to a lease of a certain other part thereof to Knickerbocker Machine Works and to leases to present tenants so far as any of said leases are now in force and subject to renewals thereof; also to the fact that the westerly wall of the building on said premises encroaches one and one-half inches on premises adjoining on the west and the tank on the roof projects one foot and six inches, more or less, over said premises adjoining on the west, and the exhaust pipe of said building projects three inches, more or less, over said premises adjoining on the west. No land is sold north of the median line of the block nor east of the easterly face of the easterly wall of the building on the premises above described. Said premises are also sold subject to a mortgage of ninety thousand ($90,000) dollars bearing interest at five (5) per cent. per annum, due July 8th, 1914, recorded in Section 2, Liber 302, of Mortgages, Page 117, with interest thereon accrued from July 7th, 1911.

Dated New York, December 12, 1911.

WALL STREET CUTS ITS CHRISTMAS GIFTS

Some Banks Still Distribute 10 Per Cent. of Annual Salaries, but Brokers Vary Amounts.

NOT LIKE GOOD OLD DAYS

When Things Boomed and Big Corporations Were Forming Money Flowed Liberally to Employes.

Wall Street's salaried army has an ear to the ground at this season to hear what will be the contents of the little yellow envelopes this Christmas. The distribution to employes of banking and brokerage houses is usually made on the last working day before Christmas, but some of the banks and trust companies which still cling to the old custom of Christmas bonuses announce what they are going to do while Christmas is still a couple of weeks off. The Astor Trust Company's men heard last week that their bonus this year would be 10 per cent. of their annual salary, and the Guarantee Trust officials voted yesterday a Christmas distribution of a like percentage.

It has been a year of poor business for the Stock Exchange houses, although the bond departments have done better than in some recent years. As the amount the stock brokers distribute is immediately proportionate to their profits for the year, their employes are not hoping for much—in fact, during the years since the panic the Christmas stockings in the brokerage houses have been painfully thin and in many cases non-existent.

Brokers' clerks and even banking house employes have had time to be reconciled in recent years to the passing of the lavish cash Christmas presents which were the common expectation in the years of the big promotions, bull markets, and wide public speculatioun which now seem so far back as to be little more than a tradition.

It was in 1902 that J. P. Morgan & Co. broke the record for big flotations in the launching of the United States Steel Corporation and the tradition persists in the Street that in that bounteous year the employes of the house received each a full year's salary as a Christmas present. Nowadays 10 per cent. is reckoned liberal.

Among the banks there has been a distinct movement away from Christmas bonuses. Two years ago the First National Bank announced that it would replace the Christmas present with a first of the year system of salary increases in reward for meritorious service, and at the same time put in effect a pension system. The pension and sick benefit idea, along with some sort of graduated salary increase annually as the length of service increases, has become popular. It has been known that the National City Bank is working out a pension system along lines similar to those of the First National Bank.

The employes of the various Exchanges in the financial district are never forgotten at Christmas, and the fund on the Stock Exchange for the 400 or more employes generally runs from $5,000 to $10,000 or more. In 1908 it was said to have been $13,000, but it is not expected to equal anything like this sum next week.

The Produce Exchange brokers for a number of years past have devoted their Christmas collections to entertaining several hundred poor children from the downtown districts with an animal circus on their big Exchange floor, followed by a distribution of toys and Christmas baskets containing all the ingredients of a thoroughgoing Christmas dinner.

SENDING MILLIONS IN CASH.

100,000 Persons Here Have Sent Abroad $4,000,000 for Christmas.

The richest of this year's American Christmas ships, so far this month, sailed from this port for Europe yesterday with $1,500,000 in Post Office orders for persons abroad, bought with good American money.

She was the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria, and she carried Christmas remittances from more than 100,000 American residents—most of whom belong presumably to the immigrant population here.

Each of these Christmas offerings averaged almost $15.

The greatest number of orders were sent to Great Britain. Postmaster Morgan said yesterday more than 40,000 persons here sent close to half a million dollars to Irish relatives.

Italy comes next in the number of cash presents sent from here, more than 11,000 Italians sending almost $300,000 to relatives in their sunny home country. The thrifty Greek population seems to have been the most generous to their home relatives according to Postmaster Morgan's figures, 771 Greeks having sent an average of $35 in each order. Here is Postmaster Morgan's table by nationalities of money orders carried by the Auguste Victoria:

	Number.	Amount.
Great Britain	41,410	$475,208.26
Germany	10,406	111,784.26
Sweden	13,219	132,110.39
Russia	3,627	66,642.65
France	775	10,003.84
Italy	11,318	296,767.62
Hungary	4,371	88,029.84
Norway	4,310	50,676.98
Austria	7,358	122,394.80
Switzerland	619	8,998.75
Denmark	1,896	18,920.63
Netherlands	291	3,603.82
Belgium	310	6,552.63
Portugal	9	108.00
Egypt	21	225.39
Greece	771	27,531.17
Luxemburg	15	148.77
Total	100,726	$1,419,707.80

These are Postmaster Morgan's figures for the money sent to foreign countries on previous treasure ships as far back as Dec. 2:

Dec. 2—Steamship St. Louis—Packages, 8,455; amount, $157,150.46.

Dec. 6—Steamship Campania—Packages, 625,809; amount, $1,207,580.27.

Dec. 7—Steamship La Lorraine—Packages, 13,783; amount, $259,200.97.

Dec. 9—Steamship Olympic—Packages, 70,158; amount, $1,087,451.07.

Altogether 258,931 persons have sent $4,231,090 abroad so far this month. Other treasure ships will sail on every day from this port for the rest of the week. The Lusitania, which sails on Saturday, will, according to Postmaster Morgan, carry a record treasure load.

CHRISTMAS FOR SUFFRAGISTS

Stores of Their Own at Two Headquarters and Goods for All.

People in the good graces of the suffragists will have nice Christmas presents this year, because two suffrage headquarters are opening shops to-day, with things particularly interesting.

At the new State headquarters, 180 Madison Avenue, just below Thirty-fourth Street, there will be little brass Guernsey hot-water jugs among other things; French peasant baskets that are treasures, Italian baskets, and the prettiest of foreign dolls, all picked up abroad by a suffragist noted for her good taste and shopping ability.

This is a Christmas sale, having nothing to do with the big farm bazaar which the association will hold in February, and every one, suffragist or anti-suffragist, is welcome to buy.

Japanese crêpes and silks, embroidered and plain; shawls, and scarfs, and all at wholesale prices, are offered at the other suffrage headquarters of the Woman Suffrage Party at 120 West Eighty-first Street, where another sale also commences to-day, and every one is welcome. Good suffrage jellies and jams, grape fruit, and orange marmelades, all home made, are among the offerings.

THEATRE STANDEES AGAIN.

Aldermen Pass Ordinance Permitting Rows Back of Orchestra Seats.

The Board of Aldermen yeserday passed Alderman Frank Dowling's ordinance changing Section 762 of the Greater New York Charter, and making it possible for the theatres to allow persons to stand back of the seats hereafter. The ordinance also changes the ruling of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, which upheld the law forbidding standees in theatres.

The ordinance specifies that "any number of persons or rows of persons" may stand back of the orchestra seats, providing that a space of six feet be kept clear when the aisles are sixteen feet wide or less, and a clear space of ten feet when the aisles are more than sixteen feet wide. Only one row of standees will be permitted in the galleries, and no person may stand at the head of an aisle.

The theatre managers are naturally very much pleased over the passage of the ordinance. When the ruling forbidding any one to stand in a theatre during a performance was enforced toward the end of last season, managers of many theatres, particularly of the vaudeville houses, found their receipts considerably diminished. Rhinelander Waldo, then Fire Commissioner, recommended that something like the present ordinance be passed, so that standees be allowed with certain restrictions. The ordinance was introduced shortly after the Ashe Building fire, and no effort was made to bring about action on it. There was some opposition shown yesterday, but it passed by a good majority.

In every theatre except the Metropolitan Opera House the law against standees has been enforced rigidly. Fire Commissioner Johnson, to make it possible for theatrical reporters to enter theatres where there were no vacant seats, recently issued a special fire badge that indicated the wearer to be present on duty and not a member of the audience.

BOY AIMS PISTOL AT TEACHER

Holds Her Up in Road Because He Had to Write 500 Words.

TRENTON, Dec. 12.—Because Miss Elsie Neuman, his teacher, made him stay in after school hours and write 500 words as punishment for disobedience, Ray Mussenessn, 14 years old, held her up at the point of a revolver and threatened to kill her.

The boy is now in the custody of the police, who will return him to the Charities Home Mission at Philadelphia, whence he came some time ago to make his home with a farmer near Hightstown.

Miss Neuman lives at Cedarville, three miles from Hightstown. The school is at Hightstown, and Miss Neuman was on her way home yesterday. The boy waited at the side of the road and jumped out in front of her, pistol in hand.

"I am going to kill you," he said.

He hesitated and Miss Neuman turned, and fled down the road screaming. At the first house she came to she rushed in and telephoned to Detective Shinn, who arrested the lad. The boy put up a fight against being made a prisoner.

TO BE A NEW YORK PASTOR.

Dartmouth Minister to Join Brick Church as Assistant.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Dec. 12.—The Rev. F. L. Janeway, pastor of the Dartmouth College Church, to-day announced his forthcoming resignation. On Jan. 28, he says, he will leave for New York, where he is to become assistant pastor of the Brick Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Janeway was installed as pastor of the Church of Christ of Dartmouth College in March, 1908. It is understood here that he will receive a much larger salary in New York.

FIFTH CHILD IN HOMER HOME.

Opera Singer Presents Her Husband with a Daughter.

Mrs. Louise Homer presented her husband, Sidney Homer, with a girl baby yesterday morning about 10 o'clock. This is the fifth Homer child, only one of whom is a boy. The new addition is called Esther Makepeace, after her great-great-grandmother, who was born in New England in 1680.

Mrs. Homer is doing as well as possible, and hopes to be ready to begin rehearsals of the America opera, "Mona," shortly after the first of the year. It is probable that "Mona" will be produced in February.

Transfer Order to Courts.

The Metropolitan, the Third Avenue, the Second Avenue, and the Central Park street car companies filed with the Public Service Commission yesterday an application for the rehearing of the order restoring free transfers at 151 points in the Boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx. The commission promptly denied the application, and it is expected that within a few days the companies will apply to the courts for a writ of certiorari in order to obtain a review of the commission's action.

Memorial to Abraham Abraham.

At the annual meeting of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum to be held at the institution at 3 o'clock next Sunday afternoon, a bronze memorial tablet to Abraham Abraham will be unveiled. The tablet will carry the tribute paid to Mr. Abraham at the time of his death by Mayor Gaynor. With this meeting, Simon F. Rothschild will retire from the Presidency and will take a large share in the work of the Brooklyn Federation of Jewish Charities of which he is Vice President.

"Kid" McCoy Out of Bankruptcy.

Among the bankrupts who obtained discharges yesterday in the United States courts was Norman Selby, otherwise "Kid" McCoy.

TRIANGLE SURVIVORS SLID DOWN CABLES

Finding Doors Locked, Some of the Girls Dropped Down on the Elevator.

FLAMES ALL ABOUT THEM

Witnesses at the Trial of Harris and Blanck Describe the Horrors They Witnessed.

Many stories of the fire horrors witnessed by the girls employed by Isaac Harris and Max Blanck, owners of the Triangle Waist Company, where 147 persons lost their lives in the disaster of March 25, were related before Judge Crain in General Sessions yesterday at the trial of the two men, who are charged with manslaughter. All the witnesses were girls who lost sisters or other relatives in the fire. Most of them had thrilling experiences while making their escape, and not one would say that the door leading to the Washington Place stairway was ever unlocked.

One girl said she had been empolyed by Harris & Blanck for three years, and that never in all that time did she see the Washington Place door open. Sophie Zimmerman, a bright girl of 19, who worked as an operator on the ninth floor, said she had worked for the company three years.

"I found the door locked on the Washington Place side when I ran to it on hearing the cry of fire that day," she said. "Girls were fighting all about the door and the smoke was pouring in fast. I rushed to the elevator then and made my escape."

"Did you ever see that door open during the time you worked on the ninth floor?" asked Assistant District Attorney Bostwick.

"No, Sir, I never did."

Max D. Steuer, counsel for the defendants, began his cross-examination of the witness by asking her if Blanck hadn't helped her into the elevator and she replied that he did not.

"Who did help you?" asked Mr. Steuer.

"I helped myself mostly, but I received some assistance from other girls."

Story of a Witness.

One of the most pathetic witnesses of the day was Katie Weiner of 1,457 Madison Avenue, who was dressed in deep mourning. Mr. Bostwick asked her to tell her story about the fire from the beginning.

"I heard some one cry 'Fire!' and it seemed a long way off," she began. "In less time than I can tell it all became confusion about the ninth floor. Girls ran about shouting and fighting to get out. Some crowded about the elevators, and others about the Greene Street stairway. I rushed to the table where my sister worked and she wasn't there. Then I began to cry, but something told me that would do no good, and then I saw my sister near the window. I started to run toward her, but the smoke was so dense that it choked me, and I could not reach her.

"I shouted to her but she didn't hear me, and that was the last I saw of her then. I was at a loss to know what to do for a time, but I saw many girls about the Washington Place door, and I ran there. Just as soon as I started to the Washington Place door, some one said: 'Girls, it's no use; the door is locked and we can't get out.' Then they began to cry and some prayed. I saw the elevator go down and noticed smoke coming up the Greene Street stairway. I started for it, but a wall of flame shot up and into the room. In a second everything about me was fire. I noticed that the elevator door was open and I jumped for the cable.

"Whether it was luck or whether God was looking after me I can't say, but I managed to grab hold of it, and to lower myself down. I didn't exactly lower myself, I slid down."

"Did you see your sister?" asked Mr. Bostwick.

"Yes—I—saw her, but she was dead."

"What was your sister's name?" asked Mr. Steuer, taking up the cross-examination.

"Her name was Rosie, and she was only 18 years old."

Door Was Locked.

"Didn't you see any one try to open the door, and didn't you see it open?"

"No, not the Washington Place door; that was locked."

"Didn't you testify that Willie, the machinist on the ninth floor, opened it and closed it again when he saw flames coming up?"

"No Willie nor any one else opened that door."

Zelia Walker, who was employed as an operator on the ninth floor, describing her experience, said:

"I soon saw that it was either a case of getting burned alive or jumping down the elevator shaft. I had seen the car go down, and I waited a few minutes, hoping that it would come up. I saw the cables shake and become still, and then I knew it would never come up.

"A terrible wall of flame was pouring in on me, and I prayed to God to save me from it. Then I crouched down and jumped, and my hands closed about the cables. I slid down and remember no more, although I felt persons fall upon me. I cannot say how I managed to get out."

Lillian Weiner of 338 Third Street, Brooklyn, testified that she was an examiner on the ninth floor. She said:

"I was going about my duties, when I heard a crash and saw smoke pouring from the stairway. I shouted 'Fire' with others, and we rushed to a window. I tried to break it with my fist, but the glass was too thick, and it only cracked. I ran to the elevator, but it had gone down. I knocked on the door, and it opened and I fell into the shaft. I fell and fell, it seemed an age, but something caught on my dress, and I managed to catch hold of the cable. I hung on for all I was worth and slid down. Other persons were falling down the shaft, and one screamed horribly as she passed me. I heard her body crash on the top of the cage. Many others fell upon me when I reached it myself. I cannot tell just how I managed to get out alive."

Escaped by the Elevator.

"Don't you remember that the last trip of the elevator was made to the tenth floor, and that only one man, a colored man, came down in it?" asked Mr. Steuer.

"No, I did not. I was excited and did not take much notice of what happened about me."

Rebecca Bursky of 262 Prospect Park West, Brooklyn, testified that she saw a jam about the Washington Place door and that she heard some one say it was locked, and then she ran to the fire escape. She said the passage to this fire escape was blocked and that she had considerable difficulty in reaching it.

Rose Glanz, an operator on the ninth floor, described the manner of her escape, saying:

"I turned and ran with others to the Washington Place door just as soon as I heard the cry of fire. I found it locked and ran to the Green Street door, but a crowd was about that, so I went to the dressing room. People were crying, and I rushed to the elevator and was taken down. Just as I got into the elevator there was a roar, and I saw the whole ninth floor swept by one gigantic flame. Pieces of cloth were being blown all around and were on fire.

"The last I saw of the ninth floor was a glimpse of several forms rushing about in the flames, and then we passed to the eighth floor. Flames were roaring all over this, and that is all I saw. I was dazed when I reached the street."

Judge Crain then adjourned the case until to-day.

Good Year for Gem Imports.

The demand for diamonds, pearls, and other precious stones during the year ending with this month will swell the total value of the gems received at the Custom House in this city during 1911 to over $41,000,000, according to an estimate made yesterday by a large importer. Last year the value of the gems imported was over $40,568,445, which excelled any previous year in the history of the trade, with the single exception of 1906, when the total reached $43,573,488.

DOG LOYALTY KNOWS NO LAW

Two Attack Detectives Who Arrest Master and Suspected Burglar.

Detective Oliver got a clue that Henry Miller, who calls himself a waiter, but who, the police say, is a notorious burglar, had a hand in the robbery of Emile Fuchs's silver store at 34 West Twenty-ninth Street, where $10,000 worth of silverware was stolen on Nov. 30. Finger prints on a safe in the silversmiths matched his on record at Police Headquarters. Oliver followed Miller several times, but always lost him in crowds. Last night he saw Samuel Berger, whom he knew as a friend of Miller, and followed him to the top floor flat in a five-story tenement at 3 East 109th Street.

Oliver got Policemen McAndrews and Wey of the East 104th Street Station and knocked on the door. Mrs. Berger admitted them, but denied that her husband or his friend was at home. They saw two big white bulldogs sniffing around a box couch which was closed, and Oliver opened it. Miller and Berger, looking shamefaced, stepped out.

They offered no objection when Oliver told them they'd have to go to the station, but suddenly Miller called to the dogs, and the animals sprang at the uniformed men. A fight started which was continued through almost every room in the flat, the policemen trying to beat off the dogs with their clubs and the animals rushing at them with open jaws. In the mix-up Berger tried to reach a rear fire-escape, but McAndrews caught him and Wey grabbed Miller just as he tried to get out of a window which apparently offered no alternative other than a jump to a vacant lot five stories below. The policeman found a rope stretching down from the window to the lot, however, and then he stuck his revolver in Miller's face and ordered him to call off the dogs if he didn't want to be shot.

When the animals had been tied Miller and Berger were taken to the East 104th Street Station, the first charged with burglary and the other with interfering with an officer.

STEAMSHIP LINES' DEFENSE.

Mr. Spooner Attacks Government View of Sherman Law.

In arguing before the United States Circuit Court yesterday the demurrers of the steamship companies who have been charged by the Government with having violated the Sherman anti-trust law in regard to steerage passengers, ex-Senator John C. Spooner asked if according to the District Attorney's construction of the Sherman law a foreign ship on the high seas is to be subject to an economic rule "that we have prescribed for our own people within our own jurisdiction."

If that were so, he said, it would be a very pusillanimous Government indeed that would submit to the United States enforcing any such rule on its vessels while they were on the high seas. If the court complied with the petition of the Government that foreign ships which did not comply with the law should be excluded from American ports it was still not within the power of the United States, Mr. Spooner pointed out, to exclude these vessels from the Continent altogether. The ports of Montreal and Quebec would still be open to them.

W. S. Montgomery, of the firm of Burlingham, Montgomery & Beecher, counsel for the American, Red Star, and other Atlantic lines, also urged the sustaining of the demurrers, and contended that the Sherman law was not broad enough to apply to the transit of property from Canada through the United States to a foreign country.

The court reserved its decision.

KILLED FOR STRIKING A BLOW

Bookkeeper Said Dead Driver Had Pestered Him for Advances of Pay.

Persons in First Street, Hoboken, N. J., shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, saw a man accost two other men near Willow Avenue. He struck one of the men, and instantly the third man fired a revolver through his coat pocket. The one who had struck the blow fell to the sidewalk. The others ran.

They were caught by Policeman Hildeman, who called an ambulance from St. Mary's Hospital and had the wounded man taken there. He died a few moments afterward. The man who had done the shooting said he was Sidney Solomon of 62 West 115th Street, New York, bookkeeper for the New York Live Poultry Company, whose place of business is at 115 Patterson Avenue, Hoboken. The dead man was John Lecari of 611 First Street, and he was a driver for the poultry company.

Solomon told the police that Lecari had bothered him for months for advances of his pay, and at last the bookkeper had refused. Still Lecari had pestered him, and yesterday Solomon tried to get a summons to bring Lecari to court and have him admonished to stop annoying him. He was on his way back from court in company with William Schwitzer of 402 First Street, when he encountered Lecari, who, he said, struck at him, but hit Schwitzer. Then Solomon fired.

Want Democratic Convention Here.

The Aldermen want New York City to be selected for the Democratic National Convention next year. Alderman Becker, Republican, introduced a resolution yesterday extending an invitation to the Democratic National Committee, which will meet in Washington on Jan. 8, to consider this city for its convention. The resolution, which also asked that civic bodies give what aid they can to further the plan, was passed unanimously.

Old German Actor Drops Dead.

Frederick Hein, an old German actor, who had played with several stock companies here, dropped dead of heart disease last night while he was playing pinochle in Trinity Hall, Trinity Avenue and 156th Street, the Bronx, with Arthur Hoffman, the proprietor, and some friends. Hein, who was 62 years old, had complained for several days of feeling ill. He lived at 156th Street and St. Ann's Avenue and had no family.

SAYS COURTS USURP POWER.

Gilbert Roe Finds That They Are Opposed to Progressive Democracy.

Accusing the courts of having usurped powers never granted to them by the fathers of the Constitution, particularly in regard to declaring statutes unconstitutional, Gilbert E. Roe, a lawyer of 55 Liberty Street, who before he came East was an associate of Senator La Follette in Wisconsin, declared last night at the People's Institute that the courts opposed the spirit and purpose of progressive democracy and did not grant the poor man an equality with the rich. In particular he dwelt on the laws governing employers' liability. Mr. Roe quoted Roosevelt's statement that if some of the recent decisions represented the courts' attitude the whole system of popular government might be upset, and he brought the testimony of President Hadley and Miss Jane Addams to his support.

In conclusion Mr. Roe expressed the belief that the Judges were honest in what they did, and that the whole situation is summed up in the fact that the Judges, and especially the Federal Judges, by habit, training, and experience, are naturally opposed to the spirit of progressive democracy.

MRS. EVERS SENTENCED.

Three Months in Penitentiary for Beating Ward—Collapses in Court.

Mrs. E. Virginia Evers, who pleaded guilty last week to cruelty to her ward, 14-year-old Alice Elizabeth Randolph, was sentenced to three months in the penitentiary by Justices McInerney, Mayo, and Salmon in Special Sessions yesterday.

When she stepped to the bar to have sentence imposed she was ordered to lift her veil. As she did so there was a craning of necks from all parts of the room, and a murmur of surprise and sympathy when the spectators saw the deep lines in her face, and the haggard, tired expression of her sunken eyes.

Supt. Thomas D. Walsh of the Children's Society told the court that the mystery of the birth of Alice Randolph had been cleared. He handed the Justices a slip of paper, and it was announced that the names of the parents of the child would not be made public.

Next Sunday's New York Times

The Picture Part.

The Sunday Edition of The New York Times contains each week a notable Pictorial Section.

When we consider how great a part pictures play in our modern life, their educational value, and the instant impression they make upon the mind, it must be conceded that pictures, good pictures, are a very important factor in the usefulness of the Sunday newspaper.

One glance at a picture impresses facts and features on the memory as a story in type can never do. Try it for yourself. Look carefully at a picture such as The Times will print next Sunday, then take pen or pencil and try to put into words the story told in the picture. The result may be at best a careful catalogue of the different items making the picture, but the comprehensive effect of the picture as a whole cannot be expressed in words.

Next Sunday's edition of The New York Times will include 51 pictures of world events; pictures from India, China, Persia, Africa, Holland, France, Cuba, England, and the United States; a panorama of the world's activities and interests.

Let us begin with the home pictures. There will be six photographic reproductions from the annual exhibit of the National Academy of Design, including two prize pictures.

The New York Giants are still on earth—in Cuba. There will be five pictures of the team, the Cuban players, the ball grounds at Havana, and persons prominent in connection with the game.

You saw New York's first snow, perhaps, from the viewpoint of slushy streets. Next Sunday's Times will show you six pictures of the Park transformed into a fairyland, overnight, by this unexpected snowstorm.

Every one who has been following the McNamara trial will be interested in the eleven pictures of the persons and places involved in the case, which will be a feature of next Sunday's Times.

There will be six views of Mrs. Oliver Belmont's new Suffragette Club House and its interior arrangements.

Pictures of the War in Tripoli, the revolution in China, the Russian-Persian controversy, The Hague Peace Palace, a Scene on the Ganges at Benares, and other interesting pictures will complete the world panorama of next Sunday's Times Pictorial Section.

Now, as to the pictures: They are reproductions of original photographs printed on heavy, glazed paper. They stand out clean and clear—models of photographic art.

And now a word about ordering The Sunday Times in advance it's necessary to do so to be sure of getting it. Newsdealers buy only what they know they can sell. If they buy one copy specially for you, there can be no disappointment on either side. So tell your dealer, "I want a copy of next Sunday's New York Times."
